RUSSIA IS ON VERGE OF REAL CIVIL WAR

London, Sunday, Dec. 9.—The Russian government wireless today transmits a proclamation signed by M. Kolegalev, "Peoples' Commissary of Agriculture," declaring all lands, with their living and slaughtered stock, all buildings and the produce of the lands shall henceforth be national property under the management of the land committees. Under this proclamation private property in land is declared abolished and the houses of the land owners are to be used as schools, hospitals, shelters and theaters. The proclamation announces that instruction of the transfer will be issued shortly. It concludes:

ON VERGE OF CIVIL WAR.

London, Dec. 10.—The counter revolution in southern Russia under General Kaledines, Duff and Korniloff apparently is aimed at seizing the authority in that region and in cutting off supplies from Siberia.

AMERICAN GIRL MADE BRIDE OF VON BERNSTORFF

Berlin, Saturday, Dec. 8.—Via London, Dec. 10.—The marriage here today of Count Christian Gunther von Bernstorff, son of the Ambassador to the United States, and Miss Margaret Vivian Burton Thompson, of Burlington, N. J., is reported by the Berlin newspapers.

Count Christian Gunther von Bernstorff is 26 years old. He visited the United States with his father in 1911 and in June, 1913, he entered the offices of Speyer & Co., New York, near the mouth of the river, in which the bridegroom had been before entering the German diplomatic service. In February, 1915, the iron cross was conferred upon him and at Christmas time that year Count Christian was reported ill in Berlin.

According to the proclamation of the Bolshevik government General Kaledines' forces are menacing Ekaterinoslav, Kharkov and Moscow. In the province of Erenburg the Bolsheviks have been overthrown by General Duff.

Tcheliabinsk, an important railway center in northeastern Orenburg, is besieged by General Duff's troops. In the Caucasus General Korniloff is attacking Tchenerev and Ingush.

The proclamation says the "enemy of the people" have undertaken a last attempt to destroy the cause of peace and says the constitutional democratic party is providing the means for the revolt. The proclamation reads:

"While representatives of the congress of workers and soldiers' delegates and the congress of peasants' deputies were negotiating to secure an honorable peace for the exhausted country, the enemies of the people, the imperialists, the land owners, the bankers and their allies, the Cossack generals, have undertaken a final attempt to destroy the cause of peace, wrested the power from the hands of the soldiers and workmen and the land from the peasants and to compel soldiers, sailors and Cossacks to shed their blood for the benefit of the Russian and allied imperialists.

"General Kaledines in the Don and General Duff in the Ural province have raised the flag of revolt. The constitutional democratic party is providing the necessary means to enable them to carry on the fight against the people. The Bodziankos, the Milukoffs, the Gutchkoffs and the Konovaloffs seek to regain power and with the aid of the Kaledines, the Korniloffs and the Duffs are endeavoring to turn the Cossack laborers into an instrument for achieving their criminal aims.

"General Kaledines has declared a state of war in the Don region, is hindering the supply of bread to the front and collecting his forces, thus menacing Ekaterinoslav, Kharkov and Moscow."

CUT OFF FOOD SUPPLIES.

Petrograd, Sunday, Dec. 9.—The provisional government of Siberia has ordered the stoppage of food supplies for European Russia, particularly Petrograd, on the ground that they may reach Germany.

RUMANIA GETS ARMISTICE.

Jerusalem, the Holy City of the Christian religion, for more than 1,200 years in Moslem hands, has finally been wrested from the Turk. It has been surrounded after being surrounded by the victorious British Palestine army. In northern Italy, the Austro-German efforts to penetrate the Italian mountain barrier have been suspended, but apparently the attempt to break the Italian is being renewed along the Piave. Berlin reports a success near the mouth of the river, in which the bridgehead of Sile, at the edge of the inundated district, about eight miles from the Adriatic and three miles west of the main river bed, was captured. Reports from the Italian front have minimized the danger of any movement by the Austro-German invaders along this section of the river and apparently the Italian forces at this point was not an important one as the capture of only 200 prisoners, is claimed by the German staff. Official announcement is made by Berlin of the signing of an armistice, with the Russian-Rumanian armies on the Rumanian front the agreement embracing the line from the Danube to the parently will be put to the test. The Petrograd government has issued a proclamation announcing that General Kaledines, Korniloff and Duff have begun a revolt in southeastern European Russia. The Bolshevik announcement declares that the constitutional democrats are assisting the hetman of the Don Cossacks and his fellow military leaders who are said to aim at cutting off food supplies and in seizing power from the Black sea to the Caspian mountains, as well as in the Caucasus. Bolshevik troops have been ordered to take the field against the counter revolutionists. It had not been unexpected in the European capitals that a strong effort would be made to oust the Bolsheviks from power. For some time Gen. Kaledines has been gathering his forces in the Don region, where he has been joined by former army officers and leaders of the old provisional government and has been reported to hold most of Russia's food and he probably controls the Don coal region and a great portion of the grain growing territory around the Black and Caspian seas.

The seal sales for the season thus far shows an increase over the same period of last year of 86,612.

"Fine," said Chief Dispenser Miss Jane Meriwether this morning, "but it is too early to be weary in well doing. TB keeps fighting all the time and the way to make defense against it effectively is to provide the money to fight it. There are twenty-one days yet but every letter and every package that is committed to the mail or to express companies now will look better if it shows that the sender is living the Christmas spirit already—with Christmas still fifteen days away."

Dr. Evans in the Chicago Tribune yesterday reported that in one camp of soldiers the more thorough examination for tuberculosis made by the army examiners disclosed TB in 400 men who had no idea that the bug had found lodgment in their anatomy anywhere. These men were dismissed and will be a danger to their families and their environment unless they receive treatment and many may not be able to forego employment unless the local Anti-Tuberculosis society of their community finds the money through sale of seals to give them the advantage of some Port Recovery.

In this connection Dr. Evans said: "In Chicago the number of deaths from tuberculosis per year is not larger than it was ten years ago, though the population is greater by two-thirds of a million. A moderate number of smaller cities and rural communities have begun to work on their consumption problem. Right now the Red Cross seal sale is on. In many communities the only chance of getting a tuberculosis nurse, dispensary or sanatorium, of having a fund to care for needy consumptives, or for buying pamphlets or booklets telling what a consumptive should do, lies in the sale of Christmas seals. . . . ANOTHER VESSEL WITH MUNITIONS AFIRE IN HALIFAX

Halifax, Dec. 10.—The deck cargo of the British steamer Ploton, laden with munitions, caught fire last night and only the quick and courageous work of a Halifax company of firemen prevented another big explosion in the harbor. The men boarded the ship, threw the burning cargo overboard and saved the vessel.

Halifax, Dec. 10.—Members of the crew of the Belgian steamer Imo, assert that the French munitions steamer Mont Blanc was to blame for the collision which caused the terrible explosion last Thursday. Employees of Pickford & Black, agents of the Imo, who have been providing the crew with clothing and other comforts made public today the stories told them by the seamen.

Imo Crew's Version.
Their version of the tragedy follows: "The Imo was proceeding toward the harbor toward the sea when the Mont Blanc was seen coming toward her, apparently steaming for the Bedford basin. The French vessel was on the Dartmouth side of the narrows. She blew two blasts of the whistle, indicating that she was going to starboard. The Imo replied two blasts. The Mont Blanc turned and the crew of the Imo thought they could pass in safety, but the distance between the two vessels was too short and the Imo rammed the Mont Blanc on the starboard side.

MR. HUGHES WILL MAKE A CALL ON THE PRESIDENT

Washington, Dec. 10.—Charles E. Hughes will call on President Wilson today. It was announced at the white house that Mr. Hughes would see the president at 4 p. m. but no intimation was given as to the object of his call or whether the meeting was arranged at the instance of the president or Mr. Hughes.

Today's meeting between the two men will be the first time they have seen each other since before the last presidential election. Mr. Hughes had a case before the supreme court here, his first since he retired from the bench more than a year ago. Friends said his call at the white house was only incidental and to pay his respects.

Secretary of War Baker in Statement Says Men Have Been Massed.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Germany has massed on the western front her greatest army of the war, Secretary Baker declares in his weekly war review made public today. To meet this menace the United States must speed up its military preparations, the secretary adds, with a warning that the enemy is preparing to put into execution in France plans he has been maturing since the defeat of the Russian armies at Tannenberg early in the war. The peace negotiations with Russia have permitted the massing of men on the western front for that purpose.

Must Prepare to Win.
"The united nations must stand squarely behind our soldiers," the secretary says. "It is not sufficient to prepare to fight; we must prepare to win."

The review asserts the German counter offensive on the Cambrai front has been successful in winning back less than one-third of the territory captured by Gen. Byng. The statement also notes that American engineer troops "exchanging shovels for rifles fought off the enemy side by side with the British."

The lesson of the German exhibition of strength is then taken up: "This German parrying thrust, the most powerful and successful blow aimed at the British during the past two and one-half years coming as it did immediately after the British victory in the same area, serves to emphasize the reviving strength of the Germans in the west."

Great Strategic Change.
"We must recognize plainly that the situation in this theatre has brought about a very decided change in the strategic possibilities of the military situation in the west."
"Germany by leaving only skeleton divisions in the Russian area by concentrating all available guns, munitions and men in the theater of operations in the west has been able to mass a relatively greater force than she has

TURKS SURRENDER CITY TO ELLENBY

London, Dec. 10.—Andrew Bonar Law, chancellor of the exchequer, announced in the house of commons today that Jerusalem, after being surrounded on all sides by British troops, has surrendered.

The capture of Jerusalem by the British forces marks the end, with two brief interludes, of more than 1,200 years' possession of the seat of the Christian religion by the Mohammedans. For 673 years the Holy City has been in indisputed ownership of the Turks, the last Christian ruler of Jerusalem, being the German emperor, Frederick II, whose short-lived domination lasted from 1229 to 1244. Apart from its connection with the campaign being waged against Turkey by the British in Mesopotamia, the fall of Jerusalem was the definite collapse of the long-protracted efforts of the Turks to capture the Suez canal and invade Egypt. Almost the first move made by Turkey after her entrance into the war was a campaign against Egypt across the Great desert of the Sinai peninsula in November, 1914. A Turkish army, variously estimated at from 75,000 to 250,000 men, marched on the Suez canal and succeeded in reaching within striking distance of the great artificial waterway at several points. For several months bitter fighting took place, the canal being defended by an Anglo-Egyptian army aided by Australians and New Zealanders and French and British forces. For the greater part of 1915 conflicting reports of the situation were heard from the belligerents, but in December of that year definite information showed that the Turks had been driven back as far as El Arish, about 55 miles east of the canal. Another period followed in which the situation was greatly confused through the vagueness and contradictory character of the official statements, but in December, 1916, the British stormed El Arish and a few days later severely defeated the Turks at Magdhabah, about sixty miles to the south on the same front. Two weeks later the invaders had been driven out of Egypt and the British forces crossed the border into Palestine. There had been no hint from either official or unofficial as to a British intention to undertake a definite invasion of the Holy Land and it was with intense surprise that the world learned on March 7 last that the British forces had captured El Kahull, fifteen miles south of Jerusalem. El Kahull is the modern name of Ancient Hebron. The campaign lapsed into stagnancy through the heated period, but was actively renewed with the setting in of colder weather last fall.

Health authorities, working in co-operation with the general relief committee, made it plain that burial must not be delayed. Laborers were assigned to the cemeteries and men who never had expected to do that sort of work assisted in the task. Little groups of sorrowful people went to cemeteries adjacent to the Richmond district utterly wiped out by flames, and laid away their dead without friends in attendance, and with the commitment rites omitted. There were not enough ministers to officiate for all. There were not enough ballbearers and not enough horses. The dead were laid away with none there but the folk from homes now but a mass of ruins. One general service was held for all.

Halifax, Dec. 10.—Unbelievable incidents happened when the munition ship exploded. But the case of Third Officer Mayers, of the British transport Middleton Castle, stands out as one of the most remarkable. Mayers was on the deck, ready to step into a small boat to go ashore. When he came to, he was prone on the higher ground half a mile away and there was not a piece of clothing on his body. He was removed to a home near by and probably will recover.

Known dead, 1,200.
Unaccounted for, 2,000.
Dead which have been identified, 900.
Wounded, 8,000.
Homeless, 25,000.

Burial of the victims of the explosion and fire here Thursday was begun today. "Men wanted immediately at Fairview cemetery." This advertisement in the morning papers called attention to still another problem—finding men to dig graves for the hundreds of dead.

Interment Is Hastened.

Meeting is Held by Farmers' Institute Board of Noble County.

(Special to the Sentinel.) Albion, Ind., Dec. 10.—The farmers' institute board of Noble county, at a recent meeting in this city, laid the plans for the winter's work, the object being to aid allied forms of agriculture work and not interfere with any, to improve the farm, the home, the social life, the rural church, schools and highways, in fact uniting all for a common good, applying the maxim, "in unity there is strength." In addition to the regular assigned meetings, when the interest is justifiable other meetings will be scheduled and at one and all one day's state aid will be rendered. Contest work will be applied and programs are now being arranged for the meetings on the following dates: Wolf Lake, Jan. 8; Swan, Jan. 9; Kimmell, Jan. 10; Cromwell, Jan. 11; Cosperville, Jan. 12. Isaac Straus, of Ligonier, addressed the meeting, dwelling on valuable information regarding next year's seed corn.

Waller Shenk, Butter township, DeKalb county, and Grace Averetta Dittmars, of Swan township, this county, have procured license to wed.

Attorney O. E. Grant, of this city, was reappointed county attorney and Vermont Finley, of Kenosha, Wis., reappointed attorney of the county, by the commissioners at their recent session.

C. F. Haney, of Fort Wayne, was among the arrivals at Albion, Thursday.

John Saorie returned Friday evening from a trip to Kenosha and other Illinois towns, being absent since Monday.

Postmaster G. W. Smith was slinging mail and greeting the patrons at the postoffice Friday, having recovered from an illness of several days.

Instructor Moorhouse, of the high school faculty, has organized a high school cornet band, a commendable adjunct to the school.

The price of board at the Hotel de Sawyer has been advanced to 20c per meal from the usual 13 cents, necessitated by the high cost of eatables, the county commissioners authorizing the raise at their session of court, Monday.

NEW MILITIA WILL DRILL TONIGHT

Col. C. A. Gerrard Will Muster Fort Wayne's New Unit Thursday Evening.

The local unit of the new state militia will hold a drill in the lobby of the court house at 7:30 o'clock this evening. It will be absolutely necessary for all recruits to be examined before Thursday, as Col. C. A. Gerrard, of Indianapolis, will be here at that time to muster in the new company.

Although the unit is almost filled up there are still a few remaining vacancies and any one between the ages of eighteen and twenty desiring to become a member of the company may do so by applying at once. Entrance into the militia does not exempt a man from draft, but it will fit him better for active service when he is called.

NO SCHOOL BECAUSE OF COLD WEATHER

The extreme cold weather resulted in the dismissal of the Fort Wayne high school on Monday morning. The fire was allowed to get rather low over Sunday and all attempts to heat the building on Monday morning proved to be of no avail. None of the students objected to being dismissed, save a few who had sidewalks to clean at home.

LOCAL EXPENSES HAVE ALREADY BEEN RAISED

Splendid Progress Being Made in Meetings at Crescent Avenue Church.

Offerings at the Crescent avenue Evangelical church yesterday amounted to $230. In spite of the bitter weather, which of necessity prevented many from venturing out yesterday, good congregations were present at each service. This week will be full of good things. A special program is arranged for each evening. Tuesday evening Mrs. Barr will speak on the subject, "What is a Sinner?" In the evening Mrs. Barr's message was "The Unanswered Question." "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

With no undue pressure the congregation last evening cheerfully gave nearly two hundred dollars to the local expenses. The local expenses have now been raised and out of the way. This evening, at 6:30, there will be a get-together supper for the men, at which time an organization will be perfected which will do drastic work in the community during the next two weeks of the campaign. The supper will be provided by the women of the church and will be served for twenty-five cents.

Tuesday evening will be Sunday school night. Each class will be present with their teacher, and be the guests of honor at this service.

Folks who are not attending these meetings are missing a great musical treat, in the singing each night of Mr. Edmond, as well as a line of the greatest sermons and addresses which have ever come to the Fort Wayne people. Inspiring, soulful music, earnest prayers and heart touching gospel sermons all tend to bring results in the minds and hearts of people who come to these services.

Mrs. Barr deals in no meaningless language or rhetorical flights in her preaching. She goes unerringly to the core of the meaning of Christ's teachings and with keen spiritual insight presents the love and sweetness of Him who spoke as never man spoke.

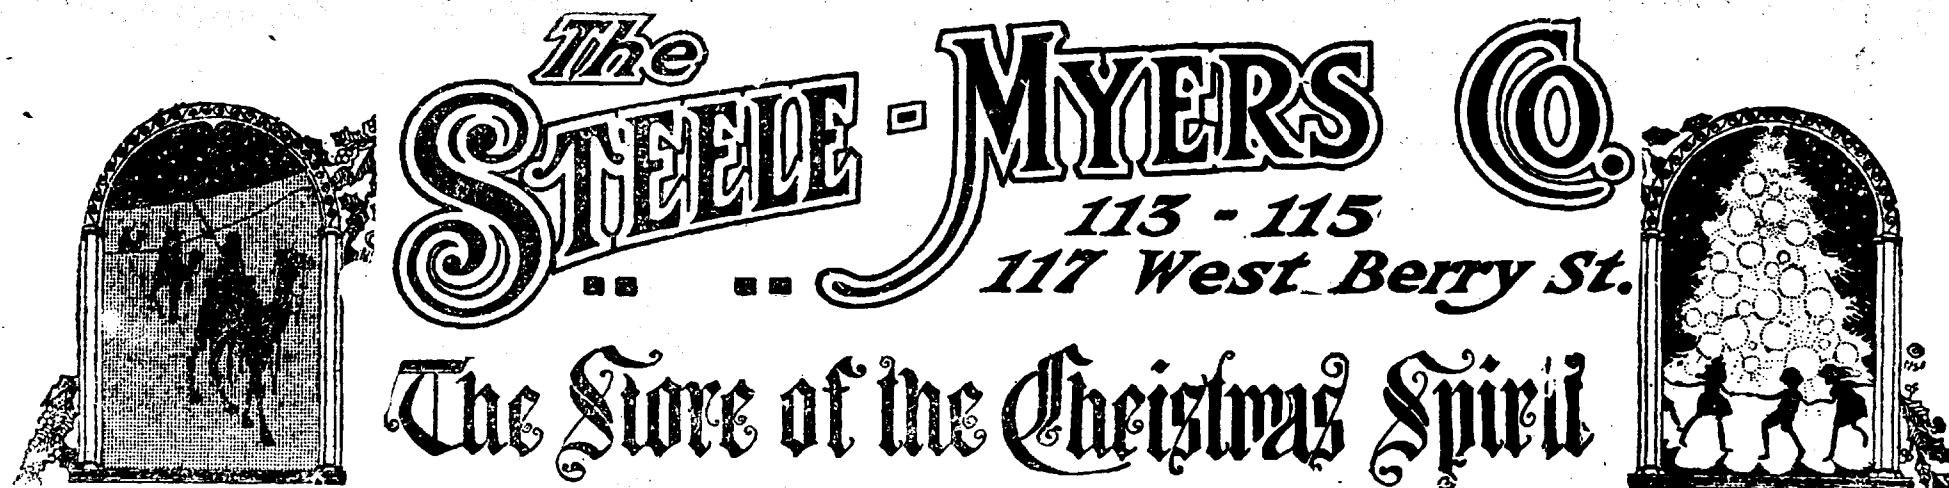

DEFERRED SHOPPING UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Extreme Cold Kept Many from Coming to Town for Christmas Buying.

The extreme low temperature which prevailed Saturday, while it stimulated holiday buying among the home folks, kept a large number of people from the outside territory from coming to the city for the annual buying trip. Many, however, would have deferred their purchases until Wednesday, Suburban day, as that has become the regular buying day for thousands who have formed the new habit of coming to Fort Wayne on the mid-week day. Exceptional preparations are being made by the merchants this week. The advertisements which will appear in tomorrow's Sentinel will announce many splendid "specials" for Wednesday. The advertisements of the merchants this winter, in presenting to the people their array of reasonable goods, chiefly those for the Christmas trade, show a distinct trend toward the policy of conservation in buying. It is interesting to note the fact that none but real serviceable merchandise is being offered and that many items of prominence in former years are conspicuously absent from the offerings of this season. Merchants who are awake to the possibilities of Suburban day report an exceptionally large business last Wednesday. These, of course, are the ones who keep the outside people informed on matters of mutual interest to the dealer and the patron. For advertising is nothing more nor less than the medium of information from the store to the buyer. The wide-awake ones are making big preparations to care for this week's Suburban day trade.

All photographs taken up to December 20th will be finished by Christmas. Perrey Studio, corner Calhoun and Berry streets.

Judge S. M. Hench, department commander of Indiana, G. A. R., left yesterday afternoon on a trip to the southwestern part of the state. The object of his trip is to attend several gatherings of the G. A. R. at Vincennes, Terre Haute and Evansville. He will be absent for several days. It is pleasing to note that the work of the G. A. R. in the Hoosier state is progressing most satisfactorily under the direction of Commander Hench, and his department officers, and many old soldiers are joining the order.

RAILROAD NEWS

WILL REACH TRENCHES
BEFORE CHRISTMAS

People Who Sent Presents to
1, Get Good News.

New York, Dec. 10.—To all those home folks who mailed Christmas gifts to their soldier boys abroad before December 1, official assurance has just been given that, except for unforeseen and unlikely mishaps of war, all these remembrances will be delivered to them at the fighting front on Christmas day.

This splendid accomplishment was due to the public's general response to the appeals for early mailing. The various departments of the Railroad's War Board throughout the country, in pursuance of their campaign to relieve traffic congestion by every possible means, posted placards in depots, waiting rooms and other public places warning that parcels mailed after December 1, or too late to reach New York harbor later than December 5, would not be likely to reach the front in France in time.

The enormous total of 600,000 separate Christmas parcels were shipped before the final date set, December 5, so generally did the soldiers' friends and relatives heed the appeal "ship early." The bulk of this immense tonnage sailed before the time limit expired and the unprecedented task was handled with the utmost dispatch.

The parcels, each plainly labeled "Christmas," ran as high as 100 pounds in weight, but none was rejected on account of size. A special organization of army men and equipment opened and inspected at the Hoboken piers every parcel not passed upon at the originating postoffice. An expert crew manufactured boxes and repacked securely every parcel that arrived in damaged condition. Small packages were placed inside of large wooden cases before being stowed away in the holds of the ships.

The 600,000 parcels give assurance that the "Sammies" will be magnificently remembered Christmas morning, wherever they happen to be on foreign soil.

EFFECT OF CURTAILING PASSENGER SERVICE

Saves Men, Coal and Locomotives for the More Important Freight.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Reports just compiled show that since the beginning of the war the railroads in the fifteen states of the central military department have made reductions in passenger service aggregating 10,567,636 train-miles per annum.

By thus decreasing the passenger service the railroads in this territory have effected a saving per annum of 1,176,085 tons of coal, 369 locomotives, 1,941 men and 203,839 barrels of oil.

The reductions in passenger service which have been made by all the railroads in the United States amount to over 25,000,000 train-miles per year," said R. H. Ashton, chairman of the central department committee of the railroads' war board. "These reductions are made solely to enable the railroads to handle the freight service deemed more necessary for the country's welfare, with the one great object of winning the war."

"Because of different conditions prevailing it has not been necessary to make as extensive reductions in passenger train service in western and eastern territory. Passenger traffic never was so heavy as it is now and the service must be maintained to the fullest extent possible. However, should war conditions create an emergency requiring further reductions in passenger service we are fully confident that the American public will cheerfully co-operate in our aim to do what is best for the nation."

The derailment of one of the big L-1 engines on the incoming track at the Crestline round house and the derailment of another engine, at turn-table blocked entrance and exit to that building thirteen hours last night and derelict work at the plant. To "help out" until the shop "catches up" with the work, Master Mechanic E. E. Griest sent about twenty machinists, helpers and laborers to Crestline this morning. The derailment at the round house turn-table was due to a heavy box which prevailed at the hour. The men from this city will probably remain at Crestline two or three days.

A post card from Sergeant Ross Parnin indicates that that soldier has been advanced in rank within the past week or two. The card was directed to Foreman Russ Harroff, of the induction motor and belt alternator test department of the General Electric works. Before enlisting in the army he was a tester at the General Electric works. Ross Parnin is a son of District Passenger Agent F. P. Parnin, of the Nickel Plate.

COLD DELAYS TRAFFIC.

All Passenger Trains Run Late and Freights Split in Two.

On none of the steam lines running into Fort Wayne was there any trouble from drifting snow, but the intense cold demoralized train schedules. All passenger trains were from one to five hours late and freight trains were cut in two, leaving terminals with fourteen to sixteen cars, where ordinarily there should have been three times that number. Even with this reduced tonnage it was impossible to get the freight trains over the lines on schedule time. So far, however, no serious accidents have been reported, but trainmen relate harrowing tales of suffering from cold. It is hoped the weather will moderate before any serious congestion results.

ONLY TWO PUT UP SCORE.

Because of the disagreeable character of the weather Saturday night, the attendance at the indoor target practice of the Fort Wayne Rifle and Revolver company was light. Eight or ten marksmen were there, but only two made scores considered worthy of notice. G. Bente scored 185 and O. E. Archibald scored 183. No record was made of the work of the others.

TWO MEN INJURED.

G. Howett, a car repairman under General Foreman H. U. Diem, at the east car shop, will be off duty a few days as a result of falling and injuring one of his elbows. F. E. Crull, a machinist's helper, working at night, had one of his eyes painfully injured early Saturday morning by a piece of steel lodging in it. He will be off duty a few days.

TESTED HEATING CAPACITY.

The severe cold weather, coming unexpectedly and on Monday, after the offices had been closed a day, severely tested the heating capacity of some. At one office the cold was severe early in the day and the clerks and stenographers kept close to the radiators. One stenographer worked with kid gloves on her hands.

After a two weeks' illness Z. Ake has resumed his duties with Foreman S. A. Bickell, of the tin shop at the General Electric works. Henry Onstadi, also a tinner, is off duty on account of sickness.

called to Pittsburgh on account of the serious sickness of his sister residing in that city.

A party of Nickel Plate officials were out on the Chicago division Friday, calling upon agents and patrons of the road. They stopped at nearly every station. Among the party were Supt. Ogden Pierce, Traveling Passenger Agent G. F. Brew, District Passenger Agent Frank P. Parnin, Assistant General Freight Agent J. P. Hayes, Contracting Freight Agent E. W. Place and F. E. Smith, chief clerk in the office of Supt. Pierce.

A SPLENDID EXHIBIT.

During the present week the banks and trust companies of Fort Wayne will effect a distribution among the people of this city of almost six hundred thousand dollars. This great sum of money represents the Christmas fund savings of the people for the past year. Considered wholly by itself this is a splendid exhibit of thrift. It is much larger than the distribution made a year ago.

When, however, we take into account the circumstances under which these Christmas savings funds have been kept up during the past six months the merit of the achievement takes on a new significance. The Christmas accounts in the financial institutions have been maintained despite the numerous calls made upon the people for their money in activities that relate to the war. Two great drives for the sale of Liberty bonds took literally millions of the small surpluses of the people of this city. Funds for the work of the Red Cross, for the Y. M. C. A., for the Y. W. C. A., for the Knights of Columbus and other patriotic concerns have taken many thousands of dollars. These drains on local resources are unlike Liberty bond subscriptions in the respect that they are pure donations—money given freely out of hand that will not come back. The Liberty bonds represent investments.

The Christmas funds also are investments. While the idea is primarily to save money against the demand that Christmas makes upon everybody, not all of the money saved in that way is in every case expended. Some of it is saved to go into the fund for the year ahead or put to other useful purpose. In any event, the money is saved through the year and it is in hand for such ends as it best can serve. And now, viewing the great aggregate of these savings through this year that has been a hard one for everybody by reason of the rising costs of living and the calls made so frequently for money to aid in the war, the fact of $570,000 in Christmas funds to be distributed this week speaks a fine encomium upon the thrift of the thousands of people who will share in the distribution. It tells of diligence in labor, of economy in living and sturdy purpose in saving. These virtues all go together and those who have them associated strongly with their habits of life are sure to get on well, living comfortably and decently and putting something by for an independent future.

The financial institutions of Fort Wayne have rendered an inestimable service in promoting these Christmas savings funds. While it is not wholly an unselfish labor or one without profit to themselves, it can stand under no criticisms or disparagements on that account. They are teaching thrift, promoting economy of a rational sort and schooling the people not only in the methods but the habits of saving.

It is interesting to recall that last year Fort Wayne's Christmas savings accounts greatly exceeded the total in Indianapolis, a city three times the size of Fort Wayne, and more than doubled the aggregate in Grand Rapids, with fifty thousand more people than this. Fort Wayne shows, we believe, as large a per capita of Christmas savings as any city in the country. That makes a sound argument and offers a powerful testimony in respect of the industry and thrift of this community.

AN EARLY LESSON.

ing to effect a saving of their coal probably today appreciate not only the counsel they got but their own wisdom in taking it. They now have doubtless enough coal to see them comfortably through the bitter rigors of this sub-zero spell when coal cannot be saved.

The advent of hard weather has come weeks earlier than it usually arrives and if the bitterness of it is felt to be too soon, there is at least the advantage of getting the lesson of fuel conservation in good time. The winter has only begun. We have ahead of us three months during which no degree of frost need be unexpected or cause any surprise. The present severities will pass and will have milder weather. And when we do get relief it will be scarcely necessary for constant preaching of conservation. Those who have profited from good counsels given in season will know how to value the benefit of economy and those who did not and have suffered in this visitation of extreme cold will not be disposed to further negligence.

There are many, of course, whose shortage of fuel is not the consequence of any fault of their own. For weeks fuel has been difficult to obtain and those who had been unable during the summer and early fall to get coal stored in their bins have had to make the best of a situation that is bad and that they had no part in creating. But those who with a few tons in hand made the coming of chill weather the occasion for overheating their homes, as most Americans are wont to do, and now find themselves short of coal, as many of them are, must realize that the fuel famine is no myth.

No wise person will attempt to disguise the situation in his own view. The country is short of coal. The condition is general and in many communities is much worse than it has been or is likely to be in Fort Wayne. There must be saving of fuel when the weather is such as to permit a saving. When the mercury goes down to six or eight or ten degrees below zero there cannot be any economy. Frost must be fought away from the home with fire and plenty of fire. The less fire there is in milder weather the more there can be when the northern rigors grip.

THE FIRST NAVAL DISASTER.

The loss of the American destroyer Jacob Jones and the drowning of above three-score of her crew marks at once the first distinct triumph of the German submarines over one of our naval vessels and the first real disaster of the war to be suffered by our naval forces.

It is bad enough, but it might have been much worse, and it answers well to remind us all that we cannot carry on war either on land or on sea without paying war's price. These blows come now sharp and with shock. We are not yet fairly into the great conflict and the first losses of war inflicted upon us strike in deep. They must prepare us for the heavier blows and the greater losses that are to come when we have gone well into the struggle.

There is something in the loss of the Jacob Jones to remind us that the American navy has so far had good fortune in the war. Since last May, American naval ships have been taking a highly active part in the campaign against the kaiser's U-boats. For some six months we have been sending troops abroad and now have in France forces variously estimated to number from a quarter to a half million men. The navy has convoyed the transports and supply ships of this large force and has performed with such vigilance and skill as to permit the safe arrival of every troopship at a port of disembarkation without the loss of a man. That is an achievement that the sinking of one destroyer does very little to offset to the kaiser's account.

Moreover, the American destroyers have had a very large part in defeating the ruthlessness of the kaiser's submarine campaign. They have won the praise of the British admiralty for their effectiveness and if the whole truth could be prudently made known the people of this country would understand how much of a balance of war lies against the kaiser.

We must expect losses and prepare ourselves for them. We are no more to be thought immune in the war than are other nations. In common all who go into war must pay the tolls. We are beginning to pay ours and increasingly will have to pay.

The Siberian republic set up by the soldiers and others who have no taste for the Lenines and Trozkys and agitators of their ilk is the better bet. They have the grub and most of the money. Not even a government that launches itself on the proposition to repudiate public debts and divide property will long keep afloat on a ship of state that has only a vacuum in its hold.

That congress may do things further to the discomfort of John Barleycorn will not greatly excite that once amiable gentleman. He is probably by this time quite reconciled to the worse.

This is the brand of weather that vindicates fuel conservation, and makes the earlier prophet of calamity not without honor even in his own country.

INSTRUCTIONS TO A NOVICE.

To write—know anything you write so well. That you may never have to gape at how Or why. To know the "anything" know God, And failure is a useless word—chanceless. But, if you know not Him I cannot guess How you may chance to happen on a thought, Create and ripen it on printed page!

Suppose the sunset for a perfect theme. Who mixed the colors? Set the canvas there? There is no sunset if there be no paints. No picture can there be except be found A background stretched and artist hand laid on. Or, at the best, if these poor reasons fail, The paints alone were useless canvases, And canvas lacking presence to perform The act creative were as void as clean-bleached leaves.

Blown winterward by autumn winds! To think Thus beggars you your subject, does it not? And if the reasoning be logic-scant You have a feeling that it should be true— That God must live or else no sunset burn Across the skies through all Time's weary years!

If like the most of all who wearily Cudgel the "gray-compound" for thoughts on love. I would enforce the fact that God is love. And how seek One from God that is the Same, Where you deny a knowledge reasonable? This bear in mind and for your peace instruct!

Before you write, then, seek for God and find How cleverly He rules and separates Things to His purpose and end and dominates. Then with this needful done, this lesson learned— (And should you learn it well in one whole life Content be that you've nothing lost, although The writing part has been an effort long And decently and sensibly forgot— Burned into useless, wind-blown ashes white)— Attempt that which seems most impossible And dangerous as unriskened Matterhorn.

Then, when the teeth are set and purpose firm, Grind bravely on through all the lifeless night, Full sure that as your lesson has been taught, And just as plain as it has seemed to be, So near to truth your pictures have progressed, And will progress. At which time the tired world, Chary of gifts of gentleness and hope, Will grant approval or a discount, And judge world-wisely whether you have done Madonnas or (and that might suit it best) Red, clumsy, Chinese idols. But, of all, You must not hope decision for long years— The longer if Madonnas have been drawn!

Men Needed for the Aviation Corps

One of the great tasks in building up the American air service has been and is today the securing of the tens of thousands of mechanics, chauffeurs, and other skilled workmen needed in the great airbases behind the front lines in France. A force larger than the whole American army before the war is needed for this work alone, a force of skilled mechanics, rare enough at best, but doubly so amidst all the other war claims.

Popular imagination has been so centered on the airman himself as almost to exclude the other men in the service. Little thought has been given to the thousands of men on the ground who keep the engines in good order, the wires always taut, the machine gun or camera ever ready. Their work is perhaps less spectacular, but it is the foundation stone upon which all the rest is erected. For if an aviator is allowed to go out with an imperfect engine, a weakened wing, or an insufficient supply of gasoline, his mission is doomed to failure.

Already mechanics have volunteered in thousands for this vital work with such spontaneity, indeed, as to make it possible to keep a steady stream of squadrons flowing overseas. For some time now they have been busy on the other side building the airbases, establishing the repair shops, and making ready to set up the planes which will announce America's arrival over the German trenches. Various trade interests and employers' organizations also have co-operated with the government in the effort to comb out the large number of experts needed in the short time available, but, despite that, still more men are needed.

Only men especially trained are accepted at the outset in order to keep the standard as high as the necessities of the service require. Obviously, an unskilled man would be more of a hindrance than a help in the highly specialized work to be done, and might even bring about fatal results. Even a skilled mechanic himself must have special training for airplane work, many phases of which will be foreign to him at first. The ground force, therefore, must undergo instruction for the air service, just as the aviators themselves, though, naturally, the course is not so long nor so exact. The main problem is to adapt a skilled man's special abilities to the specific problems of air.

Upon acceptance into the service the men are sent at once to a large concentration center, where they are sorted out according to trades. Detachments of the various trades are then sent at once to factories or flying fields for two or three weeks' intensive work. Many of the specialized industries, such particularly as those of propeller-making, magnetos, machine guns, and wings, have thrown open their factories to the government for instruction of these men as part of their contribution to the winning of the war. Naturally, the men are thus enabled, through practical demonstration, to fit themselves very rapidly and effectively for their new work.

Upon completion of these courses the men are graduated and returned to a center where over-seas squadrons are being formed. There, in the right proportion, they are organized into complete units—no more engineers, so many tailors or cobblers for the wings, so many cabinetmakers or woodworkers for the fuselage, so many carpenters or plumbers for the airframes. Almost immediately, in all probability, the squadron will move on to a port of embarkation for transport overseas on the first available steamer.

These American mechanics will have a big part to play in the eventual allied air drive. They will be continually busy in the great airbases, doing the most delicate kind of work, mostly out of doors, often with rough-and-ready tools, requiring much ingenuity, frequently in great haste. With machines constantly coming and going to and from the air front, there will never be a time of dullness or lack of interest.

tuned and examined before it ventures out on its important work. Mechanics must go over the engine, armors the machine guns, instrument specialists the magnetos, altimeters, sight instruments, air-speed indicators, etc. Fatal cases are on record where air battles have been lost through neglect before the planes have left the air dromes.

It is on the return, however, that the principal activity is necessary. Many planes come in badly wrecked or injured, in so serious a condition, indeed, that they would be no longer serviceable without expert repairmen on hand. Ofttimes the wings are so perforated with machine-gun or anti-aircraft bullets that the most expert sail-makers, cobblers, and tailors are necessary. Or possibly the delicate woodwork of the fuselage is so damaged that only an expert cabinet or boat maker can restore it to usefulness.

It has often been estimated that the average life of a plane is but four months. That means that the whole fighting equipment must be renewed three times a year. The expense is naturally very great. It is hoped, however, in the American service to make a far better record than this.

The fulfillment of that hope rests upon the skilled men in the air drome behind the front. If their standard is high, no plane will be lost in battle through avoidable mechanical flaw, no engine will be allowed to rack itself unnecessarily, no wing or fuselage subjected to overstrain. If this work is well done, the mechanical part of the air service will be kept in perfect shape, tuned, taut, oiled, and greased for all the great strain which will come upon it.

Each air drome, besides, will be largely self-sustaining. It will have its own clerks, stenographers, chauffeurs, etc., to do the office work and keep all the supplies up to the needs; its own telephone operators and linemen, plumbers, carpenters, and bricklayers. The air service will be inspired with an esprit de corps and an individuality which will make every man in it, from the aviator, all the way through, feel a really personal pride and reward in its achievements.

This is the last week in which men of the draft age may volunteer as enlisted men in the air service. After noon on Saturday, Dec. 15, no man between 19 and 31 may enter any branch of the army until actually summoned by the government. Men of that classification who wish to enter the service should apply in person to the nearest recruiting office before Saturday, giving their trade, a letter from their employer, and their preference for service in the aviation section. Men over the draft age and not over 40 should send their applications direct to the Volunteer Department, 119 D Street N.E., Washington, with full details of their work.

THE I. W. W. MENACE.

(Atlantic Monthly.)

The characteristic of the I. W. W. movement most worthy of serious consideration is the decay of the ideals of thrift and industry. To this can be added, in place of the old-time traditional loyalty to the employer, a sustained antagonism to him. The casual laborer of the west drifts away from his job without reflection as to the effect of this on the welfare of the employer; he feels little interest in the quality of workmanship, and is always, not only a potential striker, but ready to take up political or legal war against the employing class.

This sullen hostility has been steadily growing in the last ten years. It is not as melodramatic as sabotage, but vastly more important. To the student it is of major importance, because it can be linked up more directly and with more accuracy to its psychological causes. In a word, it is a natural psychic outcome of a distressing anti-social labor condition. This sullen hostility develops very naturally the surface manifestation of unpatented hostility to religion and unlawful actions; but the more important characteristic is the deeper economic one of the growing unreliability and decay of the workmanlike spirit among the migratory laborers.

THE STAR OF ZION.

(Boston Transcript.)

Having captured Jaffa, the ancient Joppa, the British are freed from all difficulties of supply. They have a base, fully controlled by their fleet in the Mediterranean, which looks eastward toward Jerusalem and northward toward Damascus. The British have already gained a great political and economic advantage by their vigorous Palestine campaign. They have made the Jews of the world look to them instead of to the Germans. Mr. Balfour's prompt offer of official encouragement to the Zionist movement has aroused the enthusiasm of the Jewish race everywhere. One of its first effects has been the adhesion of the Rothschilds to the Zionist cause. Jews everywhere are falling in with it, in connection with the British advance, and accepting the British protection. With the Star of Zion on the British banners now along with the cross of the saint who was buried at Lydda, the Germans have certainly suffered a severe check in the Orient.

(Springfield Republican.)

It is but fair to recall that the Austrians in 1815 restored the lions of St. Mark which Napoleon had stolen. They kept Venice, to be sure, by the treaty of 1814, for which Byron denounced Castlereagh, but they did not harm its treasures during the long occupation or when they were finally driven out, and there might be less anxiety for the art works of Italy if Germans were not taking part in the raid. It may seem strange that a nation which has devoted so much time to art should show so little respect for the beautiful works of antiquity, but very likely the Schlemmings and Winkelmenns do not get commissions in the army. So everything portable has to go, and most of the population has fled.

Uncle Harry Explains About Pooling the Railroads

"What does 'pooling' mean, Uncle Harry?" asked Joe, looking up from the newspaper which he had been intently reading, when Uncle Harry entered the room.

"Sounds as though you had been studying the war news about the railroads," said Uncle Harry, as he walked toward the fireplace and rubbed his hands together before the blazing pooling would enable the railroads to make profits that would be unfair to the manufacturers and passengers. In those days it was believed to be the best plan to make the railroads compete with one another, that in competing they would give better service and charge lower prices for hauling freight and passengers and various and numerous restrictions were placed

You told us the other night about the great war work that the railroads are doing, but you didn't say anything about pooling," continued Joe. "I wish you'd explain it to us."

"Pooling," said Uncle Harry, "means—but suppose I explain it to you this way: We'll say there are ten railroads in the United States—there are many more than ten, of course, but we'll use ten for the example. As I said, suppose there are ten railroads in the United States, and each line is owned and operated by a separate company. Now suppose a condition arises, like the war, that makes a tremendous increase in traffic, that is, a tremendous increase in the amount of goods that must be carried as freight. Before the condition arose each of the railroad companies was operating a separate line and obeying the various laws that had been passed by the national congress and state legislatures in previous years to prevent these ten railroad companies from combining and conducting their business in ways that might be unfair to manufacturers who had to pay these railroads to carry their goods, and to passengers who have to travel on these railroads. But suppose that when this new condition, that I have spoken of, finally became so serious that only by combining and running the ten different railroads as one big system, could all the freight and the necessary passenger traffic be handled in the quickest and best possible manner."

"Then it would be sensible to combine the roads," said Jimmy.

"And that's exactly what is being done so far as cars, and locomotives and railway stations and terminals are concerned, and that combining is called 'pooling,'" said Uncle Harry. "Helen, suppose you get the dictionary and find the word 'pooling' and read the definition to us."

Greater Efficiency.

A few moments later Helen had the big book opened on the table and began reading: "Pooling—the act of uniting, or an agreement to unite, an aggregation of properties belonging to different persons, with a view to common liabilities or profits."

"But, Uncle Harry, the plan for pooling isn't to make more profits, or money, for the railroads, is it?" asked Jimmy.

"Oh, no," answered Uncle Harry. "On the contrary, the pooling plan is to give the railroads greater efficiency. When the laws to prevent pooling were passed it was thought that on the railroad companies."

"I guess the war has changed all that, hasn't it?" asked Joe.

"The war and the vast increase in freight business in recent years, together, have changed conditions completely," explained Uncle Harry. "Today it is generally believed that in war times, at least, when so much freight, and so many troops, must be transported, in the quickest possible time, it is much better to pool the railroads than to operate them as separate lines. In fact, many people believe that our country has grown so big that it would be better if all the railroads were under one management, and were operated like the postoffice department."

If Pooling Fails.

"You mean government ownership of all the railroads?" asked Helen.

"Do the railroad companies want government ownership?" asked Joe.

"Yes—and no," said Uncle Harry. "The railroad companies, speaking through their representatives, say about this: 'The war has given us the biggest and most important task we have ever undertaken. But there are laws that prevent us from combining our railway systems in ways that will enable us to handle the freight and passenger traffic most efficiently. Conditions have changed since the laws were passed. If the laws can be changed, or, if we may be permitted to operate our systems during these war times, in ways that we believe are more efficient, without being charged with violating the laws, we prefer that the railroads remain under private ownership. But we know that the war work of the country must go on, and if the railroads can't be run most efficiently under private ownership with the laws restricting various plans and rearrangements, then it would be better to have government ownership.'"

"There's one thing certain," said Joe. "Freight trains and troop trains must be kept moving as fast as possible."

"That's the point," added Uncle

Harry. "The railroad officials themselves have suggested the pooling plan. That plan is being tried with a number of the railroad companies that are handling a great deal of the war freight. If it succeeds it will be continued; if it doesn't succeed, fully, some other arrangement will have to be made. It is quite likely congress will consider passing some laws dealing with this very important problem."

NO NEED TO CONSCRIPT

If Labor Must Be Drafted During War, Industries Should Also be.

SO SAYS SECRETARY OF LABOR'S REPORT

William B. Wilson, Head of Department, Reviews Administration.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Conscription of labor, Secretary Wilson told congress in his annual report today, is not likely to be necessary for the winning of the war, but he suggests that should it become necessary for the government to conscript labor, it should at the same time conscript the industries on which they are engaged.

Unfair Proposals Unpopular.

"The department is of course aware of proposals, more popular earlier in the war than now, to settle labor disputes by coercing wage earners. But these proposals are both unfair and impracticable. They are also widely regarded, and not without reason, as unpatriotic. It is enough to say of them here that in the view of this department public sentiment cannot be expected to tolerate conscription of labor for private profit. Should industrial conscription become really necessary in order effectively to prosecute the war, a policy less likely to be considered one-sided would be desirable. It would seem—that is, if workers were to be conscripted for industrial purposes—that the working opportunities to which they were assigned to be commandeered, so as to make such workers not coerced servants of employers but employees of the government itself."

No Necessity for Conscription.

"There is, however, no reason for apprehending a necessity for any kind of labor conscription in order to settle or prevent disputes between employers and their employees which may interfere with a vigorous prosecution of the war. In every case in which responsible representatives of disconsiderately with responsible representatives of conservative labor organizations which represent their disputing employees in the spirit in which they would negotiate with business competitors, labor disputes can be settled speedily, effectively, and without friction through the mediation service of the department of labor. By simple and fair system of collective bargaining between the government, labor organizations, and business organizations all labor disputes prejudicial to an effective prosecution of the war can be promptly eliminated from war problems. Not only can this be done, but it can be done to the satisfaction of all concerned and in harmony with every patriotic purpose.

Self-Sacrifice Needed.

"Our greatest need is the spirit of self-sacrifice for the common good—a sacrifice of our pride, sacrifice of our prejudices, sacrifice of our suspicions against each other, sacrifice of our material comforts, sacrifice of our lives, if need be—to carry on unimpeded the war, the most important thing handed down to us by our fathers."

The report makes an announcement of the much discussed pay and privileges being allowed to the interned German civilians in the camps controlled by the department of labor.

"It was agreed by the department to remunerate those of the interned aliens who should perform labor of any kind in connection with the construction or management of the internment camp at the rate of $20 a month; those who served in the capacity of foreman, etc., to receive $25 a month. The interned officers, however, have been allowed to receive from any source only $10 a month and the seaman $5 a month, receipts in excess of these amounts being placed in the Postal Savings bank to the credit of the interested parties, or otherwise disposed of as desired. Purchases of clothing, etc., can be made with the funds of the interned aliens, under the direction of the inspector in charge of the internment station."

Mediation Has Succeeded.

The department's work in mediating in wage disputes enormously increased by war activities, have affected practically a million men and have been eminently successful.

"The number of labor disputes calling for government mediation increased suddenly and enormously with the beginning of the war," says the report.

"In a large number of instances the conciliators have been able not only to bring about agreement in cases of existing differences—often arising from misunderstandings—but to avert the threatened strike altogether.

"The success which has attended the department's representatives in the great majority of disputes has been most gratifying. In many instances through the efforts of the department strikes which would have involved thousands of workers engaged in great operations were quietly averted and industrial peace maintained. All this was accomplished without publicity and the consequent excitement which invariably attends industrial disturbances when heralded in the press. Great plants thus secured uninterrupted production for stated periods—some of the agreements running for a year and others for the period of the war."

Labor Has a Standing.

"Labor has discovered that it has a standing in the government machinery of its country whenever its demands are based on its industrial and constitutional rights. Employers, on the other hand, have found in the department a defender against unreasonable exaction.

"Reports now at hand indicate an impending call for not less than 150,000 skilled workers of many classes, involving over 30 mechanical trades, to serve in the various shipyards engaged in constructing vessels for the shipping board. To secure the workers necessary a centralized employment system is highly desirable if not absolutely essential. Consequently it has become necessary to establish several additional war emergency offices of the United States government and ers and agents to locate qualified workmen for the yards.

"The extraordinary demand for 'man power' on the industrial side of war preparations was responded to by the department through its U. S. employment service as soon as the demand arose. Much of the demand was found to have been influenced more by eagerness for labor at low or inadequate wages relatively to the sharp rise in living expenses than by general labor shortage. But in some places, especially in the neighborhoods of munition establishments which had been serving European war demands at enormous profits, there was a genuine scarcity of labor for less profitable forms of production. On the whole, the problem at first probably was less a problem of labor scarcity than of imperfect distribution."

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Leikauf, of Union street, are to leave tomorrow for a trip to Florida points, New Orleans and California, with the intention of remaining in the latter state the rest of the winter. On Saturday evening a few friends masked themselves, took baskets of eatables and proceeded to the Leikauf home bent on a surprise and a good time with good wishes for a safe and pleasant absence fairly falling from their lips. Mrs. Thomas DeHaven and Mrs. Otto Leykauf served the lunch.

Mrs. C. W. Heckler, of 1001 West Wayne street, gave one of the daintiest and sweetest of children's parties on Saturday afternoon for her tiny daughter, Lida, who was three years old. There were pink and white decorations with candles on the birthday cake and dainty pink and white boxes of candy. Little photographs of the birthday were given, too, so each guest went home very happy after the good time. The children present were Alma Houck, Mary Elva Challenger, Mildred Kappel, Dorothy Fisher, Jane Strassberger, Helen Dessauer, Marian Ruth Jordan, Virginia Sponhauer, Mildred and Margaret Pequinot, Wanda Miller, Grace Butler and Helen Kryder.

Williams—Hinty.

A pretty home wedding took place on Sunday at high noon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. U. T. Hinty, 2202 Thompson avenue, when their daughter, Miss Beatrice Hinty, became the bride of Mr. Elmer Williams, of West Main street. Rev. M. L. Buckley performed the ceremony in the presence of a few relatives. Mrs. Ridgway, of South Bend, an aunt of the bride, sang "O Promise Me" before the bride and groom entered the room where the marriage service was read, played the wedding march and softly all during the ceremony. The bride was dressed in white and held bride roses. Following congratulations of the company the wedding party were served a fine dinner. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. Porter, of Thompson avenue, and Rev. and Mrs. Buckley and daughter, Dorothy, from this city, and visitors from South Bend and Muncie. Mr. Williams has a responsible position at the Rolling Mills and with his bride enjoy the good opinion and have the well wishes of a host of friends. For the winter Mr. and Mrs. Williams will be at home with her parents.

Soup Stock Should Be Cooked Very Slowly

All bones, roots and materials from which the flavor is to be extracted should be cooked long and slowly. Not boiled, but simmered.

Dried beans, peas and lentils need to be soaked before cooking, the two former for twelve hours, lentils for one or two hours. This is to make them swell. These vegetables can be boiled, not simmered.

Tough or old roots and stems should be grated before using for thick soups. This makes them pass more easily through the sieve and does not wear out the wires.

All thick soups should be rubbed through a sieve with a spoon. Failing in this use a potato masher or a colander; or mash the pulp smooth with fork and spoon.

Thick soups require to be bound to make them smooth and pleasant to eat. A little flour is used in peace time; instead of this we now bind them thus: Take half an ounce of crushed tapioca, oatmeal or sage, soak it in half a pint of milk or milk and water, for one hour. Then cook the milk and tapioca very slowly till the latter swells (about half an hour); it will then be ready to add to the vegetable stock. If you

Be careful to wash all materials thoroughly; to use clean and covered pans; to add water if the liquor boils away. Avoid ready-made sauces out of bottles. Thought and practice in cookery will save work and money.

Advice to Girls About Making Many Friends

It is not always the prettiest girl or even the jolliest, who is the most popular. It is often the quiet, unpretentious girl who really makes the greatest number of friends. And when one stops to think about it, the reason for this may easily be seen.

If the quiet girl is courteous, considerate of others, friendly and has the love of small pleasures in her heart, then somehow there is sure to radiate from her a certain atmosphere which draws others to her.

You cannot expect to be happy if you are always on the outlook for unhappiness. And you cannot expect people to care for you if you are continually reminding them that you do not care for them.

If for just one week you would make up your mind to see how much happiness you could find in your way, and would find each bit of pleasure, you would find in your way, and mark down each bit of pleasure, you would find that the sum of your blessings is very large indeed.

A woman noted for her great charm was once asked how it was that she was able to draw so many people of so many different kinds to her in the bonds of friendship, and her reply was this:

That was the secret of her success. It is better to be friendly than to make friends. In other words, it is better to be worthy of friendship than merely to search for friendship.

If some day you should make up your mind to look on the world in a friendly way, and to try to be a good friend to others instead of trying to see how many friendships you can make for your own self you might be surprised to find that you are drawing people to you that you never before seemed to attract in any way.

It is a wonderful thing to have a good friend. But it is a still more wonderful thing to be a good friend. And there is nothing in the world which will so enrich life as the friendship of those who are worthy.

But one of the mistakes that girls so often make is to rush into friendships in a most reckless way, without really taking time to realize that a friendship is a very wonderful thing, and something to be cared for and cherished always.

Be friendly to those about you in an impersonal way. Then you will find, if there is really something congenial between you, that it will grow until at last it may become a bond which will draw you together and may bless your life with a wonderful relationship.

NOVELTY MUFFS FOR BOTH INSIDE AND OUT

Muffs that are not only fur on the outside, but fur on the inside are novelties, and one wonders why the trick wasn't turned ages ago. Every one knows how a silk or satin lining despairs and gives up after a single season and what a nuisance it is to send a muff in mid-winter to the fur doctor and have its internal arrangements undergo operations and readjustments. Some muffs are even made reversible, and so with a scarf lined with fur one has two sets in one, which truly is the pinnacle of economy effort.

Kolinsky undyed has a vogue of its own, and keeps the lady busy making explanations. Kolinsky is a natural born blonde, with faint cold intermingling with deeper tones. The natural color is delicate and beautiful, but blondes should beware; it is too much like their own golden halos to be convincing.

CARE OF WASHABLE KID GLOVES SERVE YOU WELL

Now that the fashion of washable kid gloves has gained popularity with us, many women are exchanging experiences as how best to wash them. Those who succeed best say that a great deal more care has to be taken than one would think. If washed on the hands they must be rubbed gently, rinsed well and pressed with a towel—not wiped—until they are pretty dry completely, but when they are almost dry, but not stiff, they should be pulled out gently till they resume their whiteness. A glove stretcher is a great help.

EVIDENCE RESULTS IN MONDAY MORNING RAID

George Williams Buys Booze on Sunday from Negro on Hugh Street.

A Hough street raid on Monday morning resulted in the arrest of Josie

Jackson on an association charge and Elmer Turner on a selling liquor without a license charge. Both are colored. The arrests resulted when George Williams, arrested Sunday evening on a drunk charge, confessed to buying "booze" at the Turner shanty. Williams was found near the Gay street overhead bridge Sunday evening with his shoes off and his coat rolled up as a pillow beneath his head. The man did not seem to mind the cold and was sleeping soundly when the wagon arrived. In police court he claimed that he had $50 when he started on his "drunk" and that he had been robbed.

Upon his evidence the Turner place was raided. Officers found a large quantity of empty bottles and a few with small quantities of liquor still in them. Either for good luck or because of inability to tell the difference, St. master Degitz included a bottle of sugar and a flask of chili sauce in his haul. Turner, the owner of the booze, is partly blind. The trio will be arraigned in police court Tuesday morning.

Arrest Coal Pickers.

Catherine Phillips and Lucile Hart, colored, arrested for picking up coal along the Wabash right-of-way, were let go. Both women pleaded extreme poverty as the cause for their actions. When arrested they were dressed in rags, but their appearance was considerably changed Monday morning, one of the women wearing an expensive pair of modish shoes.

Gets Heavy Fine.

Joe Rogers, arrested after he had driven his car along the sidewalk and over several lawns, received a fine of $50 and costs and had his automobile license revoked. The man drove his car while intoxicated, menacing the lives of a number of pedestrians.

MOTHER OF MILLION DOLLS SAYS EVERY LITTLE GIRL'S CHRISTMAS DOLLY NEEDS A PRETTY COAT AND BONNET AND SHE TELLS HOW TO MAKE THEM

BY MRS. KITTY RAUSER.

The Mother of a Million Dolls.

For all ordinary occasions Miss Doll can wear a romper and hat of pink checked or striped gingham when she goes walking; in case of a party or a formal call, here is also a pattern for a coat and bonnet made of a bit of some heavier material and bound with tape of a contrasting color.

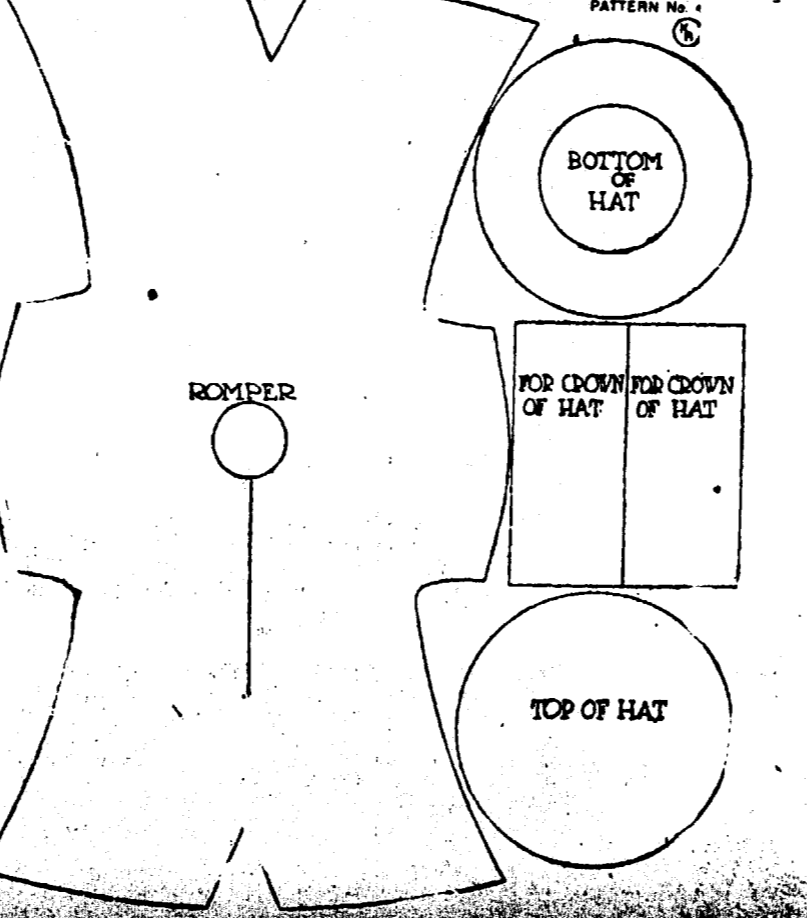

The romper and hat—use pattern No. 4. For the romper—when cut out bind the sleeves with bias tape; fold and sew the two outside seams with sleeves at one time; hem the bottom and run cord in to tie around the leg—leave ends of cord loose—and then close the lower seam last, same as for the drawers.

In making the hat sew the top and bottom together; turn right side out; sew the two pieces together for crown. Then sew on the right side of the small opening, then turn, fold over twice, sew down on the inside, and turn hat right side out again.

For coat and bonnet use pattern No. 6.

Coat—Sew shoulder seams together; sew sleeve in arm hole; then hem bottom of sleeve; sew sleeve and under arm seam at one time; bind the front pieces and neck with the colored tape; make one-half-inch hem in bottom.

Bonnet—Bind the wider side with the colored tape; sew the crown in the opposite side; pin the centers together so the stripe will run straight; hem the neck part. Make small bows of ribbon and leaving ends long enough to tie.

CANNOT SEND HOME SOLDIERS' BODIES

War Department Sends Answer to Request for Remains of Leslie C. Kayser.

That no bodies will be sent home from France during the period of the war is the decision evidenced in a letter received by the parents of Leslie C. Kayser, who was killed while in active duty. This same policy was carried out during the Spanish-American war. At that time the bodies were held until after the war, at which time corps were sent to gather the remains, place them in coffins and send them back home.

The letter from the war department reads as follows:
Office of Quartermaster General, U. S. Army, Washington, D. C.
Dec. 7, 1917.
"In reply to your letter of the 2nd instant, you are informed that the secretary of war has decided that during the continuation of the war, the remains of officers and men dying in France will not be returned to the United States for shipment to their homes, and it will, therefore, not be practicable to authorize the shipment home of the remains of Private Leslie C. Kayser, Battery D, 150th United States field artillery, who died in France November 23, 1917.

Quartermaster General, U. S. A."

AT THE PALACE.

PLEASE MR. DETECTIVE.

Bobby Woolsey and Girls in Light Comedy at Palace.

With a book that is clever without bothering anyone much to follow it, and with Bobby Woolsey a laugh compelling comedian as the starred principal, the airy fairy laugh, "Oh Please Mr. Detective" is the top attraction for the first portion of the week at the New Palace. Its xippy enough to make one forget the cold and the girls surely look warm enough to keep the coldest blooded from shivering. Ernie and Ernie, the monoped and the Dutch girl in bits of foolishness entitled three feet of comedy for an obvious reason; the sketch, "Back to Elmira," a story of everyday happenings in a factory town; Jack Dresner, a story telling kidding comedian who spends much of his time poking fun at the other artists on the bill; Hayes and Rivers a dainty dancing duo with some new ideas in steps, and Fairman and Patrick, two Irish comedians of the best school whose voices are heard in some songs of the days gone by and others of the very present moment, are others on this bill.

AT THE MAJESTIC

"A Soldier's Bride," Wednesday Evening.

The story of "A Soldier's Bride" is woven around an about the ups and downs of one of "Our Sammies" and the girl of his choice and heart. The complications that ensue furnish much scope for facetious situations and the author has taken full advantage of the opportunities offered. The locale of the different scenes afford the scenic artist a wide range and some of the most novel examples of his art are shown during the piece. The first act shows a scene at the "Vanderbilt Cup Races" and this scene has been pronounced by critics one of the most realistic scenes ever shown upon a stage.

The song features are many and of the lifting sort that will not only please the many, but also appeal to the ear of the trained musician, especially is this true of the featured number "Oh, Give Me the Right." The company employed to support Mr. Stewart in "A Soldier's Bride" numbers thirty people, all well known as musical comedy artists of high ability. "A Soldier's Bride" will be seen at the Majestic theatre Wednesday evening.

The use of glass bricks for building purposes is being adopted in many European cities. As a means of admitting light by dark hallways and basements these transparent blocks have been most satisfactory, and there has been no loss in stability of construction when they have been substituted for the ordinary clay bricks.

DR. BAKER SPEAKS AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

Notwithstanding the sudden drop of the mercury to below zero, many of the leading business men, who had attended Dr. Baker's series of lectures during the week, were present to hear his closing lecture in the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon.

Many characterized Dr. Baker's closing lecture as the most inspiring of the whole week. The lecturer received many warm congratulations, at the close of his lecture Sunday, and many invitations to return. There was enough of the evangelistic element in the lecture to cause some of the members of the church to ask Dr. Baker if he could not return and give a series of evangelistic sermons. He promised that he would be glad to do so, at his very first opportunity, and said that there was nothing that he enjoyed more than to conduct evangelistic services. He has had great success along this line as well as on the lecture platform.

Dr. Baker inspires his audience by his whole-hearted and contagious enthusiasm. He moves and sways his hearers by the tenderness of his emotional appeals. His voice has a tremendous range. It is now low and full of emotion as he tells some pathetic story; and, now, he fills the vast auditorium as his voice moves in sympathy and in harmony with his eloquent flights of imagination, which gives variety and contrast to his delivery throughout his lecture.

Dr. Baker read, as the background of his lecture, the description of Isaiah's vision of Jehovah in the temple.

"At the time of the national crisis in Israel, it was essential that some prophet of the nation have a vision of God. At the time of this international crisis, it is essential that the Christian nations of the world have a new vision of God, and that they get a true conception of God's purpose with the race and of his relation to the world," said Dr. Baker.

"At the time of this world crisis it is essential that the Christian nations of the world be called to war. It is also essential that the Christian nations of the world be called before nations of God in repentance, supplication and prayer, that the cause of freedom and of liberty and of humanity may triumph and that the highest ideals of the race may prevail, and be conserved and perpetuated into the far distant future."

World Malady Sin.
Dr. Baker characterized the world malady as sin, a sinful force, or influence of power, moving in and through the whole human race.

The pulpit is drifting the lecturer avers.
"The American pulpit, nay, may I not say that the world pulpit is drifting far away from one of the fundamental gospel truths, whenever it fails to give due emphasis to the awfulness of sin in the sight of God, and the terrible retribution that comes upon the sinner."

"A few years ago, there was a superficial optimism preached from the pulpit, circulated through the press and reiterated on the platform, saying that man was on his way to glory passing on by the mere current of affairs, to the eternal haven of rest. Where now is that superficial optimism when the nations of the world are engaged in deadly conflict, and when humanity is struggling against itself? A soothing gospel this! But this kind of gospel can never reform human society. It can never elevate and ennoble the ethics of man; it can never redeem human souls. Every great reformer has been a man who has dared to look the fact of sin and the problem of evil square in the face."

Where the Antidote?
"Where shall we find the antidote for this world malady, for this subtle influence, or force or sin, which has touched and contaminated the whole human race? It can certainly not be found in man; for he himself is the victim of sin's poisonous bite. It cannot be found in any man's political devices, or in any of his ethical codes, or in any of his systems of theology or science or philosophy; nor yet in any of his church creeds. It can be found only in the person and the spirit of Jesus Christ, the crucified and risen Son of God. When we accept Him and follow His example and obey His Commandments, there will be no more trouble between man and man, no more agitation and social discontent, no more wars and rumors of wars. For Jesus loved His neighbors as himself. That is what the nations of the world need today, love for their neighbor. With this spirit of sacrifice, of forgiveness, of helpfulness and of love, which characterized Jesus Christ, in universal operation, war would be impossible."

Were There Ever Such Wonderful Toys Before!

Yankee domination over circumstances has produced this year so many better things that the European-made toy of moderate price is now a thing of the past.

Artists, inventors and manufacturers are now turning out some of the best toys that ever amused young America. Mothers and fathers on the search for toys new and interesting will find in the basement a wonderful assortment.

Dolls--Big and Little

The character dolls, with their varying expressions, are perhaps the most fascinating. Of course, the old favorites are here, too, with their wavy hair and rosy cheeks, both dressed and undressed.

And doll buggies, go-carts and beautiful willow carriages, in all sizes. We advise early selections on these, while the stock is large.

Toys That "Go"

The first thing in the Toy Department that greets the eye is the display of mechanical toys. Here are the Boy Ranger Machine Guns, the interesting Battleships, Hook and Ladder Carts and Fire Engines and Trolley Cars. Sandy Andy, the ever fascinating sand toy, is here also in two sizes at 69c and $1.00, and many other novel things of interest to young and old alike.

Along with the mechanical toys are the joys of outdoor playtime—the wheelbarrows, automobiles, kiddie kars and wagons, and for the little toddlers the chimes on stick, which tinkle when they're rolled along.

Games at 25c

Embroidery Letters, Paint and Stencils, Cooking School, Sambo, Jack Straws, Soldiers' Battle Game, Ring the Pin.

Instructive and Constructive Toys for Boys of All Ages

The most popular of all instructive games is Meccano, which is here in various sizes and priced outfits. Meccano is more than a toy or game, although it entertains as well as instructs. For the boy of a mechanical turn of mind nothing would give greater delight than a Meccano outfit.

FEARFUL BLOW TO BARLEYCORN

United States Supreme Court Gives a Decision Holding State Has Right to Make Bone-Dry Law and Forbid Citizen to Have Liquor.

Washington, Dec. 10.—With a decision upholding the Idaho prohibition law the supreme court today gave an opinion which may be one of the most far-reaching victories for "bone dry" prohibition yet recorded. It was held that a citizen has no constitutional right to possess liquors for his personal use if a state wishes to forbid it.

Justice McReynolds, who gave the court's opinion, held that a state has power absolutely to prohibit manufacture, gift, purchase, sale or transportation of intoxicating liquors within its borders without violating the constitution.

"We further think," he added, "it clearly follows from our numerous decisions upholding prohibition legislation that the right to hold intoxicating liquors for personal use is not one of those fundamental privileges of a citizen of the United States which no state may abridge. A contrary view would be incompatible with the undoubted power to prevent manufacture, gift, sale, purchase or transportation of such articles—the only feasible ways of getting them. An assured right of possession would necessarily imply some adequate method to obtain it, subject to destruction at the will of the state."

SON OF U. S. CONSUL SUED FOR DIVORCE

Case of Gertrude M. Canada vs. Rayman L. to be Heard in Local Court.

Rayman L. Canada, son of W. W. Canada, United States consul to Vera Cruz, Mexico, has been made defendant in a divorce suit filed in the superior court in this city by Gertrude M. Canada. The suit was filed some time ago, but the prominence of the defendant was not known until a few days ago. The couple formerly lived at Winchester, Ind., where the plaintiff is more familiarly known by the name of Mary, rather than Gertrude, and the defendant by the name of Lance, rather than by Rayman.

Mrs. Canada charges her husband with desertion. She came to Fort Wayne some months ago from Winchester to establish her residence here for the length of time required by law. Depositions of two prominent Winchester residents were filed Saturday in the case, setting forth that the plaintiff has been a resident of Indiana almost her entire life.

After leaving his wife and little son, it is said that Canada went to Mexico, where he enlisted as an officer in Carranza's army and participated in a number of battles against Villa and his followers. He is said now to be in the United States army. His father, the Hon. W. W. Canada, has been consul to Vera Cruz since the administration of President Benjamin Harrison. He gained considerable prominence, it was recalled, during the invasion of Vera Cruz by the United States bluejackets.

Six Weeks Long Enough. Charging her husband with habitual drunkenness, Ruth McDonald, through her attorney, Hans C. Meland, has filed suit in the superior court asking for a divorce from Truman C. McDonald. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald were married on October 20, 1917, and lived together six weeks, when they separated.

Asks for $1,500 Alimony. Suit for divorce and alimony in the sum of $1,500 has been filed by Frances C. Delancy, through her attorney, Hans C. Meland, against Joseph E. Delancy. Mrs. Delancy alleges her husband deserted her three years ago without cause or provocation. He is now living in Michigan. She says that her husband owns real estate and that by disposing of the same the alimony she asks can easily be paid.

ASK WAR DEPARTMENT TO EXTEND FURLOUGH

The city fire department has wired to the adjutant general asking that Robert Gaskill, now a lieutenant in the United States army, but formerly superintendent of police and fire alarms, be permitted to remain in Fort Wayne at least three weeks during the absence of Charles Winbaugh. Mr. Gaskill gave up his position in this city to enter the second officers' training camp and was succeeded by Charles Winbaugh. A child in the Winbaugh family recently took ill with smallpox and Mr. Winbaugh also contracted the disease and was moved to the isolation hospital.

Lieutenant Gaskill's leave of absence is until December 14, but an urgent plea for a week's extension has been forwarded. The need of a man in Winbaugh's place while he is unable to work was demonstrated Sunday evening when the fire alarm system was out of commission for a period of time.

Reception for New Members.

A reception for new members into the Young Ladies' sodality and the solemn closing of the young ladies' retreat featured the services at St. Patrick's church Sunday evening. Rev. Joseph E. Delancy, rector of St. Patrick's, was celebrant; Very Rev. James J. French, O. S. C., of Notre Dame, deacon; Rev. Nicholas Keller, sub-deacon; and Rev. John G. Bennett, master of ceremonies. Father French, the Holy Cross minister, presided at the altar.

7 DEGREES BELOW ZERO

Mercury Hits Low Water Mark at Early Hour Monday Morning.

WILL CONTINUE UNTIL THURSDAY

Overheated Furnaces Cause Lot of Trouble for Fire Department.

No relief in sight until Wednesday or Thursday is the verdict of the local weather bureau. There is little indication of more snow, but the cold snap will not break until late Wednesday night or Thursday morning. The coldest point to be reached Monday was seven degrees below zero and temperature reached this point at an early hour in the morning.

The ill effects of the cold snap are becoming evident in various ways. Practically all trains were behind time, several of them as high as eight hours. City service was exceptionally poor on Monday morning. At an early hour a gathering of eight school teachers was to be found on the transfer corner, each and every one of whom asserted that she had been waiting for the car at least thirty minutes.

None of the city school buildings was kept up to standard heat. The high school had to be dismissed. Practically all of the pupils and teachers at the Bloomingdale school kept on their outer wraps throughout the day. Even the factories were unable to cope properly against the cold. In several of the office rooms of the General Electric company stenographers manipulated their typewriters with gloves on.

The water works department stated that although they had no reports of frozen meters up to this time, that there had been numerous complaints of frozen pipes. One housewife left the faucets turned partly on all night, only to have the water freeze at a late hour Monday morning.

Overheated furnaces caused a lot of trouble for the fire department. Of the eight runs made Saturday, Sunday and Monday all but one were from this cause. The Traction company found itself unable to heat the large new cars properly and removed most of them. Much confusion was caused on the Broadway line by this change, patrons insisting in getting on the rear end of the cars. The difficulty was removed by placing large signs on the front of the cars indicating the front entrance.

The township trustee and the associated charities headquarters report little or no dire cases of suffering from the cold. All extreme cases of poverty seem to have been taken care of. The traffic policemen did duty in shifts Monday morning, standing on their posts as long as possible and then hurrying into the nearest corner to thaw out, and then reporting back to the signposts.

The rivers, lakes and ponds about town are frozen solid, and as the freezing started on a quiet day the surfaces for the most part are as smooth as glass. A few enthusiastic skaters ventured out on Reservoir lake for a short time Sunday evening, but they were soon driven to cover by the cold.

A noteworthy fact is that for the first time in many months, people were able to see the second performance at moving picture houses without waiting in the vestibule. Practically all of the shows, even the most popular ones had seating space at any hour yesterday. The streets were exceptionally deserted throughout the day. The creaking of the snow under the heels of passersby serving to keep most residents within doors.

REGULATION BREAD IS NOW ON SALE

Henceforth Fort Wayne people will live on regulation bread. All of Fort Wayne bakeries using more than ten barrels of flour per month are now under federal control. The regulation bread which will henceforth appear at all retailers differs in some respect from the former bread, but is, nevertheless, still wheat bread, and must not be eaten on wheatless day. A distinctive difference will be noticed in the hardness of the crust. This is due to the small amount of shortening used and does not indicate that the bread is stale. The new bread will be somewhat cheaper than former loaves.

NEW DEPOT OPENED.

The new depot of the Fort Wayne-Decatur Traction company has been opened at Decatur. The new freight depot will not be completed for a few weeks.

Word has been received from national headquarters to this effect, and the support of all Allen county residents requested.

MANY FIRE ALARMS DURING ZERO WEATHER

Stove Overturned in the Home of Charles Twin Sunday.

The fire department answered four calls Saturday and Sunday. None of the fires, however, were serious, and the resulting damage was small. A call from the Alter cigar store sent the department and the police patrol to the building at 113 East Main street Monday morning. An overheated furnace had set fire to a heap of rubbish, causing no damage.

The home of Charles Irvin, in Glendale addition, was threatened with destruction and the family was given quite a scare last night when a hot-blast stove full of burning coal overturned and scattered a part of the burning fuel over the floor. Several members of the family were present and they took towels or other cloth to prevent burning of their hands, seized the stove and threw it outdoors before any damage resulted, other than a few holes in the carpets and rugs.

The entire fire alarm system of the northwest part of town was out of commission for several hours Saturday night. Lieutenant Robert Gaskill was called during the absence on account of sickness of Charles Winbaugh and located the trouble on Pearl street near Broadway. The extreme cold had caused the wires to snap.

VIC CASSIDY KILLED.

Vic Cassidy, captain of game wardens for the southern section of the state, was killed Saturday while hunting in Mississippi, according to word received by Captain George Lindemuth. BOND SALES DUE TO FOE

Secretary McAdoo Sees the Kaiser's Hand in Deals Under Bar.

GERMAN INTERESTS ARE FORCING SALES

McAdoo Declares Enemies of Nation Must be Put in Penitentiary.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Forced sales by German interests were charged with responsibility for the selling of liberty bonds below par by Secretary McAdoo in an address today before a conference of about 100 representatives of liberty loan committees from all parts of the country.

"Some persons sell these bonds for malevolent reasons," said Secretary McAdoo. "Investigations that I have made recently convince me that the hand of the Kaiser is behind certain sales. Of course, I am not in possession of evidence which would convince a jury of this assertion, but I could convince any fair-minded man of the truth of it. Thoughtless persons who think they have done their duty when they buy bonds also sell them."

These thoughtless persons can be changed to thoughtful ones if we will show them how their sales are affecting the government.

"We cannot influence the Kaiser's people but we can put them in the penitentiary, and I want to see them there, for we must deal relentlessly with all the enemies of America."

UNION LABOR IS GIVEN A BLOW

Supreme Court Decides Against Miners' and Glassworkers' Unions, Holding It Unlawful to Proselyte or Picket Non-Union Workers in Open Shop.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Right of employers to prevent labor unions from soliciting non-union employees to join the labor organizations was upheld today by the supreme court by a divided vote of 6 to 3 in test cases against the United Mine Workers of America and the American Flint Glass Workers' union.

Method of labor organizations in attempting to unionize the "open shop" workmen and bring about strikes were declared "unlawful and malicious." Injunctions previously given by Federal Judge Dayton, in West Virginia, to prevent the union activities, were sustained.

The court admitted the right of workmen to organize into unions for lawful methods, but held that the employers—the Hotchkiss Coal and Coke company and the Eagle Glass Manufacturing company, of West Virginia, were entitled to operate their plants "open shop" and to protect and injunction against the labor union were ordered for that purpose.

Three Dissenting Justices.

Justices Brandeis, Holmes and Clark dissented.

"The supreme court holds," the majority opinion held, "that the plaintiff was acting within its lawful rights in employing its men upon the terms that they should not be members of the United Mine Workers; that having established this working agreement between it and its employees with the free assent of the latter, the plaintiff is entitled to be protected in the enjoyment of the resulting status as an employer. Any other legal rights, that the fact that the employment was terminable by either party at any time made no difference, since the right of the employees to strike or to leave the work gave no right to defendants to instigate a strike, that plaintiff was and is entitled to the good will of its employees precisely as the merchant is entitled to the good will of his customers although they are under no obligations to him; that the value of the relation lies in the reasonable probability that by properly treating its employees and paying them fair wages and avoiding reasonable grounds of complaint, plaintiff will be able to retain them in its employ and to fill vacancies occurring from time to time by the employment of other men on the same terms, and that defendants could not be permitted to interfere with these rights without some justice, cause or excuse."

Right Not Absolute.

"The opinion of the court fairly concedes this right provided the objects of the union be proper and legitimate, which is assumed to be true, in a general sense, with respect to the United Mine Workers of America. But the court holds that it is erroneous to assume that this right is so absolute that it may be exercised under any circumstances and without any qualifications; that, in truth, like other rights that exist in civilized society it must always be recognized with reasonable regard for the conflicting rights of others, according to the fundamental maxim—'So use your own property as not to injure the rights of another.' Hence, assuming that the defendants were exercising the right to invite men to join, nevertheless since they had notice that plaintiff's mine was run non-union, that none of the men had a right to remain at work there after joining the union and that the observance of this agreement was of much importance and value both to plaintiff and to its men who had voluntarily made the agreement and desired to continue working under it, the defendants were under a duty to exercise care to refrain from unnecessarily injuring plaintiffs, yet they deliberately and advisedly selected that method of enlarging the union membership which would inflict injury upon plaintiff and its loyal employees, by persuading men after men to join the union and having done so to remain at work, keeping the employer in ignorance of their number and identity, until so many had joined that by stopping work in a body they could coerce the employer and the remaining miners to organize the mine and that the conduct in defendant in so doing was unlawful and malicious."

Not Lawful Because Peaceable.

"The court also declares that it is erroneous to assume that all measures which may be resorted to in efforts to unionize a mine are lawful if they are peaceable, that if they stop short of physical violence or coercion through fear of it, the court holding that any violation of plaintiff's legal rights contrived by defendants for the purpose of inflicting damage, or having thought as its necessary effect, is as plainly contrary to law as if it involved a breach of the peace, and that a combination to procure concerted breaches of contract by plaintiff's employees constituted such a violation."

Summing up the matter the court holds that the purpose of defendants in bringing about such a strike at the mine was to injure plaintiff and its employees.

ods resorted to by the organizer—the inducing of employees to unite with the union in an effort to subject the system of employment at the mine by concerted breaches of the contracts of employment known to be in force there—were unlawful and malicious methods, not to be justified as a fair exercise of the right to increase the membership of the union. And that since plaintiff was threatened with danger as the result of defendant's efforts it was entitled to be protected by a decree of the circuit court of appeals must be reversed."

Similar findings were made in the case of the Eagle Glass Manufacturing company against the Glass Workers' union and officers thereof.

WOMEN WAR WORKERS WILL WIN THEIR WAY IN SPORTS THAT MAN THOUGHT WERE ALL HIS OWN

At Top—American women skaters knitting Red Cross things for soldiers, and at bottom, an English woman in a munition worker making a "good save" at "soccer."

Woman in the war is going to do much toward changing the sports of the feminine world. They'll indulge in rougher, more strenuous games than their pre-war sisters did. They'll play more football and base ball. They'll take their brothers' places on many fields. There will be two reasons for this. One is because so many young fellows will be in the fighting ranks and there'll be that many empty niches on the diamond, gridiron and field. The other reason is that more women will be doing man's work, getting accustomed to man's way of seeking recreation from that work—throwing base balls and kicking footballs. In the accompanying picture are some English girls playing "soccer" football. You will understand from the picture—if you know "soccer"—that one fair player has just made a "good save." In plain United States language, she has dashed out from behind the goal and fallen on the ball. Both girls are members of the famous football team of the Sterling munition works, which recently won the woman's championship in a warmly contested game with the women workers of the Vickers munition plant.

Over in England women workers in war factories spend more of their recreation hours playing "men's games." Why shouldn't they? They are doing men's work. Women and girls are going to take a large share in American outdoor sports as the war goes on. And the chances are that they will continue along the same path after the war. Who knows how soon we will read in our Spalding or Beach's guide that "Susie Smith leads the batters of the National league with .418," and that "Katie Kinkle is the best pitcher in the American league with a winning percentage of .867."

MASON-HERMAN BOUT STRONG BOXING CARD

Business Men's Athletic Association Should Get Away to Good Start.

Everything possible towards the success of the initial bill of the newly organized Business Men's association of this city is being done. It shows a great deal of perseverance to be able to announce a championship match at the first contest. Matchmaker Belmer should be congratulated. There could be no more attractive card than in the match between champion "Kid" Herman, present holder of the featherweight honors, and the classy Frankie Mason of this city. There are many of the most prominent sporting men who believe that Mason is the best of the flyweight division, and if he can get away with Herman in the coming contest to be staged at the Majestic theater, Friday evening, a match will be arranged with Wilde, of England, the present champion. In getting decisions over several of the best boys of this division in America, Mason is entitled to this match. In substantiation of this it will be remembered that he has defeated the Zulu Kid and Johnny Coulton, both top-notchers. While "Kid" Herman cannot take Mason's honors from him, because the coming match is at featherweight limits, Mason, according to competent judges, stands a good chance of winning the featherweight championship. It is almost certain that those who attend the contest Friday night will see a boxing bout far excellence. Both boys are past masters of the art of self-defense. It will be remembered that this match is for ten rounds and in this number of rounds it will be plain to see just what the chances of Mason would be against the flyweight champion Wilde. Matchmaker Belmer has arranged a most attractive program for the evening. Aside from the Herman-Mason bout there will be three other matches of men who have won considerable distinction in the "squared circle." This should be sufficient to bring out a record-breaking crowd. If the association can make a success of this first exhibition, the motive is to keep right along and match the best men of the country. It will be a battle of champions. That should be sufficient.

It was not until several weeks of strenuous practice that the selections were made. The team is made up of Ray Doerfler, forward; Henry Wehrenberg, guard; Rudy Gerhardt, forward; Albert Koenig, center; Walter Doerfler, forward and Herbert Linnemeier, guard. The first game of the season will be played with the strong Spencerville Independents Thursday night. Aside from the game with this team, Manager Trier, announces that he has arranged several other strong bookings; among the number the Concordia Seminars, of Springfield, Ill. This game will take place on New Year's day, and a game with the Bluffton Maroons, two weeks later. Seats for the opening game are now on sale at the St. Paul cigar stand, and those who have ordered season tickets may obtain them either there or at the ticket desk Tuesday evening.

FORMER RESIDENT OF GARRETT IS MURDERED

Frank Newell, for Years Conductor on Wabash, is Killed.

Peru, Ind., Dec. 10.—Frank Newell, a former well known resident of Garrett, and a former Wabash railway conductor, was murdered at Peru, where he had recently taken employment as a bartender at the George Steinmetz saloon, by J. V. White, of Logansport, who used a 44-calibre revolver, discharging three shots at his victim.

Mr. Newell, the bartender, had been employed at the place since a week ago Friday. He had just come on for duty for the evening and was putting on his apron when he was assailed. Rushing into the front door, he drew a big revolver, and using profane language demanded that the bartender pay him twenty dollars that he alleged was owing him. He no sooner made the demand than he began shooting. The bartender in the excitement made an effort to pacify the man by giving him a sum of money out of the cash register. The endeavors of the bartender seemed not to appease the man and he demanded that the money be given out of Newell's own possessions. The entire affair occurred within such brief period of time that it has been difficult for the witnesses to recollect just what happened. While placing on his apron Newell was standing towards the front end of the bar and one of the shots was sent through a pane of the office window. Another shot was fired while Newell was at the cash register and the third shot was fired through the front office window pane from the lobby. Newell having staggered from the register towards the front of the place after being mortally wounded and his assailant following towards the front from the outside of the bar.

Newell, the dead man, was 40 years of age and had been in Peru and for many years was employed in the train service of the Wabash, having been promoted to the rank of conductor

Angola, Ind., Dec. 10.—The Steuben County Council of Defense, at a recent meeting, voted to offer a reward of $100 for information leading to the conviction of any person guilty of maliciously circulating false stories concerning the various war activities in this county, including the Red Cross work, the Y. M. C. A. work, the food and fuel conservation programs, the welfare of the soldiers, or any other falsehoods which may injure the sentiment of the people in their attitude toward the war. The council was impelled to this action by the continued reports of such stories in various sections of the county, so persistently repeated that the maliciousness of the purpose cannot longer be overlooked. The council will report such persons to the federal authorities for action in the future. It will be well for all citizens to be careful about repeating any such stories, even innocently, without investigating their origin.

It is said that Mr. Smilack has long wished that his father and step-mother would come to America and has a room prepared for them in his residence on East Main street, but they delayed too long and now it is impossible. The Elder Smilack begs to know if the United States government cannot help them.

Defiance, Ohio, Dec. 10.—Mayor Edward S. Bronson, of Defiance, has vetoed the city council ordinance granting the Defiance Gas and Electric company an increase in gas rates, fearing that the funds from the gas have all

FRANK SMITH ENLISTS IN AVIATION CORPS

(Special to The Sentinel.)
Columbia City, Ind., Dec. 10.—Frank Smith, who two weeks ago Saturday left Columbia City leaving no trace of his destination, has enlisted in the aviation corps at Camp Scriven, Fla. He wrote his wife a letter from that point, telling her of his enlistment, but assigning no cause as to why he left home without warning. His wife recently filed action in the circuit court against him for support of herself and two little children, but under the government's monthly maintenance laws for soldiers' wives maintenance is now assured for Mrs. Smith.

The late Corp. Virgil G. Winebrenner, who laid down his life in France for the cause of democracy November 12 while fighting with the American troops near Verdun, was signally honored Sunday afternoon at the Merriam Christian chapel in memorial services conducted by Rev. Winebrenner, have lived there several years. The two soldier brothers, Jesse and Benjamin, were present, on furloughs granted them at Camp Shelby, Miss., by Captain Foote.

Big Stock Sale.
The largest stock sale ever cried in this county was that Friday in which $17,795 worth of high class registered Scotch shorthorn sows and bulls sold at exceptional prices with Col. John D. Perry, of Columbus, O., doing the auctioneering with the assistance of several local sale-criers. One of the heaviest buyers was Jack Buckles, of Wolfe Lake, who paid $2,000 for a fine bull, Rosewood Bacon, and $800 for a fine heifer, Miami Victor. Brampton Diamond, another fine bull, sold to Lee Lester, of Ligonier, for $1,975. C. H. Burr, of West Liberty, O., purchased fourteen head of heifers for $3,095. In all, fifty-five head of shorthorn cattle were sold, most of the buyers being from Noble county, while not a few Whitley county stock raisers purchased bulls and heifers for the purpose of forming nuclei for herds.

The first white men to visit San Francisco bay were of the expedition of Fortola, a Spanish adventurer, who became the first governor of California. Portola himself was not a member of the party which, 148 years ago, grazed upon the site of San Francisco and Oakland. The hour of discovery belongs to Father Juan Crespi and Sergeant Ortega. Gaspard de Fortola, "captain of dragons and governor of the Californias," probably never saw the bay, but his name is perpetuated as the discoverer by the annual Portola festivals in San Francisco. Sir Francis Drake came near discovering the bay in 1579, when he landed at a point thirty miles to the northwest.

Soon we may be buying shoes with a 6,000-mile guarantee, if the lessons of the war should tempt some manufacturer to introduce Esparto grass shoes in America. These are made principally in Spain and Portugal, and to some extent in the mountain districts of France. A single pair often will last twenty-five years, it is said, and a pair of Esparto shoes only ten years old may be said to have been just "broken in." This grass is of a peculiar toughness, is practically wear-proof, and makes a very comfortable shoe. The Spanish peasants fashion the fiber into a shoe that resembles a moccasin, sometimes dyed in lively tints. The sole is loosely woven, and in the course of years, sand and gravel adhere to the sole, making it as hard as leather.

American soldiers are to be paid monthly in a way which will protect United States money from the danger of being captured or sunk by the enemy. A large credit has been established in France so that each disbursing officer can draw directly on the government. The plan is particularly convenient and advantageous for the boys at the front.

Bishop Henderson, of Detroit, Mich., has issued an order that every Methodist church in his diocese shall display the Stars and Stripes for the duration of the war.

Penny Pinching Not Always True Economy

I have learned that the intelligent housewife—the woman schooled in really scientific domestic economy—no longer throws away a nickel to save a penny.

A good way to illustrate this point would be through comparison of baking powders.

Experience has taught me—and millions of other women that it doesn't pay to buy cheap baking powders. They cost a few cents less, but in the long run they are decidedly the most expensive. Because of the low grade materials employed in their manufacture they cause many bake day failures—and great loss of expensive ingredients. The housewife throws out, in wasted materials many times the amount saved on the cost of the baking powder. This is not economy, but extravagance.

True economy in baking powder demands the highest quality at the lowest price. Only baking powders that meet these demands should be used. Only baking powder that is made of the highest class ingredients so perfectly proportioned that it not only produces maximum leavening power but also preserves it.

Besides, the baking powder that meets the modern demand for economy should be economical in use—full strength—economical in cost—secured at a moderate price. The housewife should be able to effect a saving when buying—and another saving when using—and she should save materials it is used with.

That is economy in its highest form. Complete economy. The only kind of economy the housewife should attempt.

I have proved positively by exhaustive experiments and comparative tests that Calumet Baking Powder is best suited to these savings. It possesses the surety, the purity and goodness that make constant employment of utmost baking economy possible.

Bodily Housekeeping

(By Samuel Harkness, M.D.)

The subject of drinking water with meals has been misunderstood. In recent years investigation by means of X-rays, the observations of such as Cannon, Gessner, Parkes, Foster, Hawk, prove that an abundance of water taken during digestion is necessary for good bodily housekeeping. Drink plenty of water with each meal. Do not drink ice-water at any time.

If your kidneys are sick, or you suffer with indigestion or rheumatism at times, take a glass of water in the back of the neck, take Ascorbic (double strength) before meals. This can be found at any good drug store. Therefore my advice to young or old is always drink plenty of pure water. And for long life, occasionally take tablets of Ascorbic three or four times a day.

It is simply wonderful how quickly Ascorbic acts—much more potent than lithia. You will find it dissolves uric acid as water does sugar.

NAVY DOES ITS FULL DUTY SAYS DANIELS

Secretary's Annual Report Shows How It Has Been Expanded by War.

Washington, Dec. 10.—To a young officer, commanding the first flotilla of American destroyers to reach the war zone when the United States entered the world war, Secretary Daniels turns in his annual report, made public today, to find the war slogan of the naval service. Asked by the British admiral to whom he reported when his ships would be ready for work against the submarines, after the long voyage, the officer replied:

"We are ready now."

"That was not the language of boasting," Mr. Daniels says in describing the incident. "It was the prophecy and pledge of our service with those fighting in a common cause."

"During peaceful years the navy has been quietly but steadily perfecting itself to meet the time of war. Now the hour for which it has been preparing has arrived. Our sword is drawn, and no one will dispute that the blade is keen and free from rust and its temper true."

Some Things Done.

"While I may not speak in detail of the greater naval operations, it may be stated that the record is one of increasing power, of developing resourcefulness and of co-operative achievement which the American people may well survey with national pride. While the details of what we have done and how we have done it must wait until it is permissible to spread them upon public record, this summary may be given to our people:

"In the navy we have prepared for, and have met the duties of the present; we are preparing for and are confident we will be able to meet any call for greater duties, for more exacting responsibilities. The best way to secure enduring peace is to prepare unceasingly, night and day, for the winning of the war, whether it be long or short."

This we have done; this we are doing and this we will continue to do.

For the coming year, Mr. Daniels proposes a naval budget of $1,809,880, 503 which is not included in his report. In various ways, he says, it will be necessary to ask for additional funds as the season of congress proceeds. He points out, however, that appropriations for the last fiscal year totaled $1,542,732,859 for the navy and for a thirteen month period $1,905,410,930. Congress provided liberally, he says, and legislated for the navy with vision and wisdom.

War Expansion of Navy.

Striking figures contained in the report showing the war expansion of the navy include the following:

Since Jan. 1, 1917, the naval force has increased from 4,600 officers and 68,000 men to 15,000 officers and 254,000 men; the number of stations of all kinds operated by the navy has increased from 130 to 363; the number of civil employees from 35,000 to 60,000; the strength of the naval reserve from a few hundreds to 49,246 men; the average monthly expenditure from $8,000,000 to $50,000,000; the number of ships in commission from a little more than 200 to more than 1,000; the hospital corps from 1,800 to 7,000; the national naval volunteers from zero to 16,000 men; the marine corps from 344 officers and 9,921 men to 1,197 officers and 30,000 men. In addition to this and to the vast orders for material placed, the expansion of the air service and to many wholly new activities developing from war conditions, training facilities have been provided for 113,850 men exclusive of the Naval academy and other regular service schools.

For the first time, the secretary does not make public the report of the general board of the navy. His synopsis of the board's work shows that it has been of a most confidential character and the report is withheld for that reason. Mr. Daniels says. This report is the usual source of the future building program of the navy. The secretary contents himself this year, however, with recommending that the remainder of the three-year program already approved be authorized, including three battleships, one battle cruiser, three scout cruisers, nine fleet submarines and a number of auxiliary craft.

Increase of Man Power.

The secretary asks that the permanent enlisted personnel be increased to 129,000 bluejackets, 10,000 apprentice seamen, 7,000 men in the trade schools and 4,000 for the air service. For war purposes he asks that the figures be 180,000 bluejackets, 24,000 apprentices, 14,000 in trade schools and 10,000 in aviation.

Mr. Daniels again emphasizes his feeling that promotion should be made on the basis of merit throughout the navy and that the "fetters" of seniority be abandoned, "from admiral to ensign." He recommends that the selective system now be extended to the staff as well as the line. He also expresses the conviction that every candidate for admission to the naval academy should be compelled to serve a year before the mast as an enlisted man before entering the school.

The report touches on the interchange between the naval service of the allied powers and the navy have been "particularly frank and free," adding that this partnership of democratic nations will yet "insure a lasting peace." It says that when the call came, the navy supplied gunners and guns for merchant craft without an hour's delay.

The report touches on the various naval conferences attended by American officers, but adds nothing to what is known of the questions taken up or decisions reached. Throughout the lengthy document the secretary is careful to avoid any statement that might be of service to an enemy.

The secretary pays tribute to the marine corps, which has lived up to its best traditions, he says, as will be shown when the war is over. The marine regiment in France, he says, will soon be considerably augmented in its service with General Pershing's army.

Development of naval aircraft has been remarkable, the secretary says, due largely to the success of the liberty motor.

"We have an American flying boat actually flying with an American engine, which is unexcelled by any foreign craft of the type."

The secretary discloses the fact that American coast patrol stations have been authorized abroad and will be in operation next year, but gives no details.

In conclusion, Mr. Daniels pictures

the possibility of an international navy to keep the world peace. Such an agreement cannot be cherished now, he says, that all the world is at war.

"But if this condition could not be reached in time of peace," he adds, "may we not believe that it will be one of the compensations for the terrible tragedy of war?"

Ready to Help Police the Sea.

Each naval power should assign units to the international force in proportion to its wealth and population, the secretary suggests, adding:

"To such a police of the sea this country will be ready to make full contribution, and to that end the expansion that now crowds all the old and new shipbuilding resources will soon place this country in a position to furnish as many and as powerful ships as will come from any other country. It would be a lasting calamity if, when this war ends, there should linger as a burden upon a people, already heavily taxed by war, a competitive program of costly naval construction. This country will, no doubt, take its proper place in bringing about such provisions in the peace treaties as will never again constrain any nation to adapt its naval program to the program of some other nation from which there is the compelling menace of possible and unprovoked attack. Such compulsion is the very negative of natural and orderly naval development. It means the tyranny of a program dictated by apprehension rather than the free choice of a standard suggested by the national needs and supported by national ideals. An international navy, on the contrary, will make possible such naval development as such nation deems fitting for its own people. It will also serve 'the parliament of man' by providing a naval force ample enough to give validity to international decrees and strong enough to keep inviolate the peace of the world."

Stomach Trouble and Constipation.

Those who are afflicted with stomach trouble and constipation should read the following: "I have never found anything so good for stomach trouble and constipation as Chamberlain's Tablets. I have used them off and on for the past two years. They not only regulate the action of the bowels but stimulate the liver and keep one's body in a healthy condition," writes Mrs. Benjamin Hooper, Auburn, N. Y.—Advertisement.

MONT BLANC

GIVEN BLAME

Neither vessel appeared to be seriously damaged by the collision.

Saw Flames on Mont Blanc. After separating the Mont Blanc headed for one of the city piers, the Imo went on, the skipper's intention being, the crew believed to get into shallow water in order to find out exactly what damage had been done to his ship.

The seaman received their first warning of danger when they saw chemical flames leaping from the decks of the Mont Blanc. Then came the explosion. The Imo was caught in the tidal wave and riding on its crest was hurled on the rocky beach. The sailors declare that no attempt was made to leave the ship until she struck and that every man was in his place.

Captain's Head Blown Off. The captain was standing on the bridge and his head was blown off. The wheelman was at his post and his body was found in that position when the steamer was examined later. The body of the pilot, William Hayes, was found along the shore near the hulk, and it is thought he was blown from the deck. Every man above deck was killed. When the vessel struck the beach the survivors rushed up from beneath the decks and scrambled ashore. Thirty-one men escaped. Naval relief parties found them wandering about in the brush.

PLAN A HEAVY BLOW IN WEST

ever been able to mobilize in France in the past.

"This explains the success which the enemy was able to achieve in driving the British back from Cambrai. It would not do for us to minimize its importance.

"The enemy realizes that he finds himself temporarily in a singularly fortunate position and he can be counted upon to take the utmost advantage of it.

Plans Long in Preparation. "For a long time past he has been preparing his plans for just such an eventuality as would arise when Russia should enter upon negotiations for a separate peace, which has been a principal German objective ever since the battle of Tannenberg.

"We must expect that he will put these plans into execution. Thus he may have at his disposal for a time a preponderant numerical superiority in the west. He may be even able to achieve some relative advantages in the field, such as those recorded during the past week.

The magnitude of the task before us is now clear. After a long and measured by the success the enemy is still able to gain.

U. S. Must Speed Up.

"It means that we must speed up our military effort. The united nation must stand squarely behind our soldiers.

"It is not sufficient to prepare to fight; we must prepare to win. "The review also hints at an expected German thrust against the French front and says: "The number of hostile raids executed along the French front northwest of Rheims, in the Argonne, in the region of St. Quentin, in the Vosges and particularly in upper Alsace, as well as the increasing enemy artillery activity north of the Chemin des Dames, on the right bank of the Meuse in Champagne, and the salons de Champagne and upper Alsace would appear to indicate that the enemy is feeling out the French front with a view to identifying the strength of the units opposing him."

Nothing New as to Italy.

The statement describes events on the Italian front without adding to published information as to what is transpiring there or an attempt to predict the outcome of the various Austro-German thrusts. It adds significantly: "Our declaration of war against Austria associates us immediately with the struggle going on in Italy."

Discussing the armistice negotiations on the Russian front, the statement says the agreement covers the entire line "from the Baltic to the Black sea as well as the region of the Caucasus."

"The Rumanian armies," it continues, "while repudiating all attempts made by the enemy to fraternize with them, have been by force of circumstances compelled to accept the proposals for a truce."

Situation in Palestine.

Secretary Baker makes this statement as to conditions in Palestine: "The success of British operations in Palestine has had a very decided military effect throughout the Ottoman empire and much of the pressure which the German higher command had hoped to bring to bear in Mesopotamia has been relieved. In Mesopotamia the British are carrying forward their operations on the right bank of the Diale river with great success. It is interesting to record that a small Russian detachment co-operated in this engagement with the British."

DAY'S WAR SUMMARY.

sulted in the formation of a new cabinet. The fighting was confined to Lisbon and the immediate neighborhood, the government and the government troops surrendering after two days of hostilities.

British and French troops have taken over from the Italians sections of the fighting front between Lake Garda and the Adriatic. The British are stationed along the upper Piave, but the position of the French has not been disclosed. The Austro-Germans have not renewed their violent attacks on the Asiago plateau, the strong defense of the Italians apparently having forced a cessation of infantry activity to allow for the re-forming of units. There has been artillery activity between the Brenta and Piave and along the Piave, while Italian airplanes and airships have been attacking enemy camps and communications behind the lines.

On the front in France there has been no marked infantry activity and artillery action has been confined to the Cambrai and Ypres areas. Outpost encounters and raids have occurred on the Cambrai front and near Lens. A German effort to enter the French lines near Bezonvaux, Verdun region, has been repulsed by the French with considerable casualties to the enemy.

Early in November the British activity resulted in the capture of Beersheba, forty miles south of Jerusalem. Simultaneously, a coastal column became active. By Nov. 7 the city of Gaza was in their hands and the British were pursuing the Turks northward, after having inflicted casualties estimated in excess of 10,000. By this time the British invading force was up again in the neighborhood of Hebron, where the Turks were Jerusalem. Gen. Allenby, the British commander, meanwhile kept his forces near the coast in rapid motion and pushed on to Jaffa, the port of Jerusalem in mid November.

By Nov. 22 the British had pushed within five miles of Jerusalem on the northwest and on December 7 Gen. Allenby announced that he had definite possession of Hebron. Jerusalem was thus virtually cut off on all sides, but the east. Few details have come through since that date but the encircling movement, must have been carried out with considerable rapidity culminating in the surrender of the city.

In sentimental and romantic aspect the capture of Jerusalem far exceeds the fall of fable-crowned Bagdad. The modern city of Jerusalem contains about sixty thousand inhabitants and the home of pestilence, filth and fevers, but in historic interest it naturally surpasses, to the Christian world, all other places, since the days when Joshua wrested it from the hands of Jebusites to make it the capital of the Jewish race. Jerusalem has been the prize and prey of half the races of the world. It has passed successively into the hands of the Assyrians, Babylonians, Greeks, Romans, Persians, Arabs, Turks, the motley crowds of the Crusaders, finally to fall before the descendants of that Richard the Lion-Hearted, who strove in vain for its possession more than 700 years ago.

rapidly emerging from the chaos into which the city was plunged by the explosion last Thursday. The successive snow and rain storms which followed the disaster greatly hampered all efforts to alleviate the suffering of the thousands of injured and homeless people but the return of fair weather yesterday made possible more systematic work.

All relief agencies now have been co-ordinated. Enough doctors and nurses have reached the city to take care of the hospital duties. A considerable quantity of supplies already has arrived, and more are on the way, so that the danger of famine has been averted and there is ample clothing for all. These supplies must be carefully conserved however, and the authorities today were doing their best to enforce the requests published yesterday that non-residents not here on urgent business should leave the city and that others should not come here for the present.

The work of repairing the innumerable damaged buildings was well under way. Lumber, glass and other building materials are needed in great quantities.

Resume Search for Bodies.

There was a slight flurry of snow early today, but during the forenoon the skies brightened and clearing weather was indicated. Snow which covered every foot of the streets, was a frozen mass at daylight. General weather conditions, however, have been favorable and soldiers were sent early today to the burned area to begin search for hundreds of bodies in the ruins. Trains arriving from Montreal and other points brought hundreds of visitors and the general rush, despite the urgent request of Mayor Martin that people not needed stay away, added to the difficulties of handling the situation.

Rumanian forces taking in also the Russians in the Rumanian front has been agreed upon. All the conditions proposed by the Rumanians were accepted by the Germans with the exception of one prohibiting the transfer of troops to other fronts, in regard to which negotiations are still being carried on with Field Marshal von Hindenburg. On his part ducting the negotiations, was received cordially and dined by the Germans.

RUSSIA FORCED RUMANIA.

Amsterdam, Dec. 10.—The Rumanian government was forced to enter the armistice negotiations with the Germans, according to a Vienna despatch to the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin, as a result of an ultimatum from the Russian government. This threatened the withdrawal of Russian troops from the Moldavian front and the stoppage of the export of food and war material.

BRITISH GOOD WILL SPOKEN.

London, Dec. 10.—Sir George Buchanan, the British ambassador, in an interview with Russian journalists, according to a Reuter despatch from Petrograd, assured them of British sympathy for the Russian people and denied absolutely the reports that Great Britain contemplate and coercive action in the event of Russia making a separate peace. The British government, the ambassador is reported to have said, was entitled to complain of the action of the Bolshevik government in negotiating with enemy, but did not wish to induce an unwilling ally to continue to share the common effort by appealing the treaty rights.

Great Britain, he added, was ready as soon as a stable government was established, to examine with it the aims of the war and possible conditions for a just and durable peace. She wished to stand by Russia in this critical hour.

PREPARE FOR BIG CROWD FRIDAY NIGHT

Wide Interest in the Perigord Meeting at Palace Theater.

Plans are being made today to care for an overflow meeting on Friday night in case the Palace theatre proves to be too small to accommodate the crowds. The announcement that the event is free to all—first come, first served with seats—has aroused wide interest, and everyone is apparently laying aside every other engagement in order to go to the Palace to hear the story of the man who spent two and one-half years in the French trenches and who has the ability to tell the American people just what preparation they must make if the world is to be made safe for democracy.

The meeting of Friday night will mark an auspicious opening of the great Red Cross membership drive in Port Wayne. Added interest in the event comes with the announcement that George Balhe, a member of the Rotary club which has engaged the Palace for the free use of the public, has secured the appearance of Earl Cartwright, one of America's well known baritone singers, who will open the Palace program of the thrilling national songs. Mr. Cartwright has appeared in grand opera with such eminent artists as Geraldine Farrar, Mary Garden, Scheumann-Heinck, Scotti and others of equal note. For some time, he has appeared in recitals, the entire proceeds of which have been given to the Red Cross. Hence, Mr. Cartwright evinces a lively interest in the big Port Wayne event and will give his services freely.

The Friday night meeting will result in a clearer understanding of the great needs of the Red Cross and of the ease with which everyone may become an active participant in the furtherance of its work. Even the children who shall grow into the enjoyment of all that our free form of government has to provide for them, may have a part in this world-wide humanitarian organization. Parents can do no finer thing than to teach the child the meaning of the Red Cross and to see that the little ones are enrolled in its support.

Lieutenant Perigord's address which will give to the whole people the startling truths as known to a man who spent two years in the trenches in France should be heard by all. Arrangements will be made to care for at least 2,200 people at the Palace, and, of course, those who appear early will be most certain of securing a seat.

MANGLED CORPSE THAT OF BIRD SUTTENFIELD

Roommate Identifies Body Found Along Nickel Plate Tracks Late Saturday.

Joseph Lavanway Sunday afternoon identified the mangled body found along the Nickel Plate track, between Hanna and Monroe streets as that of his roommate, Bird Sutenfield, aged 37 years. The two men roomed together at 1312 East Washington street and it was while on his way from work that Sutenfield was struck by a train.

Mr. Lavanway became alarmed at the long absence of his roommate and hearing of the finding of the body he went to the Schone & Ankenbruck undertaking parlors and identified the remains as those of his missing friend. Sutenfield was in the employ of Harry L. McAfee, as teamster, and had left work at the usual hour on Saturday evening.

Surviving relatives include the mother, Mrs. Louis Sutenfield, 2020 Ebe street, Port Wayne; a brother, Benjamin Sutenfield, Courtland, N. Y.; two sisters, Mrs. M. Wilkenson, Port Wayne, and Mrs. Ora Bair, Cleveland.

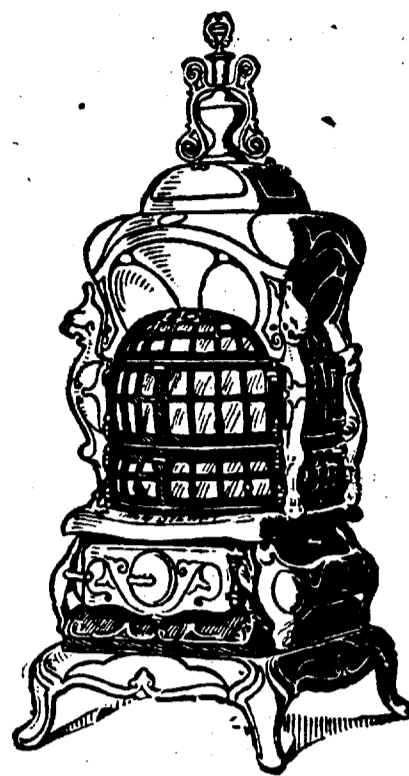

OFFICERS ELECTED.

At a meeting of the French-American society of Allen county Sunday afternoon at Painters' hall, Columbia and Barr streets, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: President, John H. Lanterier, re-elected; vice-president, August Bobay, corresponding secretary, Joseph Gerardot, re-elected; financial secretary, Frank J. Manuel, re-elected; treasurer, Frank Bobay, re-elected; trustee for three years, Constant Joly.

COLD WEATHER ACTS AS BOOST TO CORN

A Probability of Delayed Crop Movement Stimulates Prices.

Chicago, Ill., Dec. 10.—Corn prices developed some strength today as a result of cold weather which seemed likely to retard the movement of the crop. Opening prices which ranged from the same as Saturday's finish to 1/4c higher, with January, $1.20 1/4 to $1.20 3/4, and May, $1.18 1/2 to $1.18 3/4, were followed by moderate gains all around.

Oats hardened with corn. Higher quotations on hogs lifted provisions.

DULL OPENING AND A NARROW LINE OF TRADE

Wall Street Has Irregular Course, But Improvement in Some Stocks.

New York, Dec. 10.—Trading was confined to the narrowest limits at the dull opening of today's stock market. Changes were of the usual irregular character, in no important instances varying more than a fraction. A decline of 11 points in American Tobacco was the only noteworthy feature. Prices hardened generally before the end of the first half hour. Liberty Bonds were steady.

The market improved later on a moderate inquiry for steels, coppers and shipings. Leaders of those divisions gained 1 to 1 1/2 points. Specialties were sympathetically affected by the break in American tobacco, oils and related issues, yielding 1 to 2 points. Recurrent weakness developed in foreign bonds, the entire French group establishing new low records. Liberty 4s sold at 97.16 to 97.80 and the 3 1/2s at 98.48 to 98.80.

PLAN FOR CORN SHOW.

Because of the inclemency of the weather Saturday afternoon not many farmers attended the meeting called by County Agent A. J. Hutchins at his office in the court house for the purpose of making plans for the corn show to be held here December 17 to 22. However, it was decided to hold two special contests. One contest will be for the best single ear of corn and another for the best shelling demonstration. Prices will be awarded on Friday afternoon at 2 p. m. and all corn must be in by December 15. Much interest is being taken by the farmers of the county in the forthcoming show which promises to be a big success.

LOCAL MARKETS

HIGH WATER MARK IN HAY PRICES REACHED

Cold Weather Keeps Farmers at Home—No Corn or Oats Received.

The extremely cold weather hit the local markets hard Monday and as a result there was little "doing." Three loads of hay were the extent of the day's activities at the city scales. No corn nor oats were brought to town. As a matter of fact no corn or oats have been received since Friday.

The farmers bringing in the three loads of hay were well paid for their trouble, the top price being $27.50 a ton, the highest in many months.

Potato prices hold steady, but receipts are of first quality and damage from frost, even in the slightest degree, has practically disappeared.

Dealers say they have never known a year when rabbit offerings have been so scant. The chief reason for this is, they say, that the farmer hunter is eating nearly all the game he has time to hunt or ammunition to shoot.

Greenstuffs of all kinds, including cabbage, lettuce, celery, cauliflower, peppers, Brussels sprouts, eggplant, etc., now coming from the south or grown in hothouses in Indiana, are holding firmer prices due to the cold wave, which has made shipping more precarious. Dealers say they are looking for advances on lettuce and celery early next week.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN THE FRONT LINE TRENCHES!
FACE TO FACE WITH THE BOCHES!

These two husky Sammies face to face with the Boches at a listening post right out on the edge of No Man's Land are watching with interest the movements of French airplanes which are scouting over the Boches' lines. Note that the rifle is ready for quick use, too. "On the western front in France" is the only location the government will permit just yet.

"ARE WE DOWNHEARTED? NO!"

And here is another group of Pershing's Sammies holding a front line trench separated from the German's only by a narrow, shell-pocket strip. Worried? No! You wouldn't call them "downhearted" after glancing at those guns, would you? These are some of the Sammies who have been in action several times, and possibly even this small group includes some of those who were the first American soldiers to lay down their lives on the battlefield for the cause of freedom.

Frank McCrary, and seven grandchildren, all of Fort Wayne. A daughter, Mabel, died several years ago.
Funeral from Eel River church Wednesday at 11 o'clock and internment in Eel River cemetery.

Russia Abolishes Private Ownership of Land

BOLSHEVIKI CROWD HOLDS GOVERNMENT OWNS ALL REALTY

Proclaimed Property of State for Use of the People in Common.

RUSSIA IS ON VERGE OF REAL CIVIL WAR

London, Sunday, Dec. 9.—The Russian government wireless today transmits a proclamation signed by M. Kolegalev, "Peoples' Commissary of Agriculture," declaring all lands, with their living and slaughtered stock, and buildings and the produce of the lands shall henceforth be national property under the management of the land committees. Under this proclamation private property in land is declared abolished and the houses of the land owners are to be used as schools, hospitals, shelters and theaters. The proclamation announces that instructions of the transfer will be issued shortly. It concludes:

"Therefore the destruction and dilapidation of estates, buildings, stocks and produce is to the great detriment of the peasant laborers themselves, and all measures should be taken to guard the integrity of the properties in the interest of the laboring people."

ON VERGE OF CIVIL WAR.

London, Dec. 10.—The counter revolution in southern Russia under General Kaledines, Duffoff and Korniloff apparently is aimed at seizing the authority in that region and in cutting off supplies from Siberia.

AMERICAN GIRL MADE BRIDE OF VON BERNSTORFF

Berlin, Saturday, Dec. 8.—Via London, Dec. 10.—The marriage here today of Count Christian Günther von Bernstorff, son of the Ambassador to the United States, and Miss Margaret Vivian Burton Thompson, of Burlington, N. J., is reported by the Berlin newspapers.

Count Christian Günther von Bernstorff is 26 years old. He visited the United States with his father in 1911 and in June, 1913, he entered the offices of Speyer & Co., New York bankers, as a junior clerk. He spent about a year in the banking diplomatic service. In February, 1915, the iron cross was conferred upon him and at Christmas time that year Count Christian was reported ill in Berlin.

According to the proclamation of the Bolsheviki government General Kaledines' forces are menacing Ekaterinoslav, Kharkov and Moscow. In the province of Erenburg the Bolsheviki have been overthrown by General Duffoff.

Tobolsk, an important railway center in northeastern Oranburg, is besieged, by General Duffoff's troops. In the Caucasus General Korniloff is attacking Tchenerov and Ingush. The proclamation says the "enemy of the people" have undertaken a last attempt to destroy the cause of peace and says the constitutional democratic party is providing the means for the revolt. The proclamation reads:

"While representatives of the congress of workmen and soldiers' delegates and the congress of peasants' deputies were negotiating to secure an honorable peace for the exhausted country, the enemies of the people, the imperialists, the land owners, the bankers and their allies, the Cossack generals, have undertaken a final attempt to destroy the cause of peace, wrested the power from the hands of the soldiers and workmen and the land from the peasants and to compel soldiers, sailors and Cossacks to shed their blood for the benefit of the Russian and allied imperialists."

"General Kaledines in the Don and General Duffoff in the Ural provinces have raised the flag of revolt. The constitutional democratic party is providing the necessary means to enable them to carry on the fight against the people. The Bodziankos, the Milukoffs, the Gutchkoffs and the Konovaloffs seek to regain power and with the aid of the Kaledines, the Korniloffs and the Duffoffs are endeavoring to turn the Cossack laborers into an instrument for achieving their criminal aims."

"General Kaledines has declared a state of war in the Don region, is hindering the supply of bread to the front and collecting his forces, thus menacing Ekaterinoslav, Kharkov and Moscow."

CUT OFF FOOD SUPPLIES.

Petrograd, Sunday, Dec. 9.—The provisional government of Siberia has ordered the stoppage of food supplies for European Russia, particularly Petrograd, on the ground that they may reach Germany.

ROMANIA GETS ARMISTICE.

Jassy, Rumania, Saturday, Dec. 8.—It is understood that an armistice for three months between the German and

DAY'S WAR SUMMARY.

(By the Associated Press.) Jerusalem, the Holy City of the Christian religion, for more than 1,200 years in Moslem hands, has finally been wrested from the Turk. It has surrendered after being surrounded by the victorious British Palestine army.

In northern Italy, the Austro-German efforts to penetrate the Italian mountain barrier have been suspended, but apparently the attempt to break the Italian line is being renewed along the Piave. Berlin reports a success near the mouth of the river, in which the bridgehead of Sile, at the edge of the inundated district, about eight miles from the Adriatic and three miles west of the main river bed, was captured.

Reports from the Italian front have minimized the danger of any movement by the Austro-German invaders along this section of the river and apparently the Italian forces at this point was not an important one as the capture of only 200 prisoners, is claimed by the German staff. Official announcement is made by Berlin of the signing of an armistice, with the Russian-Rumanian armies on the Rumanian front from the agreement embracing the line from the Dniester to the mouth of the Danube.

Civil warfare has broken out in Russia and the Bolsheviki regime apparently will be put to the test. The Petrograd government has issued a proclamation announcing that General Kaledines, Korniloff and Duffoff have begun a revolt in southeastern European Russia.

The Bolsheviki announcement declares that the constitutional democrats are assisting the hetman of the Don Cossacks and his fellow military leaders who are said to aim at cutting off food supplies and in seizing power from the Black sea to the Ural mountains, as well as in the Caucasus. Bolsheviki troops have been ordered to take the field against the counter revolutionists.

It had not been unexpected in the European capitals that a strong effort would be made to oust the Bolsheviki from power. For some time Gen. Kaledines has been gathering his forces in the Don region, where he has been joined by former army officers and leaders of the old provisional government and has been reported to hold most of Russia's food and he probably controls the Don coal region and a great portion of the grain growing territory around the Black and Caspian seas.

The seal sales for the season thus far shows an increase over the same period of last year of 86,612.

"Fine," said Chief Dispenser Miss Jane Meriwether this morning, "but it is too early to be weary in well doing. TB keeps fighting all the time and the way to make defense against it effectively is to provide the money to fight it. There are twenty-one days yet but every letter and every package that is committed to the mail or to express companies now will look better if it shows that the sender is living the Christmas spirit already—with Christmas still fifteen days away."

Dr. Evans in the Chicago Tribune yesterday reported that in one camp of soldiers the more thorough examination for tuberculosis made by the army examiners disclosed TB in 400 men who had no idea that the bug had found lodgment in their anatomy anywhere. These men were dismissed and will be a danger to their families and their environment unless they receive treatment and many may not be able to forego employment unless the local Anti-Tuberculosis society of their community finds the money through sale of seals to give them the advantage of some Rest Recovery.

In this connection Dr. Evans said: "In Chicago the number of deaths from tuberculosis per year is not larger than it was ten years ago, though the population is greater by two-thirds of a million. A moderate number of smaller cities and rural communities have begun to work on their consumption problem. Right now the Red Cross seal sale is on. In many communities the only chance of getting a tuberculosis nurse, dispensary or sanatorium, or of having a fund to care for needy consumptives, or for buying pamphlets or booklets telling what a consumptive should do, lies in the sale of Christmas seals. . . . ANOTHER VESSEL WITH MUNITIONS AFIRE IN HALIFAX

Halifax, Dec. 10.—The deck cargo of the British steamer Picton, laden with munitions, caught fire last night and only the quick and courageous work of a Halifax company of rifemen prevented another big explosion in the harbor. The men boarded the ship, threw the burning cargo overboard and checked the flames before they could spread to the holds. The vessel was taken to sea today and sunk.

Halifax, Dec. 10.—Members of the crew of the Belgian steamer Imo, assert that the French munitions steamer Mont Blanc was to blame for the collision which caused the terrible explosion last Thursday. Employees of Pickford & Black, agents of the Imo, who have been providing the crew with clothing and other comforts made public today the stories told them by the seamen.

Imo Crew's Version.
Their version of the tragedy follows: "The Imo was proceeding toward the harbor toward the sea when the Mont Blanc was seen coming toward her, apparently steaming for the Bedford basin. The French vessel was on the Dartmouth side of the narrows. She blew two blasts of the whistle, indicating that she was going to starboard. The Imo replied two blasts. The Mont Blanc turned and the crew of the Imo thought they could pass in safety, but the distance between the two vessels was too short and the Imo rammed the Mont Blanc on the starboard side."

MR. HUGHES WILL MAKE A CALL ON THE PRESIDENT

Washington, Dec. 10.—Charles E. Hughes will call on President Wilson today. It was announced at the white house that Mr. Hughes would see the president at 4 p. m. but no intimation was given as to the object of his call or whether the meeting was arranged at the instance of the president or Mr. Hughes.

Today's meeting between the two men will be the first time they have seen each other since before the last presidential election. Mr. Hughes had a case before the supreme court here, his first since he retired from the bench more than a year ago. Friends said his call at the white house was only incidental and to pay his respects.

Secretary of War Baker in Statement Says Men Have Been Massed.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Germany has massed on the western front her greatest army of the war, Secretary Baker declares in his weekly war review made public today. To meet this menace the United States must speed up its military preparations, the secretary adds, with a warning that the enemy is preparing to put into execution in France plans he has been maturing since the defeat of the Russian armies at Tannenberg early in the war. The peace negotiations with Russia have permitted the massing of men on the western front for that purpose.

Must Prepare to Win.
The united nation must stand squarely behind our soldiers," the secretary says. "It is not sufficient to prepare to fight; we must prepare to win."

The review asserts the German counter offensive on the Cambrai front has been successful in winning back less than one-third of the territory captured by Gen. Byng. The statement also notes that American engineer troops "exchanging shovels for rifles fought off the enemy side by side with the British."

The lesson of the German exhibition of strength is then taken up: "This German parrying thrust, the most powerful and successful blow aimed at the British during the past two and one-half years coming as it did immediately after the British victory in the same area serves to emphasize the reviving strength of the Germans in the west."

Great Strategic Change.

FORT NIAGARA IS GIVEN TO POLES IN WAR TRAINING

Washington, Dec. 10.—Use of the Fort Niagara, N. Y., training camp formerly used for training officers, has been given by the war department as a training camp for recruits being enlisted in the United States for the Polish army in France. Two thousand men will be trained there. Congestion of men in the Polish recruiting and the American authorities were asked for assistance by Ignace J. Paderewski, the pianist, who is active in this country in the interest of Poland.

TURKS GIVE UP THE HOLY CITY TO THE BRITISH

Twelve Centuries of Almost Unbroken
Moslem Rule in Christianity's Cradle Brought to End.

TURKS SURRENDER CITY TO ELLENBY

London, Dec. 10.—Andrew Bonar Law, chancellor of the exchequer, announced in the house of commons today that Jerusalem, after being surrounded on all sides by British troops, has surrendered.

The capture of Jerusalem by the British forces marks the end, with two brief interludes, of more than 1,200 years' possession of the seat of the Christian religion by the Mohammedans. For 673 years the Holy City has been in indisputed ownership of the Turks, the last Christian ruler of Jerusalem being the German emperor, Frederick II, whose short-lived domination lasted from 1229 to 1244.

Apart from its connection with the campaign being waged against Turkey by the British in Mesopotamia, the fall of Jerusalem was the definite collapse of the long-protracted efforts of the Turks to capture the Suez canal and invade Egypt. Almost the first move made by Turkey after her entrance into the war was a campaign against Egypt across the Great desert of the Sinai peninsula in November, 1914. A Turkish army, variously estimated at from 75,000 to 250,000 men, marched on the Suez canal and succeeded in reaching within striking distance of the great artificial waterway at several points.

For several months bitter fighting took place, the canal being defended by an Anglo-Egyptian army aided by Australians and New Zealanders and French and British forces. For the greater part of 1915 conflicting reports of the situation were heard from the belligerents, but in December of that year definite information showed that the Turks had been driven back as far as El Arish, about 85 miles east of the canal.

Another period followed in which the situation was greatly confused through the vagueness and contradictory character of the official statements, but in December, 1916, the British stormed El Arish and a few days later severely defeated the Turks at Magdhabah, about sixty miles to the south on the same front. Two weeks later the invaders had been driven out of Egypt and the British forces crossed the border into Palestine.

There had been no hint from either official or unofficial as to a British intention to undertake a definite invasion of the Holy Land and it was with intense surprise that the world learned on March 7 last that the British forces had captured El Kahull, fifteen miles south of Jerusalem. El Kahull is the modern name of Ancient Hebron. The campaign lapsed into stagnancy through the heated period, but was actively renewed with the setting in of colder weather last fall.

EIGHT THOUSAND PERSONS INJURED

Burial of Victims Begins and City is Emerging from Chaos.

Halifax, Dec. 10.—Revised figures were issued here today regarding casualties resulting from the explosion as follows:
Known dead, 1,200.
Unaccounted for, 2,000.
Dead which have been identified, 300.

Wounded, 8,000.
Homeless, 25,000.

Burial of the victims of the explosion and fire here Thursday was begun today.

"Men wanted immediately at Fairview cemetery." This advertisement in the morning papers called attention to still another problem—finding men to dig graves for the hundreds of dead.

Interment is Hastened.
Health authorities, working in co-operation with the general relief committee, made it plain that burial must not be delayed.

Laborers were assigned to the cemeteries and men who never had expected to do that sort of work assisted in the task.

Little groups of sorrowful people went to cemeteries adjacent to the Richmond district utterly wiped out by flames, and laid away their dead, without friends in attendance, and with the commitment rites omitted. There were not enough ministers to officiate for all. There were not enough ballbearers and not enough hearse. The dead were laid away with none there but the folk from homes now but a mat of ruins.

One general service was held for all.

BLOWN A HALF MILE BY BLAST BUT YET LIVES

Halifax, Dec. 10.—Unbelievable incidents happened when the munition ship exploded. But the case of Third Officer Mayers, of the British transport Middleton Castle, stands out as one of the most remarkable. The transport was not more than two hundred yards away from the Mont Blanc when the crash came. At that moment Mayers was on the deck, ready to step into a small boat to go ashore. When he came to, he was prone on the higher ground half a mile away and there was not a piece of clothing on his body. He was removed to a house near by and probably will recover. The Middleton Castle was wrecked beyond repair and most of her crew and mechanics from the city at work in her engine room were killed.

MAKE PLANS FOR THE WINTER'S WORK

Meeting is Held by Farmers' Institute Board of Noble County.

(Special to the Sentinel.) Abion, Ind., Dec. 10.—The farmers' institute board of Noble county, at a recent meeting in this city, laid the plans for the winter's work, the object being to aid allied forms of agriculture and not interfere with any to improve the farm, the home, the social life, the rural church, schools and highways, in fact uniting all for a common good, applying the maxim "In unity there is strength." In addition to the regular assigned meetings, when the interest is justifiable other meetings will be scheduled and at one and all one day's state aid will be rendered. Contest work will be applied and programs are now being arranged for the meetings on the following dates: Wolf Lake, Jan. 8; Swan, Jan. 9; Kimball, Jan. 10; Cromwell, Jan. 11; Cosperville, Jan. 12. Isaac Straus, of Ligonier, addressed the meeting, dwelling on valuable information regarding next year's seed corn.

Waller Shenk, Butler township, DeKalb county, and Grace Averette Dittmars, of Swan township, this county, have procured license to wed.

Attorney O. E. Grant, of this city, was appointed county attorney and Vermont Finley, of Kendallville, pauper attorney of the county, by the commissioners at their recent session. C. F. Haney, of Fort Wayne, was among the arrivals at Abion, Thursday.

John Saoria returned Friday evening from a trip to Kenkakee and other Illinois towns, being absent since Monday.

Postmaster G. W. Smith was slinging mail and greeting the patrons at the postoffice Friday, having recovered from an illness of several days.

Instructor Moorhouse, of the high school faculty, has organized a high school cornet band, a commendable adjunct to the school.

The price of board at the Hotel de Sawyer has been advanced to 20c per meal from the usual 13 cents, necessitated by the high cost of eatables, the county commissioners authorizing the raise at their session of court, Monday.

NEW MILITIA WILL DRILL TONIGHT

Col. C. A. Gerrard Will Muster Fort Wayne's New Unit Thursday Evening.

The local unit of the new state militia will hold a drill in the lobby of the court house at 7:30 o'clock this evening. It will be absolutely necessary for all recruits to be examined before Thursday, as Col. C. A. Gerrard, of Indianapolis, will be here at that time to muster in the new company.

Although the unit is almost filled up there are still a few remaining vacancies and any one between the ages of eighteen and twenty desiring to become a member of the company may do so by applying at once. Entrance into the militia does not exempt a man from draft, but it will fit him better for active service when he is called.

NO SCHOOL BECAUSE OF COLD WEATHER

The extreme cold weather resulted in the dismissal of the Fort Wayne high school on Monday morning. The fire was allowed to get rather low over Sunday and all attempts to heat the building on Monday morning proved to be of no avail. None of the students objected to being dismissed, save a few who had sidewalks to clean at home.

LOCAL EXPENSES HAVE ALREADY BEEN RAISED

Splendid Progress Being Made in Meetings at Crescent Avenue Church.

Offerings at the Crescent avenue Evangelical church yesterday amounted to $230. In spite of the bitter weather, which of necessity prevented many from venturing out yesterday, good congregations were present at each service. This week will be full of good things. A special program is arranged for each evening. Tuesday evening Mrs. Barr will speak on the subject, "What is a Sinner?" In the evening Mrs. Parr's message was "The Unanswered Question." "How shall we escape if we neglect so great salvation?"

With no undue pressure the congregation last evening cheerfully gave nearly two hundred dollars to the local expenses. The local expenses have now been raised and out of the way. This evening, at 6:30, there will be a get-together supper for the men, at which time an organization will be perfected which will do drastic work in the community during the next two weeks of the campaign. The supper will be provided by the women of the church and will be served for twenty-five cents.

Tuesday evening will be Sunday school night. Each class will be present with their teacher, and be the guests of honor at this service.

Folks who are not attending these meetings are missing a great musical treat, in the singing each night of Mr. Baldom, as well as a line of the greatest sermons and addresses which have ever come to the Fort Wayne people. Inspiring, soulful music, earnest prayers and heart touching gospel sermons all tend to bring results in the minds and hearts of people who come to these services.

Mrs. Barr deals in no meaningless language or rhetorical flights in her preaching. She goes unerringly to the core of the meaning of Christ's teachings and with keen spiritual insight presents the love and sweetness of Him who spoke as never man spoke.

Extreme Cold Kept Many from Coming to Town for Christmas Buying.

The extreme low temperature which prevailed Saturday, while it stimulated holiday buying among the home folks, kept a large number of people from the outside territory from coming to the city for the annual buying trip. Many, however, would have deferred their purchases until Wednesday. Suburban day, as that has become the regular buying day for thousands who have formed the new habit of coming to Fort Wayne on the mid-week day. Exceptional preparations are being made by the merchants this week. The advertisements which will appear in tomorrow's Sentinel will announce many splendid "specials" for Wednesday. The advertisements of the merchants this winter, in presenting to the people their array of seasonable goods, chiefly those for the Christmas trade, show a distinct trend toward the policy of conservation in buying. It is interesting to note the fact that none but real serviceable merchandise is being offered and that many items of prominence in former years are conspicuously absent from the offerings of this season. Merchants who are awake to the possibilities of Suburban day report an exceptionally large business last Wednesday. These, of course, are the ones who keep the outside people informed on matters of mutual interest to the dealer and the patron. For advertising is nothing more nor less than the medium of information from the store to the buyer. The wideawake ones are making big preparations to care for this week's Suburban day trade.

All photographs taken up to December 20th will be finished by Christmas. Perrey Studio, corner Calhoun and Berry streets.

LEASES NEW QUARTERS. H. H. Rogers, eyesight specialist, now located in the Anthony hotel, has closed a lease for ten years for the west room of the new Central building, located at the corner of Harrison and Wayne streets. The cause for the change is a desire for more floor space. He says it is nothing for him to eat a dozen pies at one sitting.

RAILROAD NEWS

WILL REACH TRENCHES
BEFORE CHRISTMAS

People Who Sent Presents to
1, Get Good News.

New York, Dec. 10.—To all those home folks who mailed Christmas gifts to their soldier boys abroad before December 1, official assurance has just been given that, except for unforeseen and unlikely mishaps of war, all these remembrances will be delivered to them at the fighting front on Christmas day.

This splendid accomplishment was due to the public's general response to the appeals for early mailing. The various departments of the Railroads' War Board throughout the country, in pursuance of their campaign to relieve traffic congestion by every possible means, posted placards in depots, waiting rooms and other public places warning that parcels mailed after December 1, or too late to reach New York harbor later than December 5, would not be likely to reach the front in France in time.

The enormous total of 600,000 separate Christmas parcels were shipped before the final date set, December 5, so generally did the soldiers' friends and relatives heed the appeal "ship early." The bulk of this immense tonnage sailed before the time limit expired and the unprecedented task was handled with the utmost dispatch.

The parcels, each plainly labeled "Christmas," ran as high as 100 pounds in weight, but none was rejected on account of size. A special organization of army men and equipment opened and inspected at the Hoboken piers every parcel not passed upon at the originating postoffices. An expert crew manufactured boxes and repacked securely every parcel that arrived in damaged condition. Small packages were placed inside of large wooden cases before being stowed away in the holds of the ships.

The 600,000 parcels give assurance that the "Sammies" will be magnificently remembered Christmas morning, wherever they happen to be on foreign soil.

EFFECT OF CURTAILING PASSENGER SERVICE

Saves Men, Coal and Locomotives for the More Important Freight.

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Reports just compiled show that since the beginning of the war the railroads in the fifteen states of the central military department have made reductions in passenger service aggregating 10,567,636.90 train-miles per annum.

By thus decreasing their passenger service the railroads in this territory have effected a saving per annum of 1,176,085 tons of coal, 369 locomotives, 1,941 men and 203,839 barrels of oil.

"The reductions in passenger service which have been made by all the railroads in the United States amount to over 25,000,000 train-miles per year," said R. H. Ashton, chairman of the central department committee of the railroads' war board. "These reductions are made solely to enable the railroads to handle the freight service deemed more necessary for the country's welfare, with the one great object of winning the war."

"Because of different conditions prevailing it has not been necessary to make as extensive reductions in passenger train service in western as in eastern territory. Passenger traffic never was so heavy as it is now and the service must be maintained to the fullest extent possible. However, should war conditions create an emergency requiring further reductions in passenger service we are fully confident that the American public will cheerfully co-operate in our aim to do what is best for the nation."

The derailment at the round house turntable was due to a heavy fog which prevailed at the hour. The men from this city will probably remain at Crestline two or three days.

The card was directed to Foreman Russ Harfuff, of the induction motor and belt alternator test department of the General Electric works. Mr. Stevenson, while in Fort Wayne, made many friends and was especially popular among the ladies, having acquired the name of Gentleman Charles among his friends. COLD DELAYS TRAFFIC.

All Passenger Trains Run Late and Freights Split in Two.

On none of the steam lines running into Fort Wayne was there any trouble from drifting snow, but the intense cold demoralized train schedules. All passenger trains were from one to five hours late and freight trains were cut in two, leaving terminals with fourteen to sixteen cars, where ordinarily there should have been three times that number. Even with this reduced tonnage it was impossible to get the freight trains over the lines on schedule time. So far, however, no serious accidents have been reported, but trainmen relate harrowing tales of suffering from cold. It is hoped the weather will moderate before any serious congestion results.

ONLY TWO PUT UP SCORE.

Because of the disagreeable character of the weather Saturday night, the attendance at the indoor target practice of the Fort Wayne Rifle and Revolver company was light. Eight or ten marksmen were there, but only two made scores considered worthy of notice. G. Bente scored 185 and O. E. Archbald scored 183. No record was made of the work of the others.

TWO MEN INJURED.

G. Howett, a car repairman under General Foreman H. U. Diem, at the east car shop, will be off duty a few days as a result of falling and injuring one of his elbows. F. E. Crull, a machinist's helper, working at night, had one of his eyes painfully injured early Saturday morning by a piece of steel lodging in it. He will be off duty a few days.

TESTED HEATING CAPACITY.

The severe cold weather, coming unexpectedly and on Monday, after the offices had been closed a day, severely tested the heating capacity of some. At one office the cold was severe early in the day and the clerks and stenographers kept close to the radiators. One stenographer worked with kid gloves on her hands.

After a two weeks' illness Z. Ake has resumed his duties with Foreman S. A. Bickell, of the tin shop at the General Electric works. Henry Onstatt, also a tinner, is off duty on account of sickness.

called to Pittsburg on account of the serious sickness of his sister residing in that city.

Death of Americans Was Never Reported

W. C. Siverson, of Buffalo, N. Y., survivor of "City of Athens," a British liner which sank off the African coast after striking a floating mine on August 10. Siverson brought the first report of the sinking to be made public in America, although nine of the 22 lost were Americans. The vessel sank in 40 minutes. The survivors were tossed in an open boat for eight hours before being rescued.

General Foreman Raymond Hoffman, of the testing department of the General Electric works, is receiving some new men this week, most of the newcomers being transferred from other departments. This morning C. H. Grandstaff, formerly of the transformer department, and William Haley, formerly of the meter assembling room, began work in the general testing room.

A party of Nickel Plate officials were out on the Chicago division Friday, calling upon agents and patrons of the road. They stopped at nearly every station. Among the party were Supt. Ogden Pierce, Traveling Passenger Agent G. P. Riew, District Passenger Agent Frank P. Parnin, Assistant General Freight Agent J. P. Hayes, Contracting Freight Agent B. W. Place and F. E. Smith, chief clerk in the office of Supt. Pierce.

MOVEMENT FOR BETTER HOUSING IN FORT WAYNE

Mrs. Albion Fellows Bacon,
Author of Indiana Housing
Law, Will Speak.

Mrs. Albion Fellows Bacon, who is the sponsor for the Indiana housing law, will speak at the Commercial club Wednesday evening. She will speak under the auspices of the Fort Wayne real estate board, the Women's Club league, the Parent-Teachers' club and the Women's Service league. It is expected through the importance of this subject not only to improve the housing here, but to prevent the growth of bad conditions, that there will be a large crowd present of those directly interested seems assured. There is no one better posted on this subject than Mrs. Bacon, and much good can and will undoubtedly come from her talk.

The object of this meeting is to form an association for better housing that will push this movement which is now sweeping the country and is claiming the attention of the federal government.

RAREST GERMANS IN HALIFAX FOR A LEGAL INQUIRY

Halifax, N. S., Dec. 10.—Wholesale arrests of German residents of Halifax were begun by the police today. This action was taken under instructions from the military authorities.

Sixteen Germans were taken into custody within a short time. Military officers after an inquiry released a few of them. The others are in the county jail. The authorities refused to disclose whether they had obtained evidence associating Germans with the explosion. A number of citizens of German birth heretofore have been allowed full liberty with the exception that they were required to report once a month.

A SPLENDID EXHIBIT.

During the present week the banks and trust companies of Fort Wayne will effect a distribution among the people of this city of almost six hundred thousand dollars. This great sum of money represents the Christmas fund savings of the people for the past year. Considered wholly by itself this is a splendid exhibit of thrift. It is much larger than the distribution made a year ago.

When, however, we take into account the circumstances under which these Christmas savings funds have been kept up during the past six months the merit of the achievement takes on a new significance. The Christmas accounts in the financial institutions have been maintained despite the numerous calls made upon the people for their money in activities that relate to the war. Two great drives, for the sale of Liberty bonds took literally millions of the small surpluses of the people of this city. Funds for the work of the Red Cross, for the Y. M. C. A., for the Y. W. C. A., for the Knights of Columbus and other patriotic concerns have taken many thousands of dollars. These drains on local resources are unlike Liberty bond subscriptions in the respect that they are pure donations—money given freely out of hand that will not come back. The Liberty bonds represent investments.

The Christmas funds also are investments. While the idea is primarily to save money against the demand that Christmas makes upon everybody, not all of the money saved in that way is in every case expended. Some of it is saved to go into the fund for the year ahead or put to other useful purpose. In any event, the money is saved through the year and it is in hand for such ends as it best can serve. And now, viewing the great aggregate of these savings through this year that has been a hard one for everybody by reason of the rising costs of living and the calls made so frequently for money to aid in the war, the fact of $570,000 in Christmas funds to be distributed this week speaks a fine encomium upon the thrift of the thousands of people who will share in the distribution. It tells of diligence in labor, of economy in living and sturdy purpose in saving. These virtues all go together and those who have them associated strongly with their habits of life are sure to get on well, living comfortably and decently and putting something by for an independence.

The financial institutions of Fort Wayne have rendered an inestimable service in promoting these Christmas savings funds. While it is not wholly an unselfish labor or one without profit to themselves, it can stand under no criticisms or disparagements on that account. They are teaching thrift, promoting economy of a rational sort and schooling the people not only in the methods but the habits of saving.

It is interesting to recall that last year Fort Wayne's Christmas savings accounts greatly exceeded the total in Indianapolis, a city three times the size of Fort Wayne, and more than doubled the aggregate in Grand Rapids, with fifty thousand more people than this. Fort Wayne shows, we believe, as large a per capita of Christmas savings as any city in the country. That makes a sound argument and offers a powerful testimony in respect of the industry and thrift of this community.

AN EARLY LESSON.

Those persons who during the milder weather paid some heed to the constant warning to effect a saving of their coal probably today appreciate not only the counsel they got but their own wisdom in taking it. They now have doubtless enough coal to see them comfortably through the bitter rigors of this sub-zero spell when coal cannot be saved.

The advent of hard weather has come weeks earlier than it usually arrives and if the bitterness of it is felt to be too soon, there is at least the advantage of getting the lesson of fuel conservation in good time. The winter has only begun. We have ahead of us three months during which no degree of frost need be unexpected or cause any surprise. The present severities will pass and we shall have milder weather. And when we do get relief it will be scarcely necessary for constant preaching of conservation. Those who have profited from good counsels given in season will know how to value the benefit of economy and those who did not and have suffered in this visitation of extreme cold will not be disposed to further negligence.

There are many, of course, whose shortage of fuel is not the consequence of any fault of their own. For weeks fuel has been difficult to obtain and those who had been unable during the summer and early fall to get coal stored in their bins have had to make the best of a situation that is bad and that they had no part in creating. But those who with a few tons in hand made the coming of chill weather the occasion for overheating their homes, as most Americans are wont to do, and now find themselves short of coal, as many of them are, must realize that the fuel famine is no myth.

No wise person will attempt to disguise the situation in his own view. The country is short of coal. The condition is general and in many communities is much worse than it has been or is likely to be in Fort Wayne. There must be saving of fuel when the weather is such as to permit a saving. When the mercury goes down to six or eight or ten degrees below zero there cannot be any economy. Frost must be fought away from the home with fire and plenty of fire. The less fire there is in milder weather the more there can be when the northern rigors grip.

THE FIRST NAVAL DISASTER.

The loss of the American destroyer Jacob Jones and the drowning of above three-score of her crew marks at once the first distinct triumph of the German submarines over one of our naval vessels and the first real disaster of the war to be suffered by our naval forces.

It is bad enough, but it might have been much worse; and it answers well to remind us all that we cannot carry on war either on land or on sea without paying war's price. These blows come now sharp and with shock. We are not yet fairly into the great conflict and the first losses of war inflicted upon us strike in deep. They must prepare us for the heavier blows and the greater losses that are to come when we have gone well into the struggle.

There is something in the loss of the Jacob Jones to remind us that the American navy has so far had good fortune in the war. Since last May, American naval ships have been taking a highly active part in the campaign against the kaiser's U-boats. For some six months we have been sending troops abroad and now have in France forces variously estimated to number from a quarter to a half million men. The navy has convoyed the transports and supply ships of this large force and has performed with such vigilance and skill as to permit the safe arrival of every troopship at a port of disembarkation without the loss of a man. That is an achievement that the sinking of one destroyer does very little to offset to the kaiser's account.

Moreover, the American destroyers have had a very large part in defeating the ruthlessness of the kaiser's submarine campaign. They have won the praise of the British admiralty for their effectiveness and if the whole truth could be prudently made known the people of this country would understand how much of a balance of war lies against the kaiser.

We must expect losses and prepare ourselves for them. We are no more to be thought immune in the war than are other nations. In common all who go into war must pay the tolls. We are beginning to pay ours and increasingly will have to pay.

The Siberian republic set up by the soldiers and others who have no taste for the Lenines and Trotskys and agitators of their ilk is the better bet. They have the grub and most of the money. Not even a government that launches itself on the proposition to repudiate public debts and divide property will long keep afloat on a ship of state that has only a vacuum in its hold.

That congress may do things further to the discomfort of John Barleycorn will not greatly excite that once amiable gentleman. He is probably by this time quite reconciled to the worse.

This is the brand of weather that vindicates fuel conservation, and makes the earlier prophet of calamity not without honor even in his own country.

INSTRUCTIONS TO A NOVICE.

To write—know anything you write so well that you may never have to save at how Or why. To know the "anything" know God, And failure is a useless word—chanceless. But, if you know not Him I cannot guess! How you may chance to happen on a thought, Create and ripen it on printed page!

Suppose the sunset for a perfect theme. Who mixed the colors? Set the canvas there? There is no sunset if there be no paints. No picture can there be except be found A background stretched and artist hand laid on. Or, at the best, if these poor reasons fail, The paints alone were useless canvasses, And canvas lacking presence to perform The act creative were as void as clean-bleached leaves.

Blown winterward by autumn winds! Thus beggars you your subject, does it not? And if the reasoning be logic-scant You have a feeling that it should be true— That God must live or else no sunset burn Across the skies through all Time's weary years!

If like the most of all who wearily Cudgel the "gray-compound" for thoughts on love, I would enforce the fact that God is love. And how seek One from God that is the same, Where you deny a knowledge reasonable? This bear in mind and for your peace instruct!

Before you write, then, seek for God and find How cleverly He rules and separates Things to His purposed end, and dominates. Then with this needful done, this lesson learned— (And should you learn it well in one whole life Content be that you've nothing lost, although The writing part has been an effort long And decently and sensibly forgot— Burned into useless, wind-blown ashes white)— Attempt that which seems most impossible And dangerous as unriskened Matterhorn.

Then, when the teeth are set and purpose firm, Grind bravely on through all the lifeless night, Full sure that as your lesson has been taught, And just as plain as it has seemed to be, So near to truth your pictures have progressed, And will progress. At which time the tired world, Gharry of gifts of gentleness and hope, Will grant approval or a discount, And judge world-wisely whether you have done Madonnas or (and that might suit it best) Red, clumsy, Chinese idols. But, of all, You must not hope decision for long years— The longer if Madonnas have been drawn!

Men Needed for the Aviation Corps

One of the great tasks in building up the American air service has been and is today the securing of the tens of thousands of mechanics, chauffeurs, and other skilled workmen needed in the great airbases behind the front lines in France. A force larger than the whole American army before the war is needed for this work alone, a force of skilled mechanics, rare enough at best, but doubly so amidst all the other war claims.

Popular imagination has been so centered on the airman himself as almost to exclude the other men in the service. Little thought has been given to the thousands of men on the ground who keep the engines in good order, the wires always taut, the machine gun or camera ever ready. Their work is perhaps less spectacular, but it is the foundation stone upon which all the rest is erected. For if an aviator is allowed to go out with an imperfect engine, a weakened wing, or an insufficient supply of gasoline, as has not infrequently happened, his mission is doomed to failure.

Already mechanics have volunteered in thousands for this vital work with such spontaneity, indeed, as to make it possible to keep a steady stream of squadrons flowing overseas. For some time now they have been busy on the other side building the airbases, establishing the repair shops, and making ready to set up the planes which will announce America's arrival over the German trenches. Various trade interests and employers' organizations also have co-operated with the government in the effort to comb out the large number of experts needed in the short time available, but, despite that, still more men are needed.

Only men especially trained are accepted at the outset in order to keep the standard as high as the necessities of the service require. Obviously, an unskilled man would be more of a hindrance than a help in the highly specialized work to be done, and might even bring about fatal results. Even a skilled mechanic himself must have special training for airplane work, many phases of which will be foreign to him at first. The ground force, therefore, must undergo instruction for the air service, just as the aviators themselves, though naturally, the main problem is to adapt a skilled man's special abilities to the specific problems of air.

Upon acceptance into the service the men are sent at once to a large concentration center, where they are sorted out according to trades. Detachments of the various trades are then sent at once to factories or flying fields for two or three weeks' intensive work. Many of the specialized industries, such particularly as those of propeller making, magnetos, machine guns, and wings, have thrown open their factories to the government for instruction of these men as part of their contribution to the winning of the war. Naturally, the men are thus enabled, through practical demonstration, to fit themselves very rapidly and effectively for their new work.

Upon completion of these courses the men are graduated and returned to a center where over-seas squadrons are being formed. There, in the right proportion, they are organized into complete units—so many engine-men, so many tailors or cobblers for the wings, so many cabinetmakers or woodworkers for the fuselage, so many carpenters or plumbers for the airframes. Almost immediately, in all probability, the squadron will move on to a port of embarkation for transport overseas on the first available steamer.

These American mechanics will have a big part to play in the eventual allied air drive. They will be continually busy in the great airbases, doing the most delicate kind of work, mostly out of doors, often with rough-and-ready tools, requiring much ingenuity, frequently in great haste. With machines constantly coming and going to and from the air front, there will never be a time of dullness or lack of interest.

Every machine must be carefully

tuned and examined before it ventures out on its important work. Mechanics must go over the engine, armors the machine guns, instrument specialists the magnetos, allometers, sight instruments, air-speed indicators, etc. Fatal cases are on record where air battles have been lost through neglect before the planes have left the air dromes.

It is on the return, however, that the principal activity is necessary. Many planes come in badly wrecked or injured, in so serious a condition, indeed, that they would be no longer serviceable without expert repairmen on hand. Oftentimes the wings are so perforated with machine-gun or anti-aircraft bullets that the most expert sailmakers, cobblers, and tailors are necessary. Or possibly the delicate woodwork of the fuselage is so damaged that only an expert cabinet or boat maker can restore it to usefulness.

It has often been estimated that the average life of a plane is but four months. That means that the whole fighting equipment must be renewed three times a year. The expense is naturally very great. It is hoped, however, in the American service to make a far better record than this.

The fulfillment of that hope rests upon the skilled men in the air drome behind the front. If their standard is high, no plane will be lost in battle through avoidable mechanical flaw; no engine will be allowed to rack itself unnecessarily; no wing or fuselage subjected to overstrain. If this work is well done, the mechanical part of the air service will be kept in perfect shape, tuned, oiled, and greased for all the great strain which will come upon it.

Each air drome, besides, will be largely self-sustaining. It will have its own clerks, stenographers, chauffeurs, etc., to do the office work and keep all the supplies up to the needs; its own telephone operators and linemen, plumbers, carpenters, and bricklayers. The air service will be inspired with an esprit de corps and an individuality which will make every man in it, from the aviator all the way through, feel a really personal pride and regard in his achievements.

This is the last week in which men of the draft age may volunteer as enlisted men in the air service. After noon on Saturday, Dec. 15, no man between 19 and 31 may enter any branch of the army until actually summoned by the government. Men of that classification who wish to enter the service should apply in person to the nearest recruiting office before Saturday, giving their trade, a letter from their employer, and their preference for service in the aviation section. Men over the draft age and not over 40 should send their applications direct to the Volunteer Department, 119 D Street N.E., Washington, with full details of their work.

THE J. W. W. MENACE.

(Atlantic Monthly.)

The characteristic of the J. W. W. movement most worthy of serious consideration is the decay of the ideals of thrift and industry. To this can be added, in place of the old-time traditional loyalty to the employer, a sustained antagonism to him. The casual laborer of the west drifts away from his job without reflection as to the effect of this on the welfare of the employer; he feels little interest in the quality of workmanship, and is always, not only a potential striker, but ready to take up political or legal war against the employing class.

This sudden hostility has been steadily growing in the last ten years. It is not as melodramatic as sabotage, but vastly more important. To the student it is of major importance, because it can be linked up more directly and with more accuracy to its psychological causes. In a word, it is a natural psychic outcome of a distressed anti-social labor condition. This sudden hostility develops very naturally the surface manifestation of unpatriotism, hostility to religion and unlawful action; but the more important characteristic is the deeper economic one of the growing unreliability and decay of the workmanlike spirit among the migratory laborers.

THE STAR OF ZION.

(Boston Transcript.)

Having captured Jaffa, the ancient Joppa, the British are freed from all difficulties of supply. They have a base, fully controlled by their fleet in the Mediterranean, which looks eastward toward Jerusalem and northward toward Damascus. The British have already gained a great political and economic advantage by their vigorous Palestine campaign. They have made the Jews of the world look to them instead of to the Germans. Mr. Balfour's prompt offer of official encouragement to the Zionist movement has aroused the enthusiasm of the Jewish race everywhere. One of its first effects has been the adhesion of the Rothschilds to the Zionist cause. Jews everywhere are falling in with it, in connection with the British advance, and accepting the British protection. With the Star of Zion on the British banners now along with the cross of the saint who was buried at Lydda, the Germans have certainly suffered a severe check in the Orient.

VENICE UNDER THE AUSTRIANS.

(Springfield Republican.)

It is but fair to recall that the Austrians in 1815 restored the lions of St. Mark which Napoleon had stolen. They kept Venice, to be sure, by the treaty of 1814, for which Byron denounced Castlereagh, but they did not harm its treasures during the long occupation or when they were finally driven out, and there might be less anxiety for the art works of Italy if Germans were not taking part in the raid. It may seem strange that a nation which has devoted so much time to art study should show so little respect for the beautiful works of antiquity, but very likely the Schliemanns and Winckelmanns do not get commissions in the army. So everything portable has to go, and most of the population has fled.

Uncle Harry Explains About Pooling the Railroads

"What does 'pooling' mean, Uncle Harry?" asked Joe, looking up from the newspaper which he had been intently reading, when Uncle Harry entered the room.

"Sounds as though you had been studying the war news about the railroads," said Uncle Harry, as he walked over toward the fireplace and rubbed his hands together before the blazing pooling would enable the railroads to make profits that would be unfair to the manufacturers and passengers. In those days it was believed to be the best plan to make the railroads compete with one another, that in competing they would give better service and charge lower prices for hauling freight and passengers and various and numerous restrictions were placed logs, for the night was cold and the wind was howling outside the house.

"Pooling," said Uncle Harry, "means—suppose I explain it to you this way: We'll say there are ten railroads in the United States—there are many more than ten, of course, but we'll use ten for the example. As I said, suppose there are ten railroads in the United States, and each line is owned and operated by a separate company. Now suppose a condition arises, like the war, that makes a tremendous increase in traffic, that is, a tremendous increase in the amount of goods that must be carried as freight. Before the condition arose each of the railroad companies was operating a separate line and obeying the various laws that had been passed by the national congress and state legislatures in previous years to prevent these ten railroad companies from combining and conducting their business in ways that might be unfair to manufacturers who had to pay these railroads to carry their goods, and to passengers who have to travel on these railroads. But suppose that when this new condition, that I have spoken of, finally became so serious that only by combining and running the ten different railroads as one big system, could all the freight and the necessary passenger traffic be handled in the quickest and best possible manner."

"Then it would be sensible to combine the roads," said Jimmy.

"And that's exactly what is being done so far as cars, and locomotives and railway stations and terminals are concerned and that combining is called 'pooling,'" said Uncle Harry. "Helen, suppose you get the dictionary and find the word 'pooling' and read the definition to us."

Greater Efficiency. A few moments later Helen had the big book opened on the table and began reading: "Pooling—the act of uniting, or an agreement to unite, an aggregation of properties belonging to different persons, with a view to common liabilities or profits."

"I guess the war has changed all that, hasn't it?" asked Joe.

"The war and the vast increase in freight business in recent years, together, have changed conditions completely," explained Uncle Harry. "Today it is generally believed that in war times, at least, when so much freight, and so many troops, must be transported, in the quickest possible time, it is much better to pool the railroads than to operate them as separate lines. In fact, many people believe that our country has grown so big that it would be better if all the railroads were under one management, and were operated like the postoffice department."

If Pooling Fails.

"You mean government ownership of all the railroads?" asked Helen.

"That is one of the things talked of," said Uncle Harry. "There is government ownership of railroads in Germany and France, and immediately after England entered the war the British government took possession of all the railroads in England. Here in our own country we are trying the pooling plan first, and if that doesn't bring the needed improvement, undoubtedly a move will be made toward government ownership, for as long as the war lasts, anyway, and maybe for all time."

"Do the railroad companies want government ownership?" asked Joe.

Harry. "The railroad officials themselves have suggested the pooling plan. That plan is being tried with a number of the railroad companies that are handling a great deal of the war freight. If it succeeds it will be continued; if it doesn't succeed, fully, some other arrangement will have to be made. It is quite likely congress will consider passing some laws dealing with this very important problem."

NO NEED TO CONSCRIPT

If Labor Must be Drafted During War, Industries Should Also be.

SO SAYS SECRETARY OF LABOR'S REPORT

William B. Wilson, Head of Department, Reviews Administration.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Conscription of labor, Secretary Wilson told congress in his annual report today, is not likely to be necessary for the winning of the war, but he suggests that should it become necessary for the government to conscript labor, it should at the same time conscript the industries on which they are engaged.

"Almost insuperable obstacles arise," says the secretary of labor, "when labor disputes occur under circumstances in which employers permit organization by their workmen only on pain of dismissal. Since in such cases the workmen have no responsible business representatives, only one party to controversies can be conveniently or satisfactorily heard. In such cases, also, the workers, being prevented by their employers from organizing on a business basis, tend to fall away from the pacifying influence of conservative, constructive, and responsible labor organizations and to come under the influence of irresponsible revolutionists. As most labor lawlessness is traceable to this cause, responsibility for it cannot be wholly diverted from the policy—hardly patriotic in time of war—of arbitrarily obstructing labor organization of the conservative type."

Unfair Proposals Unpopular. "The department is of course aware of proposals, more popular earlier in the war than now, to settle labor disputes by coercing wage earners. But these proposals are both unfair and impracticable. They are also widely regarded, and not without reason, as unpatriotic. It is enough to say of them here that in the view of this department public sentiment cannot be expected to tolerate conscription of labor for private profit. Should industrial conscription become really necessary in order effectively to prosecute the war, a policy less likely to be considered one-sided would be desirable. It would seem—that is, if workers were to be conscripted for industrial purposes—that the working opportunities to which they were assigned to be commandeered, so as to make such workers not coerced servants of employers but employees of the government itself."

No Necessity for Conscription. "There is, however, no reason for apprehending a necessity for any kind of labor conscription in order to settle or prevent disputes between employers and their employees which may interfere with a vigorous prosecution of the war. In every case in which responsible representatives of disputing employers are willing to negotiate considerately with responsible representatives of conservative labor organizations which represent their disputing employees in the spirit in which they would negotiate with business competitors, labor disputes can be settled speedily, effectively, and without friction through the mediation service of the department of labor. By simple and fair system of collective bargaining between the government, labor organizations, and business organizations all labor disputes prejudicial to an effective prosecution of the war can be promptly eliminated from the problem. Not only can this be done, but it can be done to the satisfaction of all concerned and in harmony with every patriotic purpose.

Self-Sacrifice Needed. "Our greatest need is the spirit of self-sacrifice for the common good—a sacrifice of our pride, sacrifice of our prejudices, sacrifice of our suspicions against each other, sacrifice of our material comforts, sacrifice of our lives, if need be—to carry on unimpaired the democratic institutions handed down to us by our fathers."

The report makes an announcement of the much discussed pay and privileges being allowed to the interned German civilians in the camps controlled by the department of labor. "It was agreed by the department to remunerate those of the interned aliens who should perform labor of any kind in connection with the construction or management of the internment camp at the rate of $20 a month; those who served in the capacity of foreman, etc., to receive $25 a month. The interned officers, however, have been allowed to receive from any source only $10 a month and the seaman $5 a month, receipts in excess of these amounts being placed in the Postal Savings bank to the credit of the interested parties, or otherwise disposed of as desired. Purchases of clothing, etc., can be made with the funds of the interned aliens, under the direction of the inspector in charge of the internment station."

Mediation Has Succeeded. "The department's work in mediating in wage disputes, enormously increased by war activities, have affected practically a million men and have been eminently successful. "The number of labor disputes calling for government mediation increased suddenly and enormously with the beginning of the war," says the report.

"In a large number of instances the conciliators have been able not only to bring about agreement in cases of existing differences—often arising from misunderstandings—but to avert the threatened strike altogether. "The success which has attended the department's representatives in the great majority of disputes has been most gratifying. In many instances through the efforts of the department strikes which would have involved thousands of workers engaged in great operations were quietly averted and industrial peace maintained. All this was accomplished without publicity and the consequent excitement which invariably attends industrial disturbances when heralded in the press. Great plants thus secured uninterrupted production for stated periods—some of the agreements running for a year and others for the period of the war."

Labor Has a Standing. "Labor has discovered that it has a standing in the government machinery of its country whenever its demands are based on its industrial and constitutional rights. Employers, on the other hand, have found in the department a defender against unreasonable exaction."

Reports now at hand indicate an impending call for not less than 150,000 skilled workers of many classes, involving over 30 mechanical trades, to serve in the various shipyards engaged in constructing vessels for the shipping board. To secure the workers necessary a centralized employment system is highly desirable if not absolutely essential. Consequently it has become necessary to establish several additional war emergency offices of the United States employment service and to employ traveling field workers and agents to locate qualified workers for the yards.

"The extraordinary demand for 'man power' on the military side of war preparations was responded to by the department through its U. S. employment service as soon as the demand arose. Much of the demand was found to have been influenced more by eagerness for labor at low or inadequate wages relative to the sharp rise in living expenses than by general labor shortage. But in some places, especially in the neighborhoods of munition establishments which had been serving European war demands at enormous profits, there was a genuine scarcity of labor for less profitable forms of production. On the whole, the problem at first probably was less a problem of labor scarcity than of imperfect distribution."

Advice to Girls About Making Many Friends

It is not always the prettiest girl or even the jolliest, who is the most popular. It is often the quiet, unpretentious girl who really makes the greatest number of friends. And when one stops to think about it, the reason for this may easily be seen.

If the quiet girl is courteous, considerate of others, friendly and has the love of small pleasures in her heart, then somehow there is sure to radiate from her a certain atmosphere which draws others to her.

You cannot expect to be happy if you are always on the outlook for unhappiness. And you cannot expect people to care for you if you are continually reminding them that you do not care for them.

If for just one week you would make up your mind to see how much happiness you could find in your way, and would find each bit of pleasure, you would find in your way, and mark down each bit of pleasure, you would find that the sum of your blessings is very large indeed.

A woman noted for her great charm was once asked how it was that she was able to draw so many people of so many different kinds to her in the bonds of friendship, and her reply was this:

That was the secret of her success. It is better to be friendly than to make friends. In other words, it is better to be worthy of friendship than merely to search for friendship.

If some day you should make up your mind to look on the world in a friendly way, and to try to be a good friend to others instead of trying to see how many friendships you can make for your own self you might be surprised to find that you are drawing people to you that you never before seemed to attract in any way.

It is a wonderful thing to have a good friend. But it is a still more wonderful thing to be a good friend. And there is nothing in the world which will so enrich life as the friendship of those who are worthy.

But one of the mistakes that girls so often make is to rush into friendships in a most reckless way, without really taking time to realize that a friendship is a very wonderful thing, and something to be cared for and cherished always.

Be friendly to those about you in an impersonal way. Then you will find, if there is really something congenial between you, that it will grow, until at last it may become a bond which will draw you together and may bless your life with a wonderful relationship.

NOVELTY MUDDS FOR BOTH INSIDE AND OUT

Muffs that are not only fur on the outside, but fur on the inside are novelties, and one wonders why the trick wasn't turned ages ago. Every one knows how a silk or satin lining dispirits and gives up after a single season and what a nuisance it is to send a muff in mid-winter to the fur doctor and have its internal arrangements undergo operations and readjustments. Some muffs are even made reversible, and so with a scarf lined with fur one has two sets in one, which truly is the pinnacle of economy effort.

Kolinsky undyed has a vogue of its own, and keeps the lady busy making explanations. Kolinsky is a natural horn blonde, with faint gold intermingling with deeper tones. CARE OF WASHABLE KID GLOVES SERVE YOU WELL

New that the fashion of washable kid gloves has gained popularity with us, many women are exchanging experiences as how best to wash them. Those who succeed best say that a great deal more care has to be taken than one would think. If washed on the hands they must be rubbed gently, rinsed well and pressed with a towel—not wiped—until they are pretty dry completely, but when they are almost dry, but not stiff, they should be pulled out gently till they resume their whiteness. A glove stretcher is a great help.

Have your Christmas dry cleaning done now. PEERLESS. Phone 6095.

Soup Stock Should Be Cooked Very Slowly

All bones, roots and materials from which the flavor is to be extracted should be cooked long and slowly. Not dried, but simmered.

Dried beans, peas and lentils need to be soaked before cooking, the two former for twelve hours, lentils for one or two hours. This is to make them swell. These vegetables can be boiled, not simmered.

Tough or old roots and stems should be grated before using for thick soups. This makes them pass more easily through the sieve and does not wear out the wires.

All thick soups should be rubbed through a sieve with a spoon. Failing in this use a potato masher or a colander; or mash the pulp smooth with fork and spoon.

Thick soups require to be bound to make them smooth and pleasant to eat. A little flour is used in peace time; instead of this we now bind them thus: Take half an ounce of crushed tapioca, oatmeal or sage, soak it in half a pint of milk or milk and water, for one hour. Then cook the milk and tapioca very slowly till the latter swells (about half an hour); it will then be ready to add to the vegetable stock. If you

George Williams Buys Booze on Sunday from Negro on Hugh Street.

A Hough street raid on Monday morning resulted in the arrest of Josie Jackson on an association charge and Elmer Turner on a selling liquor without a license charge. Both are colored. The arrests resulted when George Williams, arrested Sunday evening on a drunk charge, confessed to buying "booze" at the Turner shanty. Williams was found near the Gay street overheard bridge Sunday evening with his shoes off and his coat rolled up as a pillow beneath his head. The man did not seem to mind the cold and was sleeping soundly when the wagon arrived. In police court he claimed that he had $50 when he started on his "drunk" and that he had been robbed. Upon his evidence the Turner place was raided. Officers found a large quantity of empty bottles and a few with small quantities of liquor still in them. Either for good luck or because of inability to tell the difference, St. master Degitz included a bottle of beer and a flask of chili sauce in his haul. Turner, the owner of the booze, is partly blind. The trio will be arraigned in police court Tuesday morning.

Arrest Coal Pickers.

Catherine Phillips and Lucile Hart, colored, arrested for picking up coal along the Wabash right-of-way, were let go. Both women pleaded extreme poverty as the cause for their actions. When arrested they were dressed in rags, but their appearance was considerably changed Monday morning, one of the women wearing an expensive pair of modish shoes.

Gets Heavy Fine.

Joe Rogers, arrested after he had driven his car along the sidewalk and over several lawns, received a fine of $50 and costs and had his automobile license revoked. The man drove his car while intoxicated, menacing the lives of a number of pedestrians.

MOTHER OF MILLION DOLLS SAYS EVERY LITTLE GIRL'S CHRISTMAS DOLLY NEEDS A PRETTY COAT AND BONNET AND SHE TELLS HOW TO MAKE THEM

BY MRS. KITTY RAUSER.

The Mother of a Million Dolls.

For all ordinary occasions Miss Doll can wear a romper and hat of pink checked or striped gingham when she goes walking; in case of a party or a formal call, here is also a pattern for a coat and bonnet made of a bit of some heavier material and bound with tape of a contrasting color.

The romper and hat—use pattern No. 4. For the romper—when cut out bind the sleeves with bias tape; fold and sew the two outside seams with sleeves at one time; hem the bottom and run cord in to tie around the leg—leave ends of cord loose—and then close the lower seam last, same as for the drawers.

In making the hat sew the top and bottom together; turn right side out; sew the two pieces together for crown. Then sew on the right side of the small opening, then turn, fold over twice, sew down on the inside, and turn hat right side out again.

For coat and bonnet use pattern No. 5.

Coat—Sew shoulder seams together; sew sleeve in arm hole; then hem bottom of sleeve; sew sleeve and under arm seam at one time; bind the front pieces and neck with the colored tape; make one-half-inch hem in bottom.

Bonnet—Bind the wider side with the colored tape; sew the crown in the opposite side; pin the centers together so the stripe will run straight; hem the neck part. Make small bows of ribbon and, leaving ends long enough to tie, sew on either side of the bonnet.

All bones, roots and materials from which the flavor is to be extracted should be cooked long and slowly. Not dried, but simmered.

Dried beans, peas and lentils need to be soaked before cooking, the two former for twelve hours, lentils for one or two hours. This is to make them swell. These vegetables can be boiled, not simmered.

Tough or old roots and stems should be grated before using for thick soups. This makes them pass more easily through the sieve and does not wear out the wires.

All thick soups should be rubbed through a sieve with a spoon. Failing in this use a potato masher or a colander; or mash the pulp smooth with fork and spoon.

Thick soups require to be bound to make them smooth and pleasant to eat. A little flour is used in peace time; instead of this we now bind them thus: Take half an ounce of crushed tapioca, oatmeal or sage, soak it in half a pint of milk or milk and water, for one hour. Then cook the milk and tapioca very slowly till the latter swells (about half an hour); it will then be ready to add to the vegetable stock. If you

CANNOT SEND HOME

SOLDIERS' BODIES

War Department Sends Answer to Request for Remains of Leslie C. Kayser.

That no bodies will be sent home from France during the period of the war is the decision evidenced in a letter received by the parents of Leslie C. Kayser, who was killed while in active duty. This same policy was carried out during the Spanish-American war. At that time the bodies were held until after the war, at which time corps were sent to gather the remains, place them in coffins and send them back home.

The letter from the war department reads as follows:
Dec. 7, 1917.

"In reply to your letter of the 2nd instant, you are informed that the secretary of war has decided that during the continuation of the war, the remains of officers and men dying in France will not be returned to the United States for shipment to their homes, and it will, therefore, not be practicable to authorize the shipment home of the remains of Private Leslie C. Kayser, Battery D, 150th United States field artillery, who died in France November 28, 1917.

AT THE PALACE.

PLEASE MR. DETECTIVE.

Bobby Woolsex and Girls in Light Comedy at Palace.

With a book that is clever without bothering anyone much to follow it, and with Bobby Woolsex a laugh compelling comedian as the starred principal, the airy fairy laugh, "Oh Please Mr. Detective" is the top attraction for the first portion of the week at the New Palace. Its xippy enough to make one forget the cold and the girls surely look warm enough to keep the coldest blooded from chilling. Ernie and Ernie, the monoped and the Dutch girl in bits of foolishness entitled three feet of comedy for an obvious reason; the sketch, "Back to Elmiria," a story of everyday happenings in a factory town; Jack Dresner, a story telling kidding comedian who spends much of his time poking fun at the other artists on the bill; Hayes and Rivers a dainty dancing duo with some new ideas in steps, and Falcman and Patrick, two Irish comedians of the best school whose voices are heard in some songs of the days gone by and others of the very present moment, are others on this bill.

AT THE MAJESTIC

"A Soldier's Bride," Wednesday Evening.

The story of "A Soldier's Bride" is woven around an about the ups and downs of one of "Our Sammys" and the girl of his choice and heart. The complications that ensue furnish much scope for farcical situations and the author has taken full advantage of the opportunities offered. The locale of the different scenes afford the scenic artist a wide range and some of the most novel examples of his art are shown during the piece. The first act shows a scene at the "Vanderbilt Cup Races" and this scene has been pronounced by critics one of the most realistic scenes ever shown upon a stage.

The song features are many and of the hitting sort that will not only please the many, but also appeal to the ear of the trained musician, especially is this true of the featured number "Oh, Give Me the Right." The company employed to support Mr. Stewart in "A Soldier's Bride" numbers thirty people, all well known as musical comedy artists of high ability. "A Soldier's Bride" will be seen at the Majestic theatre Wednesday evening.

DR. BAKER SPEAKS AT FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

Notwithstanding the sudden drop of the mercury to below zero, many of the leading business men, who had attended Dr. Baker's series of lectures during the week, were present to hear his closing lecture in the First Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon.

Many characterized Dr. Baker's closing lecture as the most inspiring of the whole week. The lecturer received many warm congratulations, at the close of his lecture Sunday, and many invitations to return. There was enough of the evangelistic element in the lecture to cause some of the members of the church to ask Dr. Baker if he could not return and give a series of evangelistic sermons. He promised that he would be glad to do so, at his very first opportunity, and said that there was nothing that he enjoyed more than to conduct evangelistic services. He has had great success along this line as well as on the lecture platform.

Dr. Baker inspires his audience by his whole-hearted and contagious enthusiasm. He moves and sways his hearers by the tenderness of his emotional appeals. His voice has a tremendous range. It is now low and full of emotion as he tells some pathetic story; and, now, he fills the vast auditorium as his voice moves in sympathy and in harmony with his eloquent flights of imagination, which gives variety and contrast to his delivery throughout his lecture.

Dr. Baker read, as the background of his lecture, the description of Isaiah's vision of Jehovah in the temple.

"At the time of the national crisis in Israel, it was essential that some prophet of the nation have a vision of God. At the time of this international crisis, it is essential that the Christian nation of God have a vision of God. At the time of this international crisis, it is essential that the Christian nation of God have a vision of God."

"At the time of this world crisis it is essential that the Christian nations of the world be called to war. It is also essential that the Christian nations of the world be called before Almighty God in repentance, supplication and prayer, that the cause of freedom and of liberty and of humanity may triumph and that the highest ideals of the race may prevail, and be conserved and perpetuated into the far distant future."

World Malady Sin.
Dr. Baker characterized the world malady as sin, a subtle force, or influence of power, moving in and through the whole human race.

The pulpit is drifting the lecturer avers.
"The American pulpit, nay, may I not say that the world pulpit is drifting far away from one of the fundamental gospel truths, whenever it fails to give due emphasis to the awfulness of sin in the sight of God, and the terrible retribution that comes upon the sinner."

"A few years ago, there was a superficial optimism preached from the pulpit, circulated through the press and reiterated on the platform, saying that man was on his way to glory passing on by the mere current of affairs, to the eternal haven of rest. Where now is that superficial optimism when the nations of the world are engaged in deadly conflict, and when humanity is struggling against itself? A soothing gospel this! But this kind of gospel can never reform human society. It can never elevate and ennoble the ethics of man; it can never redeem human souls. Every great reformer has been a man who has dared to look the fact of sin and the problem of evil square in the face."

Where the Antidote?
"Where shall we find the antidote for this world malady, for this subtle influence, or force or sin, which has touched and contaminated the whole human race? It can certainly not be found in man; for he himself is the victim of sin's poisonous bite. It cannot be found in any man's political devices, or in any of his ethical codes, or in any of his systems of theology or science or philosophy; nor yet in any of his church creeds. It can be found only in the person and the spirit of Jesus Christ, the crucified and risen Son of God. When we accept Him and follow His example and obey His Commandments, there will be no more trouble between man and man, no more wars and rumors of wars. For Jesus loved His neighbors as himself. That is what the nations of the world need today, love for their neighbor. With this spirit of sacrifice, of forgiveness, of helpfulness and of love, which characterized Jesus Christ, in universal operation, war would be impossible."

Sandy Andy, the ever fascinating sand toy, is here also in two sizes at 69c and $1.00, and many other novel things of interest to young and old alike.

FEARFUL BLOW TO BARLEYCORN

United States Supreme Court Gives a Decision Holding State Has Right to Make Bone-Dry Law and Forbid Citizen to Have Liquor.

Washington, Dec. 10.—With a decision upholding the Idaho prohibition law the supreme court today gave an opinion which may be one of the most far-reaching victories for "bone dry" prohibition yet recorded. It was held that a citizen has no constitutional right to possess liquors for his personal use if a state wishes to forbid it.

Justice McReynolds, who gave the court's opinion, held that a state has power absolutely to prohibit manufacture, gift, sale, purchase or transportation of intoxicating liquors within its borders without violating the constitution.

7 DEGREES BELOW ZERO

Mercury Hits Low Water Mark at Early Hour Monday Morning.

WILL CONTINUE UNTIL THURSDAY

Overheated Furnaces Cause Lot of Trouble for Fire Department.

No relief in sight until Wednesday or Thursday is the verdict of the local weather bureau. There is little indication of more snow, but the cold snap will not break until late Wednesday night or Thursday morning. The coldest point to be reached Monday was seven degrees below zero and temperature reached this point at an early hour in the morning. The ill effects of the cold snap are becoming evident in various ways. Practically all trains were behind time, several of them as high as eight hours. City service was exceptionally poor on Monday morning. At an early hour a gathering of eight school teachers was to be found on the transfer corner, each and every one of whom asserted that she had been waiting for the car at least thirty minutes.

None of the city school buildings was kept up to standard heat. The high school had to be dismissed. Practically all of the pupils and teachers at the Bloomingdale school kept on their outer wraps throughout the day. Even the factories were unable to cope properly against the cold. In several of the office rooms of the General Electric company stenographers manipulated their typewriters with gloves on.

The water works department stated that although they had no reports of frozen meters up to this time, that there had been numerous complaints of frozen pipes. One housewife left the faucets turned partly on all night, only to have the water freeze at a late hour Monday morning.

Overheated furnaces caused a lot of trouble for the fire department. Of the eight runs made Saturday, Sunday and Monday all but one were from this cause. The Traction company found itself unable to heat the large new cars properly and removed most of them. Much confusion was caused on the Broadway line by this change, patrons insisting in getting on the rear end of the cars. The difficulty was removed by placing large signs on the front of the cars indicating the front entrance.

The township trustee and the associated charities headquarters report little or no dire cases of suffering from the cold. All extreme cases of poverty seem to have been taken care of. The traffic policemen did duty in shifts Monday morning, standing on their posts as long as possible and then hurrying into the nearest warmer to thaw out, and then reporting back to the signals.

The rivers, lakes and ponds about town are frozen solid, and as the freezing started on a quiet day the surfaces for the most part are as smooth as glass. A few enthusiastic skaters ventured out on Reservoir lake for a short time Sunday evening, but they were soon driven to cover by the cold.

A noteworthy fact is that for the first time in many months, people were able to see the second performance at moving picture houses without waiting in the vestibule. Practically all of the shows, even the most popular ones had seating space at any hour yesterday. The streets were exceptionally deserted throughout the day. The creaking of the snow under the heels of passersby serving to keep most residents within doors.

REGULATION BREAD IS NOW ON SALE

Henceforth Fort Wayne people will live on regulation bread. All of Fort Wayne bakeries using more than ten barrels of flour per month are now under federal control. The regulation bread which will henceforth appear at all retailers differs in some respect from the former bread, but is, nevertheless, still wheat bread, and must not be eaten on wheatless day. A distinctive difference will be noticed in the hardness of the crust. This is due to the small amount of shortening used and does not indicate that the bread is stale. The new bread will be somewhat cheaper than former loaves.

NEW DEPOT OPENED.

The new depot of the Fort Wayne-Decatur Traction company has been opened at Decatur. The new freight depot will not be completed for a few weeks.

MANY FIRE ALARMS DURING ZERO WEATHER

Stove Overturned in the Home of Charles Twin Sunday.

The fire department answered four calls Saturday and Sunday. None of the fires, however, were serious, and the resulting damage was small. A call from the Alter cigar store sent the department and the police patrol to the building at 113 East Main street Monday morning. An overheated furnace had set fire to a heap of rubbish, causing no damage.

The home of Charles Irvin, in Glendale addition, was threatened with destruction and the family was given quite a scare last night when a hot-blast stove full of burning coal overturned and scattered a part of the burning fuel over the floor. Several members of the family were present and they took towels or other cloth to prevent burning of their hands, seized the stove and threw it outdoors before any damage resulted, other than a few holes in the carpets and rugs.

The entire fire alarm system of the northwest part of town was out of commission for several hours Saturday night. Lieutenant Robert Gaskill was called during the absence on account of sickness of Charles Winbaugh and located the trouble on Pearl street near Broadway. The extreme cold had caused the wires to snap.

BOND SALES DUE TO FOE

GERMAN INTERESTS ARE FORCING SALES

McAdoo Declares Enemies of Nation Must be Put in Penitentiary.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Forced sales by German interests were charged with responsibility for the selling of liberty bonds below par by Secretary McAdoo in an address today before a conference of about 100 representatives of liberty loan committees from all parts of the country.

"Some persons sell these bonds for malevolent reasons," said Secretary McAdoo. "Investigations that I have made recently convince me that the hand of the kaiser is behind certain sales. Of course, I am not in possession of evidence which would convince a jury of this assertion, but I could convince any 'fair-minded man of the truth of it. Thoughtless persons who think they have done their duty when they buy bonds also sell them."

"These thoughtless persons can be changed to thoughtful ones if we will show them how their sales are affecting the government."

"We cannot influence the kaiser's people but we can put them in the penitentiaries, and I want to see them there, for we must deal relentlessly with all the enemies of America."

UNION LABOR IS GIVEN A BLOW

Supreme Court Decides Against Miners' and Glassworkers' Unions, Holding It Unlawful to Proselyte or Picket Non-Union Workers in Open Shop.

Washington, Dec. 10.—Right of employers to prevent labor unions from soliciting non-union employees to join the labor organizations was upheld today by the supreme court by a divided vote of 5 to 3 in test cases against the United Mine Workers of America and the American Flint Glass Workers' union.

Method of labor organizations in attempting to unionize the "open shop" workmen and bring about strikes were declared "unlawful and malicious."

Injunctions previously given by Federal Judge Dayton, in West Virginia, to prevent the union activities, were sustained.

The court admitted the right of workmen to organize into unions for lawful methods, but held that the employers—the Hotchkiss Coal and Coke company and the Eagle Glass Manufacturing company, of West Virginia, were entitled to operate their plants "open shop" and to protection and injunction against the labor union were ordered for that purpose.

Three Dissenting Justices.

Justices Brandeis, Holmes and Clark dissented.

"The supreme court holds," the majority opinion held, "that the plaintiff was acting within its lawful rights in employing its men upon the terms that they should not be members of the United Mine Workers; that having established this working agreement between it and its employees with the free assent of the latter, the plaintiff is entitled to be protected in the enjoyment of the resulting status as in any other legal rights, that the fact that the employment was terminable by either party at any time made no difference, since the right of the employees to strike or to leave the work gave no right to defendants to instigate a strike, that plaintiff was and is entitled to the good will of its employees precisely as the merchant is entitled to the good will of his customers although they are under no obligations to him; that the value of the relation lies in the reasonable probability that by properly treating its employees and paying them fair wages and avoiding unreasonable grounds of complaint, plaintiff will be able to retain them in its employ and to fill vacancies occurring from time to time by the employment of other men on the same terms, and that defendants could not be permitted to interfere with these rights without some justice, cause or excuse."

Right Not Absolute.

"The opinion of the court fairly concedes this right provided the objects of the union be proper and legitimate, which is assumed to be true. In a general sense, with respect to the United Mine Workers of America. But the court holds that it is erroneous to assume that this right is so absolute that it may be exercised under any circumstances and without any qualifications; that, in truth, like other rights that exist in civilized society it must always be recognized with reasonable regard for the conflicting rights of others; according to the fundamental maxim—'so use your own property as not to injure the rights of another.' Hence, assuming that the defendants were exercising the right to invite men to join, nevertheless since they had notice that plaintiff's mine was run non-union, that none of the men had a right to remain at work there after joining the union and that the observance of this agreement was of much importance and value both to plaintiff and to its men who had voluntarily made the agreement and desired to continue working under it, the defendants were under a duty to exercise care to refrain from unnecessarily injuring plaintiff's, yet they deliberately and advisedly selected that method of enlarging the union membership which would inflict injury upon plaintiff and its loyal employees by persuading men after man to join the union and having done so to remain at work, keeping the employer in ignorance of their number and identity, until so many had joined that by stopping work in a body they could coerce the employer and the remaining miners to organize the mine and that the conduct in defendants in so doing was unlawful and malicious."

Not Lawful Because Peaceable.

"The court also declares that it is erroneous to assume that all measures which may be resorted to in efforts to unionize a mine are lawful if they are peaceable, that if they stop short of physical violence or coercion through fear of it; the court holding that any violation of plaintiff's legal rights contrived by defendants for the purpose of inflicting damage, or having thought as its necessary effect, is as plainly contrary to law as if it involved a breach of the peace, and that a combination to procure concerted breaches of contract by plaintiff's employees constituted such a violation."

Summing up the matter the court holds that the purpose of defendants in bringing about such a strike at the mine in order to compel plaintiff through fear of financial loss to consent to the unionizing of the mine as the lesser evil was an unlawful purpose and that the methods resorted to by the organizer—the inducing of employees to unite with the union in an effort to subject the system of employment at the mine by concerted breaches of the contracts of employment known to be in force there—were unlawful and malicious methods, not to be justified as a fair exercise of the right to increase the membership of the union. And that since plaintiff was threatened with danger as the result of defendant's efforts it was entitled to be protected by an injunction, and for that reason the decree of the circuit court of appeals must be reversed."

Similar findings were made in the case of the Eagle Glass Manufacturing company against the Glass Workers' union and officers thereof.

Case of Gertrude M. Canada vs. Rayman L. to be Heard in Local Court.

Rayman L. Canada, son of W. W. Canada, United States consul to Vera Cruz, Mexico, has been made defendant in a divorce suit filed in the superior court in this city by Gertrude M. Canada.

The suit was filed some time ago, but the prominence of the defendant was not known until a few days ago. The couple formerly lived at Winchester, Ind., where the plaintiff is more familiarly known by the name of Mary, rather than Gertrude, and the defendant by the name of Lance, rather than by Rayman.

Mrs. Canada charges her husband with desertion. She came to Fort Wayne some months ago from Winchester to establish her residence here for the length of time required by law. Depositions of two prominent Winchester residents were filed Saturday in the case, setting forth that the plaintiff has been a resident of Indiana almost her entire life.

After leaving his wife and little son, it is said that Canada went to Mexico, where he enlisted as an officer in Carranza's army and participated in a number of battles against Villa and his followers. He is said now to be in the United States army. His father, the Hon. W. W. Canada, has been consul to Vera Cruz since the administration of President Benjamin Harrison. He gained considerable prominence, it will be recalled, during the invasion of Vera Cruz by the United States bluejackets.

Six Weeks Long Enough. Charging her husband with habitual drunkenness, Ruth McDonald, through her attorney, Hans C. Meland, has filed suit in the superior court asking for a divorce from Truman C. McDonald. Mr. and Mrs. McDonald were married on October 20, 1917, and lived together six weeks, when they separated.

She says that her husband owns real estate and that by disposing of the same the alimony she asks can easily be paid.

MONT BLANC GIVEN BLAME

Neither vessel appeared to be seriously damaged by the collision.

After they separated the Mont Blanc headed for one of the city piers, the Imo went on, the skipper's intention being, the crew believed to get into shallow water in order to find out exactly what damage had been done to his ship.

The seaman received their first warning of danger when they saw chemical flames leaping from the decks of the Mont Blanc. Then came the explosion. The Imo was caught in the tidal wave and riding on its crest was hurled on the rocky beach. The sailors declare that no attempt was made to leave the ship until she struck and that every man was in his place.

Captain's Head Blown Off.
The captain was standing on the bridge and his head was blown off. The wheelman was at his post and his body was found in that position when the steamer was examined later. The body of the pilot, William Hayes, was found along the shore near the hull, and it is thought he was blown from the deck. Every man, above deck was killed. When the vessel struck the beach the survivors rushed up from beneath the decks and scrambled ashore. Thirty-one men escaped. Naval relief parties found them wandering about in the brush.

ever been able to mobilize in France in the past.

"This explains the success which the enemy was able to achieve in driving the British back from Cambrai. It would not do for us to minimize its importance.

"The enemy realizes that he finds himself temporarily in a singularly fortunate position and he can be counted upon to take the utmost advantage of it.

Plans Long in Preparation.
"For a long time past he has been preparing his plans for just such an eventuality as would arise when Russia should enter upon negotiations for a separate peace, which has been a principal German objective ever since the battle of Tannenberg.

"We must expect that he will put these plans into execution. Thus he may have at his disposal for a time a preponderant numerical superiority in the west. He may be even able to achieve some relative advantages in the field, such as those recorded during the past week.

"The magnitude of the task before us can be more fully realized when measured by the success the enemy is still able to gain.

U. S. Must Speed Up.
"It means that we must speed up our military effort. The united nations must stand squarely behind our soldiers.

"It is not sufficient to prepare to fight; we must prepare to win."

The review also hints at an expected German thrust against the French front and says: "The number of hostile raids executed along the French front northwest of Rheims, in the Argonne, in the region of St. Quentin, in the Vosges and particularly in upper Alsace, as well as the increasing enemy artillery activity north of the Chemin des Dames, on the right bank of the Meuse in Chaume wood, Malson de Champagne and upper Alsace would appear to indicate that the enemy is feeling out the French front with a view to identifying the strength of the units opposing him."

Nothing New as to Italy.
The statement describes events on the Italian front without adding to published information as to what is transpiring there or an attempt to predict the outcome of the various Austro-German thrusts. It adds significantly: "Our declaration of war against Austria associates us immediately with the struggle going on in Italy."

Discussing the armistice negotiations on the Russian front, the statement says the agreement covers the entire line "from the Baltic to the Black sea" as well as the region of the Caucasus.

Situation in Palestine.
Secretary Baker makes this statement as to conditions in Palestine: "The success of British operations in Palestine has had a very decided military effect throughout the Ottoman empire and much of the pressure which the German higher command had hoped to bring to bear in Mesopotamia with the view to recapturing Bagdad has been relieved. In Mesopotamia the British are carrying forward their operations on the right bank of the Diale river with great success. It is interesting to record that a small Russian detachment co-operated in this engagement with the British."

DAY'S WAR SUMMARY.

sulted in the formation of a new cabinet. The fighting was confined to Lisbon and the immediate neighborhood, the government and the government troops surrendering after two days of hostilities.

British and French troops have taken over from the Italians sections of the fighting front between Lake Garda and the Adriatic. The British are stationed along the upper Piave, but the position of the French has not been disclosed. The Austro-Germans have not renewed their violent attacks on the Asiago plateau, the strong defense of the Italians apparently having forced a cessation of infantry activity to allow for the re-forming of units. There has been artillery activity between the Brenta and Piave and along the Piave, while Italian airplanes and airships have been attacking enemy camps and communications behind the lines.

On the front in France there has been no marked infantry activity and artillery action has been confined to the Cambrai and Ypres areas. Outpost encounters and raids have occurred on the Cambrai front and near Lens. A German effort to enter the French lines near Bézouvaux, Verdun region, has been repulsed by the French with considerable casualties to the enemy.

Early in November the British activity resulted in the capture of Beersheba, forty miles south of Jerusalem. Simultaneously, a coastal column became active. By Nov. 7 the city of Gaza was in their hands and the British were pursuing the Turks northward, after having inflicted casualties estimated in excess of 10,000. By this time the British invading force was up again in the neighborhood of Hebron where the Turks were reported organizing for the defense of

By Nov. 23 the British had pushed within five miles of Jerusalem on the northwest on December 7 Gen. Allenby announced that he had definite possession of Hebron. Jerusalem was thus virtually cut off on all sides, but the east. Few details have come through since that date but the encircling movement, must have been carried out with considerable rapidity culminating in the surrender of the city.

In sentimental and romantic aspect the capture of Jerusalem far exceeds the fall of fabled-crowned Bagdad. The modern city of Jerusalem contains about sixty thousand inhabitants and the home of pestilence, filth and fevers, but in historic interest it naturally surpasses, to the Christian world, all other places, since the days when Joshua wrested it from the hands of the Jebusites to make it the capital of the Jewish race. Jerusalem has been the prize and prey of half the races of the world. It has passed successively into the hands of the Assyrians, Babylonians, Greeks, Romans, Persians, Arabs, Turks, the motley crowds of the Crusaders, finally to fall before the descendants of that Richard the Lion-Hearted, who strove in vain for its possession more than 700 years ago.

rapidly emerging from the chaos into which the city was plunged by the explosion last Thursday. The successive snow and rain storms which followed the disaster greatly hampered all efforts to alleviate the suffering of the thousands of injured and homeless people but the return of fair weather yesterday made possible more systematic work.

All relief agencies now have been co-ordinated. Enough doctors and nurses have reached the city to take care of the hospital duties. A considerable quantity of supplies already has arrived, and more are on the way, so that the danger of famine has been averted and there is ample clothing for all. These supplies must be carefully conserved however, and the authorities today were doing their best to enforce the requests published yesterday that non-residents not here on urgent business should leave the city and that others should not come here for the present.

The work of repairing the innumerable damaged buildings was well under way. Lumber, glass and other building materials are needed in great quantities.

Resume Search for Bodies.

There was a slight flurry of snow early today, but during the forenoon the skies brightened and clearing weather was indicated. Snow which covered every foot of the streets, was a frozen mass at daylight. General weather conditions, however, have been favorable and soldiers were sent early today to the burned area to begin search for hundreds of bodies in the ruins. Trains arriving from Montreal and other points brought hundreds of visitors and the general rush, despite the urgent request of Mayor Martin that people not need stay away, added to the difficulties of handling the situation.

Supplies from New York brought in last night on a special train were distributed promptly in the hospital districts.

There is enough food on hand to meet immediate needs, provided the supply is not exhausted by the people rushing from every quarter, the local branch of the Nova Scotia Wholesale Grocers' guild reported in a communication to the lieutenant governor today.

Rumanian forces taking in also the Russians on the Rumanian front has been agreed upon. All the conditions proposed by the Rumanians were accepted by the Germans with the exception of one prohibiting the transfer of troops to other fronts, in regard to which negotiations are still being carried on with Field Marshal von Mackensen at Bucharest. On its arrival at Fokhani the joint Russo-Rumanian commission, which is conducting the negotiations, was received cordially and dined by the Germans.

RUSSIA FORCED RUMANIA.

Amsterdam, Dec. 10.—The Rumanian government was forced to enter the armistice negotiations with the Germans, according to a Vienna dispatch, as a result of an ultimatum from the Russian government. This threatened the withdrawal of Russian troops from the Moldavian front and the stoppage of the export of food and war material.

BRITISH GOOD WILL SPOKEN.

London, Dec. 10.—Sir George Buchanan, the British ambassador, in an interview with Russian journalists, according to a Reuter despatch from Petrograd, assured them of British sympathy for the Russian people and denied absolutely the reports that Great Britain contemplate and coercive action in the event of Russia making a separate peace. The British government, the ambassador is reported to have said, was entitled to complain of the action of the Bolshevik government in negotiating with enemy, but did not wish to induce an unwilling ally to continue to share the common effort by appealing the treaty rights.

Great Britain, he added, was ready as soon as a stable government was established, to examine with it the aims of the war and possible conditions for a just and durable peace. She wished to stand by Russia in this critical hour.

PREPARE FOR BIG CROWD FRIDAY NIGHT

Wide Interest in the Perigord Meeting at Palace Theater.

Plans are being made today to care for an overflow meeting on Friday night in case the Palace theatre proves to be too small to accommodate the crowds. The announcement that the event is free to all—first come, first served with seats—has aroused wide interest, and everyone is apparently laying aside every other engagement in order to go to the Palace to hear the story of the man who spent two and one-half years in the French trenches and who has the ability to tell the American people just what preparation they must make if the world is to be made safe for democracy.

The meeting of Friday night will mark an auspicious opening of the great Red Cross membership drive in Fort Wayne.

Added interest in the event comes with the announcement that George Balthe, a member of the Rotary club which has engaged the Palace for the free use of the public, has secured the appearance of Earl Cartwright, one of America's well known baritone singers, who will open the Palace program of the thrilling national songs. Mr. Cartwright has appeared in grand opera with such eminent artists as Geraldine Farrar, Mary Garden, Scheumann-Helneck, Scotti and others of equal note. For some time, he has appeared in recitals, the entire proceeds of which have been given to the Red Cross. Hence, Mr. Cartwright evinced a lively interest in the big Fort Wayne event and will give his services freely.

The Friday night meeting will result in a clearer understanding of the great needs of the Red Cross and of the ease with which everyone may become an active participant in the furtherance of its work. Even the children of all shall grow into the enjoyment of all that our free form of government has to provide for them, may have a part in this world-wide humanitarian organization. Parents can do no finer thing than to teach the child the meaning of the Red Cross and to see that the little ones are enrolled in its support.

Lieutenant Perigord's address which will give to the whole people the startling truths as known to a man who spent two years in the trenches in France should be heard by all. Arrangements will be made to care for at least 2,200 people at the Palace, and, of course, those who appear early will be most certain of securing a seat.

MANGLED CORPSE THAT OF BIRD SUTTENFIELD

Roommate Identifies Body Found Along Nickel Plate Tracks Late Saturday.

Joseph Lavanway Sunday afternoon identified the mangled body found along the Nickel Plate track, between Hanna and Monroe streets as that of his roommate, Bird Sittenfeld, aged 37 years. The two men roomed together at 1312 East Washington street and it was while on his way from work that Sittenfeld was struck by a train.

Mr. Lavanway became alarmed at the long absence of his roommate and hearing of the finding of the body he went to the Schone & Ankenbruck undertaking parlors and identified the remains as those of his missing friend. Sittenfeld was in the employ of Harry L. McAfee, as teamster, and had left work at the usual hour on Saturday evening.

Surviving relatives include the mother, Mrs. Louis Sittenfeld, 2030 Ebe street, Fort Wayne; a brother, Benjamin Sittenfeld, Courtland, N. Y.; two sisters, Mrs. M. Wilkensong, Fort Wayne, and Mrs. Ora Bair, Cleveland.

Lanternier, re-elected; vice-president, August Bobay, re-elected; secretary, Joseph Gerardot, re-elected; financial secretary, Frank J. DULL OPENING AND A NARROW LINE OF TRADE

Wall Street Has Irregular Course, But Improvement in Some Stocks.

New York, Dec. 10.—Trading was confined to the narrowest limits at the dull opening of today's stock market. Changes were of the usual irregular character, in no important instance varying more than a fraction. A decline of 11 points in American Tobacco was the only noteworthy feature. Prices hardened generally before the end of the first half hour. Liberty Bonds were steady.

The market improved later on a moderate inquiry for steels, coppers and shipwrecks. Leaders of those divisions gained 1 to 1 1/2 points. Specialties were sympathetically affected by the break in American tobacco, oils and related issues, yielding 1 to 2 points. Recurrent weakness developed in foreign bonds, the entire French group establishing new low records. Liberty 4s sold at 97 1/2 to 97.50 and the 3 1/2s at 98.45 to 98.50.

PLAN FOR CORN SHOW.

"Because of the inclemency of the weather Saturday afternoon not many farmers attended the meeting called by County Agent A. J. Hutchins at his office in the court house for the purpose of making plans for the corn show to be held here December 17 to 22. However, it was decided to hold two special contests. One contest will be for the best single ears of corn and another for the best shelling demonstration. Prices will be awarded on Friday afternoon at 2 p. m. and all corn must be in by December 15. Much interest is being taken by the farmers of the county in the forthcoming show which promises to be a big success."

FORMER RESIDENT OF GARRETT IS MURDERED

Frank Newell, for Years Conductor on Wabash, is Killed.

Peru, Ind., Dec. 10.—Frank Newell, a former well known resident of Garrett, and a former Wabash railway conductor, was murdered at Peru, where he had recently taken employment as a bartender at the George Steinmetz saloon, by J. V. White, of Logansport, who used a 44-calibre revolver, discharging three shots at his victim.

Mr. Newell, the bartender, had been employed at the place since a week ago Friday. He had just come on for duty for the evening and was putting on his apron when he was assailed by a big revolver, and using profane language demanded that the bartender pay him twenty dollars that he alleged was owing him. He no sooner made the demand than he began shooting. The bartender in the excitement made an effort to pacify the man by giving him a sum of money out of the cash register. The endeavors of the bartender seemed not to appease the man and he demanded that the money be given out of Newell's own possessions. The entire affair occurred within such brief period of time that it has been difficult for the witnesses to recollect just what happened. While placing on his apron Newell was standing towards the front end of the bar and one of the shots was sent through a pane of the office window. Another shot was fired while Newell was at the cash register and the third shot was fired through the front office window pane from the lobby, Newell having staggered from the register towards the front of the place after being mortally wounded and his assailants following towards the front from the outside of the bar.

Newell, the dead man, was 40 years of age and resided in Peru and for many years was employed in the train service of the Wabash, having been promoted to the rank of conductor

OFFERS $100 REWARD
FOR SLANDERERS

Against the War Activities in Steuben County by the Defense Council.

Angola, Ind., Dec. 10.—The Steuben County Council of Defense, at a recent meeting, voted to offer a reward of $100 for information leading to the conviction of any person guilty of maliciously circulating false stories concerning the various war activities in this county, including the Red Cross work, the Y. M. C. A. work, the food and fuel conservation programs, the welfare of the soldiers, or any other falsehoods which may injure the sentiment of the people in their attitude toward the war. The council was impelled to this action by the continued reports of such stories in various sections of the county, so persistently repeated that the maliciousness of the purpose cannot longer be overlooked. The council will report such persons to the federal authorities for action in the future. It will be well for all citizens to be careful about repeating any such stories, even innocently, without investigating their origin.

CONDITIONS IN RUSSIA.

Stick.

Hartford City, Ind., Dec. 10.—El Smilack is in receipt of a letter from his father in Russia telling a most pathetic story of gold and starvation in that country. Mr. Smilack had sent money to his father and the latter tells something of how that money was spent. He said a peck of potatoes cost $3.60, and a small stick of wood 10 cents. Sugar was $3.60 and meat $1.60 per pound. The old man had bought neither for months. He paid $100 for a pair of boots. It is said that Mr.
Smilack has long wished that his father and step-mother would come to America and has a room prepared for them in his residence on East Main street, but they delayed too long and now it is impossible. The Elder Smilack begs to know if the United States government cannot help them.

OPPOSES INCREASE.

Defiance, Ohio, Dec. 10.—Mayor Edward S. Bronson, of Defiance, has vetoed the city council ordinance granting the Defiance Gas and Electric company an increase in gas rates, asserting that the times from the gas have all

to say nothing of having to pay a gas bill that has proven to be nothing but air. The mayor also maintains that, inasmuch as the gas company has a franchise to furnish gas to the city at a rate which has years to run, the company should be made to live up to its contract the same as an individual.

Auburn, Ind., Dec. 10.—A slander ant, James H. Bolens, who tendered a check for $5 as part payment for the work, and upon presentation the bank refused payment on the check, on orders from Bolens, and then, according to the plaintiff, alleges Bowman stole lumber from the place. Bolens filed a general denial to the charge made by the plaintiff.

FRANK SMITH ENLISTS
IN AVIATION CORPS
Whitley County Man Who Mysteriously Disappeared is Heard From

Columbia City, Ind., Dec. 10.—
Frank Smith, who two weeks ago Saturday left Columbia City leaving no trace of his destination, has enlisted in the aviation corps at Camp Sorfven, Fla. He wrote his wife a letter from that point, telling her of his enlistment, but assigning no cause as to why he
recently filed action in the circuit court against him for support of herself and two little children, but under the government monthly maintenance laws for soldiers' wives maintenance is now assured for Mrs. Smith.

Memorial Service.

The late Corp. Virgil G. Winebrenner, who laid down his life in France for the cause of democracy November 12 while fighting with the American troops near Verdun, was signally honored Sunday afternoon at the Merriam Christian chapel in memorial services conducted by Rev. R. W. Paige.
Despite the intensely cold weather relatives and friends gathered from several miles around Noblesville (Merriam), where resided the young man, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. J.
Winebrenner, have lived there several years. The two soldier brothers, Jesse and Benjamin, were present, on furloughs granted them at Camp Shelby, Miss., by Captain Foote.

Big Stock Sale.

The largest stock sale ever cried in this county was that Friday in which

Perry, of Columbus, O., doing the auctioning with the assistance of several local sale-criers. One of the heav-

Lake, who paid $2,000 for a fine bull, Rosewood Bacon, and $800 for a fine heifer, Miami Victor. Beaumont Diamond, another fine bull, sold to Lee Loefer, of Ligonier, for $1,975. C. H.
Burr, of West Liberty, O., purchased fourteen head of heifers for $3,095.
In all, fifty-five head of shorthorn cattle were sold, most of the buyers being from Noble county, while not a few Whitley county stock raisers purchased bulls and heifers for the purpose of forming nuclei for herds.

The first white men to visit San Francisco bay were of the expedition of Portola, a Spanish adventurer, who became the first governor of California. Portola himself was not a member of the party which, 148 years ago, grazed upon the site of San Francisco and Oakland. The hour of discovery belongs to Father Juan Crespi and Sergeant Ortega. Gaspar de Por-tola, "captain of dragons" and governor of the Californias," probably never saw the bay, but his name is perpetuated as the discoverer by the annual Portola festivals in San Francisco. Sir Francis Drake came near discovering the bay in 1579, when he landed at a point thirty miles to the northwest.

Soon we may be buying shoes with of the war should tempt some manufacturer to introduce Esparto grass shoes in America. These are made principally in Spain and Portugal, and to some extent in the mountain districts of France. A single pair often will last twenty-five years, it is said, and a pair of Esparto shoes only ten years old may be said to have been just "broken in." This grass is of a peculiar toughness, is practically wear-proof, and makes a very comfortable shoe. The Spanish peasants fashion the fiber into a shoe that resembles a moccasin, sometimes dyed in lively tints. The sole is loosely woven, and in the course of years, sand and gravel adhere to the sole, making it as hard as leather.

American soldiers are to be paid monthly in a way which will protect United States money from the danger of being captured or sunk by the enemy. A large credit has been established in France so that each disbursing officer can draw directly on the government. The plan is particularly convenient and advantageous for the boys at the front.

Penny Pinching Not Always True Economy

I have learned that the intelligent housewife—the woman schooled in really scientific domestic economy—no longer throws away a nickel to save a penny.

A good way to illustrate this point would be through comparison of baking powders.

Experience has taught me—and millions of other women that it doesn't pay to buy cheap baking powders. They cost a few cents less, but in the long run they are decidedly the most expensive. Because of the low grade materials employed in their manufacture they cause many bake day failures—and great loss of expensive ingredients. The housewife throws out, in wasted materials many times the amount saved on the cost of the baking powder. This is not economy, but extravagance.

demands the highest quality at the lowest price.
Only baking powders that meet these demands should be used. Only baking powder that is made of the highest class ingredients so perfectly proportioned that it not only produces maximum leavening power but also preserves it.

Besides, the baking powder that meets the modern demand for economy should be economical in use—full strength—economical in cost—secured at a moderate price. The housewife should be able to effect a saving when buying—and another saving when using—and she should save materials it is used with.

That is economy in its highest form.
Complete economy. The only kind of economy the housewife should attempt.

I have proved positively by exhaustive experiments and comparative tests that Calumet Baking Powder is best suited to these savings. It possesses the surety, the purity and goodness that make constant employment of utmost baking economy possible.

BRAND WHITLOCK'S OFFICIAL STORY

By HERON BROWNE,
Of Our Washington Bureau.
Washington, D. C., Dec. 10.—Brand Whitlock, American minister to Belgium, is an official record charging the Germans with the crimes of murdering civilians, using non-combatants as shields for their advancing troops, and deporting thousands upon thousands of Belgians into virtual slavery in Germany.

His reports to that effect, made while he was still at Brussels, are on file in the archives of the state department. They add the last testimony—if proof were needed—that all of the atrocities charged up to the Huns are based upon reliable facts and not merely upon the inflated imagination of hostile propaganda.

Whitlock in his capacity as a diplomat of a power, still at that time at peace with Germany, reported facts to his superior officers. They did not want propaganda stories either for or against anyone. Washington wanted to know what was going on in Belgium.

BRAND WHITLOCK

Whitlock reported the news with as much accuracy as it was possible for him to get it. And he got it first-hand because the American legation was the clearing house through which the victims of the Huns passed. For a long time Whitlock's papers have been locked up. Now they are released, forming part of a 34-page book on "German War Propaganda," issued by George Creel's committee on public information, and edited by Fred D. O. Munro of Princeton university.

Whitlock's first dispatches regarding the cruelties of the Germans were sent in 1914 when the Huns' policy were spreading death and terror before them.

"Summary" executions took place at Dinant," he wrote, "without the least semblance of judgment. The names of a number of the victims are known, but they must be numerous. Among the persons who were shot are: M. Defoin, mayor of Dinant; Casseville, first alderman; Nimmer, aged 70; a consul for the Argentine republic; Victor Ponsel, who was executed in the presence of his wife and seven children; Gustave and Leon Nizias, two very old men.

Jules Menin and others were shot in the cellar of his brewery; Camille Platte and his son, aged 17; Philippe Pledert, his wife and daughter; Miss Marigny.

"During the execution of about forty inhabitants of Dinant, the Germans placed a machine gun on the roof of the town hall and fired at the crowd. It is thus that Madame Althoff, who had just given birth to a child three days previously, was brought on a mattress by German soldiers to witness the execution of her husband, her son and her daughter's life was spared.

"On the 26th day of August German soldiers entered various streets of Louvain and ordered the inhabitants of the houses to proceed to the Place de la Station, where the bodies of nearly a dozen assassinated persons were lying.

"Women and children had to witness the execution of many of their fellow citizens who were for the most part shot at the side of the square. The women and children, after having remained on the square for more than 15 hours, were allowed to depart.

"Three German Chiquettes of Louvain were taken prisoners and sent to Germany to the camp of Muenster, where they were held for several weeks.

"One of the most cruelly tried communities was that of the little village of Tarnies down in what is known as the Borinage, the coal fields of Charleroi.

"Tarnies is a mining village, a collection of small cottages sheltering about 5,000 inhabitants, mostly all poor laborers. The little graveyard, in which the church stands, bears its mute testimony to the horror of the event. There are hundreds of new-made graves, each with its small wooden cross and its bit of flowers; the crosses are so closely huddled that there is scarcely room to walk between them. They are alike and all bear the same date, the sinister date of August 22, 1914.

"But whether their hands were cut off or not, whether they were impaled on bayonets or not, children were shot down by military order in cold blood. In the awful crime of the Rock of Bayard, there overlooking the Meuse below Dinant, infants in their mother's arms were shot down without mercy.

"The dead, never surpassed in cruelty by any band of savages, is described by the bishop of Namur himself: "One scene surpasses in horror all others; it is the fustilade of the Rock Bayard near Dinant. It appears to have been ordered by Colonel Meisler. This fustilade caused the death of nearly 90 persons without distinction of age or sex. Among the victims were babies in arms, boys and girls, fathers and mothers of families, even old men.

"It was there that 12 children under the age of six perished from the fire of the executioners, six of them as they lay in their mother's arms: "The child Fievet, 3 weeks old. "Maurice Determe, 11 months old. "Nelly Pollet, 11 months old. "Clida Jonon, 18 months old. "Clida Marchot, 2 years old. "Clara Struvay, two years and six months.

"The pile of bodies comprised also many children from 6 to 14 years. Eight large families have entirely disappeared. Four have but one survivor. These men that stepped dead—many of whom were killed with bullets—were obliged to bury in a summary and hasty fashion their fathers, mothers, brothers or sisters; then, after having been relieved of their money and being placed in chains, they were sent to Cassel Prison.

Whitlock also touches upon the horrors at Louvain, saying:

"On Thursday, August 27, order was given to the inhabitants to leave Louvain because the city was to be bombarded. Old men, women, children, the sick, priests, nuns were driven on the roads like cattle. More than 10,000 were driven as far as Tichmont, 13 kilometers from Louvain.

"Our Belgian minister confirms the charge that the Germans shielded themselves behind the bodies of the natives—a practice they have now resumed in their march into Italy.

"The Germans attacked Mousgaard on August 13; the Belgian troops were holding the Grotte bridge in the village. The Germans forced the parish priest of Mousgaard to walk in front of them as a shield. As they neared the barricade the Belgian soldiers fired and the priest was killed. After the retreat of the Belgians the Germans shot four men, burned 50 houses and looted 100.

"For a time the protests of neutral nations and the outcry of a shocked world seemed to cow the Germans. The wholesale massacres, looting and burning ceased. But in the winter of 1915 they perfected a new form of devilry. Their own supply of labor depleted, the Huns conceived the idea of deporting Belgians and Frenchmen to Germany to make them work for the Kaiser. In many instances actually compelling them to labor in munition factories.

"On January 16, 1917, while still in Brussels—even though it was occupied by the Germans—Whitlock made a report to the state department saying among other things:

"I have it in mind, and I might say, on my conscience, since the Germans began to deport Belgian workmen in November to prepare for the department a detailed report on this latest instance of brutality, but there have been so many obstacles in the way of obtaining evidence on which a calm and judicious opinion could be based, and one is so overwhelmed with the horror of the thing itself, that it has been and even now is difficult to write calmly and justly about it.

"In order to understand fully the situation it is necessary to go back to the autumn of 1914. At the time we were organizing the relief work, the Comité National (Belgian relief organization) proposed an arrangement by which the Belgian government should pay to its own employees left in Belgium, and other unemployed men besides, the wages they had been accustomed to receive. The Belgians wished to do this both for humanitarian and patriotic purposes; they wished to provide the unemployed with the means of livelihood and, at the same time, to prevent their working for the Germans. I refused to be connected in any way with this plan and told the Belgian committee that it had many possibilities of danger; that not only would it place a premium on idleness, but that it would ultimately exasperate the Germans. However, the policy was adopted and has been continued in practice, and on the rolls of the Comité National have been borne the names of hundreds of thousands—some 700,000, I believe—of idle men receiving this dole, distributed through the communes.

"The presence of these unemployed, however, was a constant temptation to German cupidity. Many times they sought to obtain the lists of the chomeurs (men on the payrolls) but were always foiled by the claim that under the guarantees covering relief work, the records of the Comité National and its various sub-organizations were immune.

"Rather than risk any interruption of revictualing, for which, while loath to own any obligation to America, the Germans have always been grateful, since it has had the effect of keeping the population calm, the authorities never pressed the point other than with the burgomasters of the communes.

"Finally, however, the military party, always brutal, and with an astounding ignorance of public opinion and of moral sentiment, determined to put these idle men to work.

"General von Bissing and the civil portion of his entourage had always been and even now are opposed to this policy and I think have sincerely done what they could first to prevent its adoption and, secondly, to lighten the rigors of its application."

"With regard to the above by Whitlock, the Germans had solemnly assured Cardinal Mercier that young Belgian men need not fear being forced into the German army or being employed at forced labors. This was in the autumn of 1914. All through 1915 there were reported cases where the military forced workmen to labor in various factories in Belgium. Later this was followed by an order legalizing this and in October, 1916, a brutal order was promulgated which paved the way for the deportations.

In his report, Whitlock continues: "Then in August Hindenburg was appointed to the supreme command. He is said to have criticized von Bissing's policy as too mild; there was a quarrel; von Bissing went to Berlin to protest, threatening to resign, but did not. He returned and a German official here said that Belgium would now be subjected to a more terrible regime—would learn what war was. The prophecy has been vindicated. Recently I was told that the drastic measures are really of Ludendorff's

As a result the dealer must now keep a list of every customer buying sugar at either of his two stores and the amount of the purchase. The grocery keepers of the city are selling sugar in small quantities, some permitting their trade to one pound and some permitting the sale of two pounds per customer. None of the dealers has large supplies on hand, and much of the sugar is of the best variety.

inspiration; I do not know. Many German officers say so." (Representative Bissinger defended the deportations, being so openly in a conversation with A. C. Walcott, an American banker, who was working to ameliorate conditions in Belgium and Poland.)

Whitlock gives this picture of the actual deportations: "They began at Ghent and at Brussels, as my first telegrams indicated. The policy spread; the high industrial districts of Flanders, the mines and steel works about Charleroi were next attacked; now they are seizing men in Belgium, even in Brussels, despite some indignation and even predictions of the civil authorities that the policy was about to be abandoned.

"During the last fortnight men have been impressed here in Brussels, but their seizures here are made evidently with much greater care than in the provinces, with more regard for the appearance. There was no public announcement of the intention to deport but suddenly about ten days ago certain men in towns, whose names are on the list of chomeurs, received summons notifying them to report at given days; penalties were fixed for failure to respond to the summons and there was printed on the card an offer of employment by the German government either in Germany or in Belgium. On the first day, of about 1,500 men appeared to present themselves at the Gare du Midi, about 750 responded. These were examined by German physicians and 500 were taken. There was no disorder, a large force of mounted Uhlans keeping back the crowds and having access to the station to all but those who had been summoned to appear.

"The Commission for Relief in Belgium had secured permission to give to each deported man a loaf of bread, and some of the communes provided warm clothing for these who had none and, in addition, a small financial allowance.

"As by one of the ironies of life, the winter has been more excessively cold than Belgium has ever known it, and while many of those who presented themselves were adequately protected against the cold, many of them were without overcoats. The men shivering from cold and fear, the parting and weeping wives and children, the barriers of brutal Uhlans, all this made the scene a pitiable and distressing one.

"The rage, the terror, the despair excited by this measure all over Belgium were beyond anything we had witnessed since the day the Germans poured into Brussels. The delegates of the Commission for Relief in Belgium returning to Brussels, told the most distressing stories of the scenes of cruelty and sorrow attending the seizures. And daily, hourly almost, since that time appalling stories have been related by Belgians to the legation. It is impossible for us to verify them, first, because it is necessary for us to exercise all possible tact in dealing with the subject at all, and secondly, because there is no means of communication between the occupation—Gebiet and the Etappen-Gebiet.

"Transportations everywhere in Belgium is difficult, the vicinal railways scarcely operating any more because of the lack of oil, while all the horses have been taken. The people who are forced to go from one village to another must do so on foot or in vans drawn by the few miserable horses that are left. The wagons of the breweries, the one institution that the Germans have scrupulously respected, are hauled by oxen.

"The well known tendency of sensational reports to exaggerate themselves, Whitlock points out, gives occasion for great prudence in believing rumor, but he adds that even if a modicum of all that is told is true there still remains enough to stamp this deed as one of the foulest that history records.

Then he adds: "I am constantly in receipt of reports from all over Belgium that tend to bear out the stories one constantly hears of brutality and cruelty. A number of men sent back to Mons are said to be in a dying condition, many of them tubercular. At Malines and Antwerp returned men have died, their friends asserting that they have been victims of neglect and cruelty, of cold, of exposure, of hunger."

Whitlock and the Spanish and Dutch ministers protested against the deportation of men who were at work already, because they clearly did not come within the brutal German order that all unemployed men should be deported. The Spanish legation lodged protests concerning about 200 men a day and the Dutch about as high as 1,500. Whitlock at that time estimated that 100,000 persons had been deported, of whom only 2,000 were returned.

Belgian burgomasters asked Whitlock to obtain permission to send packages of food to the deported, similar to those sent to prisoners of war, but, except in special instances, this was refused.

Whitlock concludes his report as follows:

"One interesting result of the deportations remains to be noted, a result that once more places in relief the German capacity for blundering, almost as the German ca-capacity for cruelty. Until the deportations began there was no intense hatred on the part of the lower classes, that is, the workmen and the peasants. The old Germans of the Land-sturm had been quartered in Flemish homes; they and the inmates spoke nearly the same language; they got along fairly well; they helped the women with the work, the poor and the humble having none of those hatreds of patriotism that are among the privileges of the upper classes.

"It is conceivable that the Flemish population might have existed under German rule; it was Teutonic in its origin and anti-French always.

"But now the Germans have changed all that. They have dealt a mortal blow to any prospect they may ever have had of being tolerated by the population of Flanders; in tearing away from nearly every humble home in the land a husband and a father or a son and brother they have lighted a fire to hatred that will never go out; they have brought home to every heart in the land in a way that will impress its horror indelibly on the memory of three generations, a realization of what German methods mean, not as with the early atrocities, in the heat of passion and the first lust of war but by one of those deeds that make one despair of the future of the human race, a deed coldly planned, studiously matured and deliberately and systematically executed, a deed so cruel that German soldiers are said to have wept in its execution and so monstrous that even German officers are now said to be ashamed."

Bodily Housekeeping

(BY SAMUEL HAMILTON, M.D.)

The subject of drinking water with meals has been misunderstood in recent years. Investigation by means of X-rays, the observations of scientists, such as Cannon, Grunther, Purloer, Fowler, Hawk, prove that an abundance of water taken during digestion is necessary in good bodily housekeeping. Drink plenty of water with each meal. Do not drink ice-water at any time.

If your kidneys are sick, or you suffer with lumbago or rheumatism at times, pain in the back or back of the neck, take Anurio (double strength) before meals. This can be found at any good drug store. Therefore my advice to young or old is, always drink plenty of pure water. And for long life, occasionally take tablets of Anurio three or four times a day.

It is simply wonderful how quickly Anurio acts—much more potent than lithia. You will find it dissolves uric acid as water does sugar.

Secretary's Annual Report Shows How It Has Been Expanded by War.

Washington, Dec. 10.—To a young officer, commanding the first flotilla of American destroyers to reach the war zone when the United States entered the world war, Secretary Daniels turns in his annual report, made public today, to find the war slogan of the naval service. Asked by the British admiral to whom he reported when his ships would be ready for war against the submarines, after the long voyage, the officer replied:

"We are ready now."

"That was not the language of boasting," Mr. Daniels says in describing the incident. "It was the prophecy and pledge of our service with those fighting in a common cause."

"During peaceful years the navy has been quietly but steadily perfecting itself to meet the time of war. Now the hour for which it has been preparing has arrived. Our sword is drawn, and no one will dispute that the blade is keen and free from rust and its temper true."

Some Things Done.

"While I may not speak in detail of the greater naval operations, it may be stated that the record is one of increasing power, of developing resourcefulness and of co-operative achievement which the American people may well survey with national pride. While the details of what we have done and how we have done it must wait until it is permissible to spread them upon public record, this summary may be given to our people:

"In the navy we have prepared for, and have met the duties of the present; we are preparing for and are confident we will be able to meet any call for greater duties, for more exacting responsibilities. The best way to secure enduring peace is to prepare unceasingly, night and day, for the winning of the war, whether it be long or short."

This we have done; this we are doing and this we will continue to do."

For the coming year, Mr. Daniels proposes a naval budget of $1,309,660,502 which is not itemized in his report. In various ways, he says, it will be necessary to ask for additional funds as the session of congress proceeds. He points out, however, that appropriations for the last fiscal year totaled $1,542,732,859 for the navy and for a thirteen month period $1,905,410,830. Congress provided liberally, he says, and legislated for the navy with vision and wisdom.

"This was done, too," he adds, "in the broadest spirit of national patriotism by members of all political parties."

War Expansion of Navy.

Since Jan. 1, 1917, the naval force has increased from 4,500 officers and 68,000 men to 15,000 officers and 264,000 men; the number of stations of all kinds operated by the navy has increased from 130 to 363; the number of civil employees from 35,000 to 60,000; the strength of the naval reserve from a few hundreds to 49,246 men; the average monthly expenditure from $8,000,000 to $60,000,000; the number of ships in commission from a little more than 200 to more than 1,000; the hospital corps from 1,600 to 7,000; the national naval volunteers from zero to 16,000 men; the marine corps from 244 officers and 9,221 men to 1,197 officers and 30,000 men. In addition to this and to the vast orders for material placed, the expansion of the air service and to many wholly new activities developing from war conditions, training facilities have been provided for 113,550 men exclusive of the Naval academy and other regular service schools.

For the first time, the secretary does not make public the report of the general board of the navy. His synopsis of the board's work shows that it has been of a most confidential character and the report is withheld for that reason, Mr. Daniels says. This report is the usual source of the future building program of the navy. The secretary contents himself this year, however, with recommending that the remainder of the three-year program already approved be authorized, including three battleships, one battle cruiser, three scout cruisers, nine fleet

Increase of Man Power.

The secretary asks that the permanent enlisted personnel be increased to 129,000 bluejackets, 10,000 apprentice seamen, 7,000 men in the trade schools and 4,000 for the air service. For war purposes he asks that the figures be 180,000 bluejackets, 24,000 apprentices, 14,000 in trade schools and 10,000 in aviation.

Mr. Daniels again emphasizes his feeling that promotion should be made on the basis of merit throughout the navy and that the "fettish" of seniority be abandoned, "from admiral to ensign." He recommends that the selective system now be extended to the staff as well as the line. He also expresses the conviction that every candidate for admission to the naval academy should be compelled to serve a year before the mast as an enlisted man before entering the school.

The report declares that the interchange between the naval services of the allied powers and the navy have been "particularly frank and free," adding that this partnership of democratic nations will yet "insure a lasting peace." It says that when the call came, the navy supplied gunners and guns for merchant craft without an hour's delay.

The report touches on the various naval conferences attended by American officers, but adds nothing to what is known of the questions taken up or decisions reached. Throughout the lengthy document the secretary is careful to avoid any statement that might be of service to an enemy.

Marine Corps is Praised.

The secretary pays tribute to the marine corps, which has lived up to its best traditions, he says, as will be shown when the war is over. The marine regiment in France, he says, will soon be considerably augmented in its service with General Pershing's army.

Development of naval aircraft has been remarkable, the secretary says, due largely to the success of the liberty motor.

"We have an American flying boat actually flying with an American engine, which is unexcelled by any foreign craft of the type."

The secretary discloses the fact that American coast patrol stations have been authorized abroad and will be in operation next year, but gives no details.

the possibility of an international navy to keep the world peace. Such an agreement cannot be cherished now, he says, that all the world is at war. "But if this condition could not be reached in time of peace," he adds, "may we not believe that it will be one of the compensations for the terrible tragedy of war."

Ready to Help Police the Sea.

Each naval power should assign units to the international force in proportion to its wealth and population, the secretary suggests, adding: "To such a police of the sea this country will be ready to make full contribution, and to that end the old and new shipbuilding resources will soon place this country in a position to furnish as many and as powerful ships as will come from any other country. It would be a lasting calamity if, when this war ends, there should linger as a burden upon a people, already heavily taxed by war, a competitive program of costly naval construction. This country will, no doubt, take its proper place in bringing about such provisions in the peace treaties as will never again constrain any nation to adapt its naval program to the program of some other nation from which there is the compelling menace of possible and unprovoked attack. Such compulsion is the very negative of natural and orderly naval development. It means the tyranny of a program dictated by apprehension rather than the free choice of a standard suggested by the national needs and supported by national ideals. An international navy, on the contrary, will make possible such naval development as each nation deems fitting for its own people. It will also serve 'the parliament of man' by providing a naval force ample enough to give validity to international decrees and strong enough to keep inviolate the peace of the world."

Stomach Trouble and Constipation.

Those who are afflicted with stomach trouble and constipation should read the following: "I have never found anything so good for stomach trouble and constipation as Chamberlain's Tablets. LOCAL MARKETS

Cold Weather Keeps Farmers at Home—No Corn or Oats Received.

The extremely cold weather hit the local markets hard Monday and as a result there was little "doing." Three loads of hay were brought to town. As a matter of fact no corn or oats have been received since Friday.

The farmers bringing in the three loads of hay were well paid for their trouble, the top price being $27.50 a ton, the highest in many months.

Potato prices hold steady, but receipts are of first quality and damage from frost, even in the slightest degree, has practically disappeared.

Dealers say they have never known a year when rabbit offerings have been so scant. The chief reason for this, they say, is that the farmer hunter is eating nearly all the game he has time to hunt or ammunition to shoot.

Greenstuffs of all kinds, including cabbage, lettuce, celery, cauliflower, peppers, Brussels sprouts, eggplant, etc., now coming from the south or grown in hothouses in Indiana, are holding firmer prices due to the cold wave, which has made shipping more precarious. Dealers say they are looking for advances on lettuce and celery early next week.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN THE FRONT LINE TRENCHES! FACE TO FACE WITH THE BOCHES!

"ARE WE DOWNHEARTED? NO!!"

And here is another group of Pershing's Sammies holding a front line trench separated from the German's only by a narrow, shell-pocket strip. Worried? Not You wouldn't call them "downhearted" after glancing at those grins, would you? These are some of the Sammies who have been in action several times, and possibly even this small group includes some of those who were the first American soldiers to lay down their lives on the battlefield for the cause of freedom.
